SOCIETY NOTES

"Garden Day," Saturday afternoon, Aug. 14, from 2 to 6, at the noted Barnard gardens in Ipswich, near the Ipswich hospital, will be a welcome day for garden lovers. The receipts will be given to the National Civic Federation. Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge, of Pride's Crossing, planned this garden opening before she and her family left for Squam lake, N. H., last week.

Myopia Hunt club is planning extensively for its Saturday night dance, Sept. 4, the dance before Labor Day. Lowe's orchestra will play. Tables are now being taken for the dinner preceding the dance.

Essex County club, Manchester, had a very enjoyable dinner dance last Friday night. Over a hundred attended the dance. Lowe's orchestra played.

Mrs. D. B. Hussey, of Magnolia, is giving a luncheon for nine today at Essex County club, Manchester. The past week Mrs. John N. Stevens, of Manchester, entertained twelve; Mrs. James M. Green, of Magnolia, fourteen, and Mrs. Robert de Wolf Sampson, of Manchester, eight.

The Warren D. Robbins family, of Washington, have come to the J. Warren Merrill cottage, Smith's Point, Manchester, for the remainder of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Warren Marshall, of St. David's, Philadelphia, have been visiting this week with Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Disston, "Thunderbolt Hill," Manchester.

Myopia Hunt club, Hamilton, had a dinner dance last Saturday night. Lowe's orchestra played for the hundred or more who came in for the dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Armistead Baylor gave a dinner for the latter's daughter, Miss Consuelo Bates, of Ipswich, a débutante of last winter.

Brownland cottages in Manchester are completely filled

Brownland cottages in Manchester are completely filled for the month of August. Many applications are coming in to this popular summer "home," but the cottages are unable to accommodate all who want to summer at this quiet and exclusive house.

Miss Almira S. Foster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Gray Foster, of Coolidge Point, Manchester, will return from camp tomorrow.

"The Moorings," the attractive home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Tucker, Norton's Neck, West Manchester, has had an old Salem doorway reproduced and built into the front entrance.

SOCIETY NOTES

THE younger set all along the Shore will be over at Nahant tonight for the dance at the Town hall, given by the younger set of Nahant as a benefit for the Children's hospital in Boston. Patronesses for the affair include Mrs. Edwin U. Curtis, Mrs. Robert Locke, Mrs. Charles Boyden, Mrs. Archibald Blanchard and Mrs. Joshua B. Holden, Jr. Thomas Roland has kindly offered to decorate the hall free of charge. Lowe's orchestra will play for the dancing.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Temple Dowling and son, Mark Temple, Jr., of Boston, are now in the cottage on Smith's Point, Manchester, formerly occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Campbell, of New York. The Campbells are traveling.

Mrs. J. L. Chalifoux, of Lowell, is on for a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Chess Ellsworth, of "Wayside," Manchester Cove. Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Stevens, who make their home with Mrs. Chalifoux, Mrs. Stevens' mother, are now visiting in Canada. Another daughter's family, the Lowell M. Chapins, of Chicago, are at Watch Hill, R. I.

Miss Opal Whiteley, the writer, is spending the summer at the H. P. McKean, Jr., home Beverly Farms. Miss Whiteley is engaged in studying and writing.

Mrs. W. W. Caswell and her son, W. W. Caswell, Jr., of Boston, are spending August at Essex County club, Manchester.

The attendance at the surgical dressings meeting in Horticultural hall, Manchester, was unusually large this Tuesday morning. Mrs. W. W. Caswell, who has just arrived upon the Shore, and who is a member of the committee in charge, was present for the first time.

Miss Mary B. Adams and Mrs. D. Buchanan Merryman, of Washington, formerly of the Bass Rocks colony, have the attractively situated Richard Dana Skinner cottage on University lane, Manchester Cove.

"Lilliothea," the home of George R. White and his sister, Mrs. Frederick T. Bradbury, on Smith's Point, Manchester is showing up its beautiful park-like grounds with seemingly unusual beauty this season. Never did the grass, flowers and trees have a more charming appearance than now in the mid-season.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN T. Morse, Jr., and their son, J. Torrey Morse, have long been Shore residents at Pride's Crossing. Mr. Morse, retired lawyer and editor, is one of the young old men of the Shore. Every morning by eight o'clock Mr. Morse is ready to motor to his farm near Needham. There he spends the day, returning in time for dinner in the evening. At the Pride's Crossing home he has extensive gardens around his place. Mr. Morse is the author of the "Life and Letters of Oliver Wendell Holmes," a book teeming with North Shore life of the past. $\Diamond : : \Diamond$

Philip Stockton and family have returned to Manchester after spending the early season at Westport, N. Y.

Miss Edith Sigourney, of Nahant, is winning a star record in the women's singles at the Seabright, N. J., Lawn Tennis and Cricket club tournament now on. Harte and G. Colket Caner are North Shore men playing at Seabright this week.

Samuel Carr and family, of Boston, are expected to arrive at their home in West Manchester Sunday, much later than usual. Mr. Carr is recovering from a recent operation, and he has but lately left the hospital.

The Tide Over League sale and bridge on Tuesday at Mrs. Edward S. Grew's, West Manchester, cleared $1,800 at this very successful event, one of the most largely attended affairs yet held on the Shore.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Abbott, of West Manchester, have as their guest, Albert Hunt, of Boston. Their daughter, Miss Eleanor Abbott, is abroad with Mr. and Mrs. Philip S. Sears and Philip M. Sears and David Sears, 2d. They arrived in Paris last week and will motor a short time in England, probably, before returning in September.

Who's Who Along the North Shore this season is told best of all in the 340 pages of the 1920 issue of the social directory by that name. "Who's Who" is published this season from the office of the North Shore Breeze. The book may be purchased at the office of the Breeze on Summer st., Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Harrison K. Caner, of "Felsenmeer," Dana's Beach, Manchester, have with them their niece, Miss Eleanor Colket, of Philadelphia. Jack Caner and William Davis are arriving tomorrow from Philadelphia.

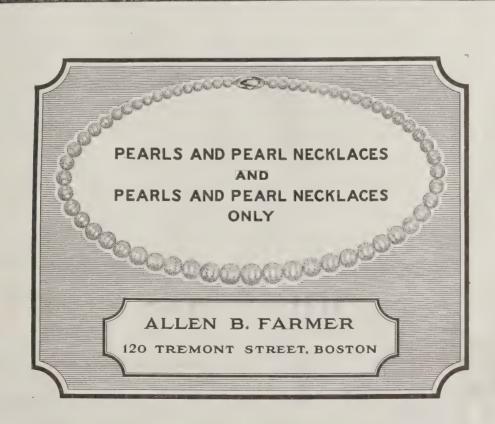

Charles E. Cotting, long a prominent figure as a trustee in real estate affairs in Boston, died suddenly yesterday at West Manchester, where he had a summer residence at Black Beach Cove, near the West Manchester railroad station. His winter home is at 404 Marlboro street, Boston.

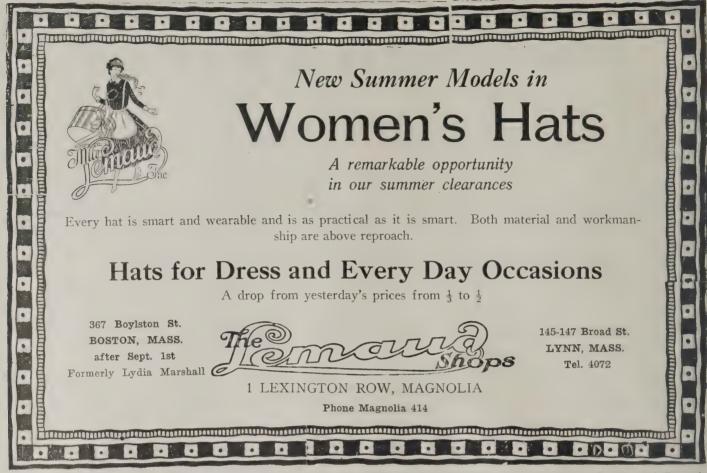

Mr. Cotting, while not in the best of health for some time, had not been actually ill, and had attended to business up to a few days ago. He was the son of Chas. U. Cotting and upon the death of his father took up the business interests of his parent.

Mr. Cotting belonged to the Somerset, Algonquin, Union, Essex County, The Country, Boston Art, Eastern Yacht, Tennis and Racquet clubs of Boston and vicinity and of the Calumet club in New York. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Ruth S. Thompson of Charlestown; and one son, Charles E. Cotting, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. William Madison Wood, who have their attractive home on Allen's Head, Pride's Crossing, are making a charming "green garden" effect out of the front lawn next the house. A circle of low pine trees is around the driveway and, placed at intervals as they are, they make a most interesting and pleasing appearance. The great front lawn which was a thriving potato patch during the war, is now a velvety stretch of grass.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE H. SWIFT, of Beverly Farms, had their four children baptized last Sunday after the morning service in St. John's Episcopal church, the rector, Rev. Neilson Poe Carey, officiating. Charles Swift, of Chicago, was sponsor for Ruth, the 11-year-old daughter; Harold Swift, of Chicago, for George H., Jr., the year-and-a-half-old son, and Mrs. T. H. McCarthy, a sister of Mrs. Swift, for Lucile, the 7-year-old daughter, and Miss Eleanor McCarthy for her little cousin, Eleanor, aged 4 years. Mr. and Mrs. McCarthy and family, recently arrived from France, are at the Oceanside, Magnolia. Another sister of Mrs. Swift, Mrs. James B. Hildebrand, of Chicago, now spending a week at the Oceanside, but who will later spend several weeks with the Swifts, was also present at the baptism. Mrs. Swift's father, Edwin Casey, of Chicago, is with her for the summer. After the baptismal services the numerous relatives gathered at "Rose Ledge," for luncheon with the Swift family.

Ledge," for luncheon with the Swift family.

Mrs. James D. Safford, of Norton's Neck, West Manchester, is a Washingtonian fond of coming to her home, perched upon its rocky foundations, very early in the season. Mrs. Safford's rock garden built upon the site of an old fort is of much interest with its variety of flowers and vegetables growing together in the most intimate way possible. Many little views around the place, seen seaward through the trees over toward Tuck's Point and elsewhere, are said to resemble scenes in Scotland.

MR. AND MRS. GODFREY LOWELL CABOT, of Beverly Farms, are making plans for a most enjoyable day when on Saturday, August 21, they will have a reception for their daughter, Mrs. Ralph Bradley, and their two daughters-in-law, Mrs. James Jackson Cabot and Mrs. Thomas Dudley Cabot, all recent brides. Lowe's orchestra will furnish the music.

"Riverhouse," the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra C. Fitch, Norton's Neck, West Manchester, has had a new greenhouse added this season. The rolling lawns with thick, velvety grass are some of the most attractive features about this place. Lawns edged with flowers and shrubbery, a rose garden at one side, a rock garden at the end opposite the house, and the billowy sweep of green velvet between this garden and the house make a place of unsurpassed beauty anywhere along the Shore.

MONTSERRAT TENNIS CLUB has an interesting tournament started this week by one of the clubs of children and some of the younger set working for the Children's hospital in Boston. All along the Shore these units are devising means of bringing joy and comforts to the sick children in this great hospital in Boston. Next week we shall be able to give an account of the tournament and of other entertainments going on among the Shore children who are enrolled in the hospital helpers' clubs. Mrs. Gordon Abbott and Mrs. Bernard C. Weld are among the Shore women interested in the progress of this work among our younger folk.

The Junior League, of Boston, has many interesting plans for the coming winter, one of which is to open an office in the Girls' City club, 8 Newbury st., about Oct. 1, with hours from 9 to 1 o'clock, luncheon and tea to be served every day. Among the officers who are North Shore folk are Mrs. Livingston Davis, vice-president; Mrs. Harvey D.

Bundy (Katherine L. Putnam), chairman of the publicity committee and editor of the league bulletin; and Miss Pauline Fenno, in charge of the Scout activities.

Mr. and Mrs. Amory S. Carhart, who have Mrs. Alvin S. Dexter's place, Manchester, sailed for France June 21, and are returning the last of August. Mrs. Carhart's sister, Mrs. Malcolm Thomas and two children, of St. Louis, are now occupying the house until the Carharts return. Mr. Thomas is still in St. Louis. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Thomas, of Ipswich.

"IngleLowe," that charming English appearing house of Mr. and Mrs. George Angue Dobyne, at Beverly Farms, is growing more beautiful every year as its garden matures. The house is set in a garden structure, true English fashion. The pools, the seats, flowers, trees and terraces make a part of the house. There is no difference, apparently, in the general atmosphere of the place, the house or its outside room, one is a part of the other. The water view is one of interest affording, as it does, the life of West Beach and the waterway between it and the islands beyond.

"Who's Who Along the North Shore" for 1920 may be purchased at the office of the North Shore Breeze, 66 Summer st., Manchester.

Ten Years ago Henry L. Higginson of Manchester wrote an unsolicited letter to the Boston Herald relative to the railroad situation in the United States. The letter occupied but six or seven inches of space in the "letter box" of that paper, yet in it was a prophecy that has been fulfilled to the letter. He discussed the railroad situation with a clarity that was usual in his communications. Unless there were changes which he could not foresee the hope for the railroads was slight. The years have sped on and the decade has passed and the railroad situation is exactly as he foresaw. Rarely does one see through the mazes of a complicated problem, such as the railroad problem, but Major Higginson did!

If there is such a thing as untold agony it is the secret a woman is compelled to keep.

Exceedingly attractive is the Yellow Butterfly, at Magnolia, with its quaint decorations in yellow and black. This exquisite little tea room is making friends quickly with the shoppers who delight to drop in for luncheon after their tour of the shops. The smallest detail of this lovely place has been carefully designed in keeping with the decorations. The dainty menus, hand made, are only one of the little touches which attract the admiration of its visitors, and which make the place deliciously beautiful. Everywhere yellow butterflies lend their piquant charm—appearing among the flowers, on the menus, and bobbing a gay welcome on the unique little sign on the porch.

TWO NATURE POEMS

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

TO A BUTTERFLY

WELCOME, lady fair with yellow wings Silken, glossy, edged with lace So delicate—the lines I trace Woven in a rare design And dearest dots of black and white Making up thy robe of grace! Strange how God makes up such things

As you—there's powder—silver, gold,

Sprinkled over dainty, painted films That loop and shape thy gown; And to our gaze it brings

A happiness—a joy untold As you flit among the gorgeous bowers, Fair in hue as any flowers! Tell me, you—oh, you so beautiful, ' Flitting, flirting—tell me why They should call you "but a fly?"

THE BEE-LOVED ROSE

TODAY I heard a buzz in a rose— 'Twas a rose as pink as a maiden's cheek! And I drew it very close to learn

Why a rose like that should really speak! 'Twas a rose, and I say, who knows-who knows If a fair rose can really speak?

And I plucked that bloom from its graceful pose For its blush was as fair as the skies above; And I gazed in the depths of its soul to learn If the buzz was really a whisper of love That arose from a rose—who knows, who knows If a rose can really speak love?

Curiosity drew my nose to this rose,

While I fancied perhaps Cupid inside might bring A message from her who had planted this tree,

When, alas! I received naughty Cupid's sharp sting! 'Twas a bee! Could it be such a big bee as he Whose buzz spoke of love? Saucy thing!

MISS CONSUELO BATES, of Ipswich, is a young débutante of the past winter who is becoming very popular with the Junior Breezes of the "youngest set" along the Shore. The beautiful casino at "Castle Hill," Ipswich, is opened every Wednes-day afternoon through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr., and in it Miss Bates and the little folk are having dancing lessons. Miss Bates is an accomplished dancer and she is training her young charges so that they may put on a special performance late in August or early in September in the Italian garden on the Crane estate, as a benefit for the Ipswich hospital. Miss Bates is giving her time to this summer's work as her share of welfare work all going to Ipswich hospital.

The young pupils include the following: Theodora and Anne Beekman Ayer, Faith Barney, Florence Crane, Anne Bayard Dick, Bessie Moulton, Esther and Martha Proctor, Joan Phippen, Charlotte Rantoul, Anne Robbins, Sarah Shurtleff, Janice Vaughan, Margot and Lorraine Warner, Sturgis Warner, Nancy Winslow, May and Angelica Welldon, and two in the John E. Rousmaniere family. Elizabeth, Grace and Lorna Livermore, of Coolidge Point, Manchester, were members of the class until they became ill and had to give it up for the present.

MISS OPAL WHITELEY, the writer, is spending the summer upon the North Shore with Mr. and Mrs. H. P. McKean, Jr., of Beverly Farms. Miss Whiteley's nature books and other writings are noted and it is interesting to know that she has been writing since a very little girl. Miss Whiteley is meeting little folk every Wednesday afternoon for a nature class. The pupils studying birds and flowers and taking walks with Miss Whiteley include Priscilla Saltonstall, Susan K. Cutler, Mary Flagg, Cabot Sedgwick, Alice Dodge, Barbara Proctor, Effie and Charlie Sturgis, Evelyn and Margaret Cummings, Edith and Ruth Koshland and Katherine Sumner. The little folk have met on the Ellery Sedgwick hill at Montserrat for the past lessons. They are now taking walks along the beaches.

SWIMMING EVENTS at the North Shore swimming pool, Magnolia, last Saturday, scored the following points to date for Jack Wallace's pupils:

Oren B. Taft, $35\frac{1}{2}$; John Wheeler, $20\frac{1}{2}$; Fred Ellsworth, 20; Hélène Ellsworth, Suzette Dewey and Eleanor Rowe, each 5; Fred Schlafly, 4; S. C. Smith, Phyllis Ellsworth and Barbara Richardson, each 3; Polly Richardson and Adeline Smith, 2.

The midget race was a new feature of the day's events. The winner was Eleanor Rowe, aged $7\frac{1}{2}$; Barbara Richardson, 2d; Polly Richardson, 3d; Bobsy Ellsworth, 4th; Dan Schlafly, 5th. Barbara and Polly are aged 8 and 7 respectively, while Bobsy and Dan are each six-year-old. Dan has now made his first point.

On August 21 will be the next event at the pool.

MISS ELIZABETH FEN-No and her club of young workers made a considerable amount for Children's hospital in Boston last Friday and Saturday by their sale at the Rowley Powley tea house on Rowley Common. Two of the workers, Theodora and Anne Beekman Ayer, had to be busy in Hamilton at the fair Saturday afternoon where, besides selling baloons, they superintended the rides in their pony cart, which helped to swell the fund for the new church.

tiniest tots make up a class well-worth any one's while to visit. Down on the beautiful lawn at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Henry F. Sears Bunny and the sturdy youngsters disport themselves with the greatest gusto every Thursday afternoon. This has been done so many years upon the Shore with many of the mothers and fathers of the present tots that Bunny is so well-known and established in the régime of a North Shore summer, both in the hearts of the kiddies and their elders, that it seems useless to elaborate upon it. Bunny begins with these tiny ones with simple games and physical exercises and gradually they get to be experts with the racquet, after which follows the bat, and in time they will be among Bunny's older class of baseball

Those seen in the class last week included Marion and Hortense Clark, Lucile and Eleanor Swift, Denise and Jacqueline Livingston, Roger Cutler, Jr., Josie and Justine Cutting, Sally and Anita Curtis, Abigail and Russell Ellis Sard, Jr., Thomas G. Stevenson, Jr., and his sister, Marie Le Moyne Stevenson, Rose and Nancy Whitman, Doris Worthington Wood, Bobby Mitchell, Grace Amory and her little brother, Charlie, aged 3½ years. Charlie was a very brave little player that day in a regular sailor suit, the first time he had donned such a grown-up outfit, and he appeared to be quite a little man.

Winter is cold hearted
Spring is yea and nay
Autumn is a weather-cock
Blown every way;
Summer days for me
When every leaf is on the tree.

THE GARDNER LIGHT-FOUR

An unusual achievement in motoring was made recently, in the car pictured above, a Gardner light four cylinder touring car. Driven by C. C. Vaughn, the car left St. Louis on Wednesday, July 7, at 2 P. M., and arrived in Boston on Tuesday, July 13, at 5 P. M. The only mishap that occurred in the run of 1283 miles was a puncture from a tack. The average running time was 26 miles an hour, and the gasoline consumption was $18\frac{1}{2}$ miles to the gallon.

The Gardner motor has 4 cylinders, $3\frac{1}{2}$ -inch bore and 5-inch stroke. The car has a wheel base of 112 inches, and weighs 2200 pounds. It retails for \$1195.

The Gardner Company, which manufactures this car, is directed by Russell E. Gardner and his two sons, R. E. Gardner, Jr., and Fred W. Gardner. These men formerly assembled and distributed 40,000 Chevrolet cars, from 1915 to 1918, when they sold out to General Motors Company. In 1919 they repurchased the Chevrolet plant at St. Louis, and in January, 1920, they began turning out the Gardner car. They are now turning out 1000 cars a month, and their schedule for 1921 calls for 18,000 cars.

The Company was recently financed by Hornblower & Weeks, Boston and New York, and Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co., of St. Louis. The Company has 155,000 shares, of no par value, of which 50,000 shares were recently offered to the public at $27 a share. It is planned to begin dividends at $3, which would yield over 11% on the investment.

Grace Horne's Gallery at Magnolia is proving a mecca for visitors to the North Shore. New paintings and sculpture by leading American artists are being placed on exhibition almost every day. This week two fine paintings by Frederic M. Grant, of Chicago, "A Day in Summer" and "Other Days," are attracting marked attention.

Charles F. Adams, who sailed the Resolute to victory in the international races, will be the guest of honor at the Eastern Yacht club August 10 when the Webb Foot Crew will be the hosts. Mr. Adams will be called upon to give personal glimpses of racing during his life on the ocean wave and especially in the recent contest against the Shamrock.

Miss Virginia Wainwright's musicale, Tuesday, at Hotel Tudor, Nahant, was very successful. Miss Wainwright spoke on "Norwegian Music," tracing the history of Norwegian music from early times to the present era. She dwelt on the superstition and mysticism apparent in their ancient music and told interesting anecdotes about their noted musicians. Miss Mildred J. Keefe, pianist, played the illustrations most sympathetically. Miss Wainwright wore a gown of lavender linen and a white satin hat with open-work brim, trimmed in white feathers and heliotrope flowers. Miss Keefe wore white, embroidered with white flowers. The audience was interested in the discourse. Several of the people, including a professor of music, had traveled extensively in Norway and had heard Norwegian music in the land of its birth.

Manchester Yacht Club will be the center of attraction on the Shore tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon. Commodore Charles K. Cummings and his committee including Norton Wigglesworth, E. Sohier Welch, Samuel Eliot, Charles E. Hodges, Jr., and Gordon Abbott, Jr., have planned a schedule of both senior and junior events, among which are swimming races, a tub race, diving contest, canoe racing, etc. Prizes will be given. By special arrangement with the Corinthian Yacht club there will be a boat race for Manchester 17's and E. Y. C. 17's at 2 o'clock. The finish will be off the clubhouse about four o'clock.

Tea will be served after the sports. Among the ladies helping out as patronesses are the following: Mrs. Henry L. Higginson, Mrs. Charles K. Cummings, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, Mrs. Charles Hodges, Miss Margaret Curtis, Mrs. Norton Wigglesworth, Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, Mrs. George Putnam, Mrs. E. Sohier Welch, Mrs. Samuel Eliot and Mrs. Frank Wigglesworth.

You are interested in this hospital Because——

- 9 You would be ashamed to admit to friends and relatives in other cities, that you lived in a community that did not maintain a first-class hospital, with accommodations for those unable to pay. The hospital must be supported in order that it may continue its good work. We must raise the necessary funds or go backward as a community.
- 10 The hospital is a refuge for motherhood. Nowadays the community demands that expert care be given the mother and child at the time of birth. One hundred and thirty-eight babies were born in the hospital last year. The hospital reduces infant mortality.

- 11 You cannot hesitate to bear your fair share of the community burden. The expense per patient at the hospital last year averaged $5 per day, but the income per patient averaged only $2.40 per day. Remember that the hospital charges less than the actual cost in a majority of the cases treated.
- 12 You want to be a real citizen of your community. Remember that we have given millions in far-off places while here is a work of mercy at our doors.

THE WEDDING of Miss Margaret Williams Sargent, daughter of Mrs. Francis W. Sargent, of Hereford st., Boston, and Q. A. Shaw McKean, of Pride's Crossing, was quietly solemnized last Saturday morning in King's chapel, Boston, the Rev. Chas. E. Park, D. D., of the First church, Boston, officiating. Only members of the two families were present. The wedding was planned in the simplest manner possible owing to the fact that the bride's father died last January.

Miss Sargent, who was given in marriage by her brother, Henry J. Sargent, a Harvard '12 man, had no maid of honor or other attendant. She wore a simple traveling gown of gray charmeuse, with which was worn a hat of gray and also a gray lace veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses. The bridegroom had for his attendant best man his brother, Henry Pratt McKean, Jr., of Beverly Farms, where his place is known as "Willow Tree Farm."

There was no reception after the ceremony because of the desire for quiet simplicity. Mr. McKean and his bride are to be away for about a month on a wedding journey, after which they will go to his place at Beverly, Pride's Kennels, to remain until late into the fall, when they will make their home in Boston at the Hotel Agassiz, at 191 Commonwealth ave.

Their engagement was announced on July 13, when Miss Sargent was a guest of Mr. McKean's mother, Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton, at Pride's Crossing. Mr. McKean, the bridegroom, is a Harvard '13 man.

Besides the bride's mother, and brother, Henry J. Sargent, there were present at the wedding Dr. and Mrs. David Cheever, the latter a sister of the bride; Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Haughton, the latter the mother of the bridegroom; also Mrs. H. P. McKean, Jr., and children, and her sister, Mrs. Francis W. Sargent, Jr., wife of the late young Mr. Sargent, brother to the bride. Another brother, not present, is Daniel Sargent, who married late in June at Lausanne, Switzerland, Miss Louise Coolidge, daughter of J. Templeman Coolidge, of Boston.

The annual fair of St. John's church, Beverly Farms, will take place next Thursday, August 12. It will be held partly on "The Rectory" grounds and the adjoining lawn of Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Mason. Mrs. Robert W. Means is chairman of the event. Part of the time in Europe they were accompanied by their young married folk, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. King (Mary Parker). Mrs. King was late in arriving at "Sunset Rock," this season. Her brother, John T. Spaulding, is with her.

You expect much of a Corset! You lace it hurriedly in the morning and keep it on till night. You lean over the oven—it must bend. You frolic with the baby-it must yield with every movement. You take violent exercises-it must withstand every lurch and twist!

Will a corset that is made to give style and comfort hold up under all this?

Mrs. Henry Stephens is now settled in her cottage on the Paine estate, Pride's Crossing. Mrs. Stephens left her Detroit home last autumn, spent a short time in her new place in California and then accompanied by her two sisters sailed for Java and Australia for the winter and spring. Java is much praised by these ladies, but Australia and its living conditions "where nobody works" is not favorably mentioned. Mrs. Stephens will have with her this summer Mrs. Charles K. Backus, of Detroit, mother of Standish Backus, of the Manchester colony. Also Miss Ella Liggett, prominent in educational circles, will be an August guest.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian Harris, son-in-law and daughter of Mrs. Henry Stephens, of Pride's Crossing, who formerly came to the North Shore from their home at Grosse Pointe Farms, Mich., have a house at Annapolis, Md., for the summer.

Mrs. Lucius Manlius Sargent, of Pride's Crossing, entertained Mrs. John Chipman Gray, of Boston, over the week-end. Mrs. Gray recently visited the Misses Loring at Pride's. Henry C. Ross, of Boston, is spending the summer in Mrs. Sargent's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Eben Richards, of New York, arrived at "Harbor View," Pride's Crossing, last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Ayer Wood (Muriel Prindle), of Andover, are on for a visit at Pride's Crossing with the Wm. Madison Woods, parents of Mr. Wood. Young Mr. and Mrs. Wood have with them their seven-weeks-old son, Cornelius Ayer Wood, Jr. Before returning to Andover the Cornelius Woods are planning a visit to Cuttyhunk island on the South Shore.

HAMILTON AND WENHAM had an out-of-door festival last Saturday afternoon in the nature of a "county fair." The day was all that could be desired and over 200 came from along the Shore to see the whippet races, a special feature of the day at four o'clock. The affair was a benefit for Christ church, Hamilton. The ladies' guild, of which Mrs. Charles F. Ayer, of Hamilton's summer colony, is president, is to be congratulated for the wonderfully successful day in both a social way as well as a financial way.

The church in Hamilton is now a little portable building having Rev. Frank L. Luce as rector. Started several years ago it has demonstrated its utility by this time and has gained many friends in both Hamilton and Wenham. Randolph Dodge, of "Sunnyfields," Wenham, has presented land from his estate, lying between his home and the depot on Main st., as a site for a new church edifice. It was on this site that the entertainment was held Saturday. On the opposite side of the street is the "Pingree Field"—the original Myopia polo field—which the late Mrs. Pingree left the town for a playground. To raise funds for the new building the parish is busy in many ways.

It is said that Essex county is the capital of Whippetdom, so these popular little midgets on their miniature race course drew the crowds from the dance floor and booths while the races were on. Charles F. Ayer entered his Tiptoe; A. C. Burrage, Jr., Shadow; James Wilson, of Lawrence, Sunshine; Bayard Warren, Bonny Boy and Mabel;

Among others at the booth were Mrs. Neil Rice, Mrs. H. T. Folsom, Mrs. W. T. Lambert, Mrs. Charles T. Parker, Mrs. H. O. Phippen and Mrs. Charles H. Davis. Mrs. A. F. Sortwell's girls' club sold candy Mrs. James Dodge had fancy work; Mrs. John T. Dodge, cake; a buffet, ices, and entertainments were looked after by various church members. Balloons and candies were sold throughout the grounds by the little Misses Theodora and Anne Beekman Ayer, and Charlotte and Ellen Taintor. A magic horse was in charge of Mrs. Galbraithe Mitchell, while Miss Margaret Thomas and Miss. Eleanor Seavey had charge of chickens, rabbits, ducks, squabs and a pig. WENHAM.—Mr. and Mrs. Alanson L. Daniels, of "Old Farm," Wenham, who recently returned from salmon fishing in Canada, are entertaining Mrs. George McKinlock, of Lake Forest, Ill. The Misses Elizabeth and Esther Baker, of Brookline, are coming to "Old Farm" for a visit next week and will be guests at the garden party planned for the début of Miss Elizabeth DeBlois, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. DeBlois, in Ipswich.

The village improvement society is planning another band concert for August. The one held in July was a great success. They are given in front of the Town hall in Wenham close to the Wenham tea house.

Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Cole, 2d (Ann Wentworth Sheafe), son and daughter-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Cole, of Wenham, are on a western motor trip.

Mrs. Frank A. Magee, of Beverly, gave a small dinner at the Wenham tea house this week for Mrs. Charles D. Sias, of Beverly Cove. Yesterday Mrs. Magee and Mrs. John Lamson gave a bridge party at the tea house. Mrs. Oliver Wendell Holmes and Miss Ruth Wigglesworth have been among the many from Beverly Farms and Manchester, while the Oceanside, Magnolia, clientele, is always well represented at this popular place.

The tea house in Wenham is considered an excellent place to study flower arrangements. Some one once said they used to go to Carboni to learn how to use flowers, but now they go to the tea house where Miss Mabel Welch gives the artistic touches with flowers. Perhaps Mrs. E. B. Cole and Miss Helen Burnham, who are at the tea house about every day in the week, have something to do with the exquisite arrangement of things in general about the exchange department. It is well-remembered that their three miniature gardens, each occupying not over five square feet, with little statues, seats, trees, etc., were wonderfully pleas-

Mrs. Alanson L. Daniels, of Wenham, is chairman of the candy committee at the Wenham tea house. Their famous fudge made fresh daily is eagerly sought by lovers of chocolate and penouchi. Miss Frances Downes started this department, but owing to ill health is not able to be at the tea house this season. Last year 750 pounds were made and disposed of. Mrs. J. B. Pickett and Mrs. J. G. Callahan are Mrs. Daniels' co-workers.

Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Jr., and children, of Wenham, spent the time with her mother, Mrs. Lucius M. Sargent, at Pride's Crossing, while Mr. Higginson was on his recent fishing trip to Canada.

Mrs. Wolcott Howe Johnson, of Hamilton, who is entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson, of New York, gave a luncheon at Wenham's tea house last Saturday. Among the guests were Miss Helen C. Burnham, Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot, Mrs. Joseph F. Woods and Mrs. George S. Mandell. Saturday night Mrs. Johnson gave a dinner for her guests at the Nahant club.

AS summer advances Magnolia grows more beautiful. Dame Nature, so kind to the North Shore, appears to have selected this spot to bestow her choicest gifts. Stately trees spread graceful limbs overhead, graciously shading your path from the warm rays of King Sol. Flowers hold their heads proudly erect as though conscious of their piquant charm, their rich coloring forming a gay contrast to the velvet green of the lawns.

But it is Neptune who grips the imagination and holds it enthralled,-Neptune, who calls and will not be denied. Sitting on the ragged rocks at the foot of his throne, what thoughts, wild and impossible but ecstatically restful, fill the mind! Thoughts called forth perhaps by a rock carved by the Great Master of Arts to resemble a human face. How many, many years it has taken the waves to carve those stones into their fantastic shapes! What sort of people have sat on that very rock at various times? Mayhap a pirate, in his richly colored costume, his knives gleaming in the sun. A pirate, fiercely bold, whose very name struck terror into the hearts of those at sea. Perhaps an old, old man—a captain in younger days—dreaming dreams of mermaids and of monstrous denizens of the deep. A maiden, young and pretty, straining blue eyes towards the horizon, watching for the first sign of the return of her lover's boat. A little boy, playful breezes ruffling sunny curls, awaiting anxiously the return of his father-for has he not promised a tiny boat that would actually sail, immediately upon his return? A wife, in agony of fear at the raging of the storm, waiting in vain for the husband destined never to return.

To wrest the secret from the rocks! Impossible! What tales of love and laughter, of sighs and tears, they could tell! But through the ages they have tantalized the imagination of the dreamer, and have kept grimly silent. The waves lapping the rocks whisper secrets in your ears, and whispering, retreat, leaving you to guess the import of their message.

Recent additions to the hotel clientele for the month of August are: Dr. S. McC. Hamell and S. McC. Hammell, Jr., of Philadelphia, who arrived Sunday. Dr. Hamell's brother, James L. Hamell of Columbus, Ohio, was their guest over Sunday.

Visiting at the Oceanside for a few days are Mr. and Mrs. Frank McPherson and Mr. and Mrs. Guy R. Bryghtwell, of Montgomery, Ala., who arrived Monday.

P. W. Thompson, of Andover, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Williamson, who are season guests at the Oceanside.

Arriving on Monday from their home in Mt. Clements, Mich., Mrs. J. C. McArthur, Mrs. C. M. Schmidt, Miss L. Schmidt and Mrs. J. E. Wende will spend a week or so at the Oceanside.

Also registered for a short visit at the Oceanside are Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Weeks and son, Alexander Weeks, of New York, who were among Monday's arrivals.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Samson, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., oldtime guests at the Oceanside, returned Tuesday for a week

Registered for a two weeks' stay are Mrs. E. F. Buchanan, Mrs. A. N. Chapman, Miss Elizabeth Buchanan and E. C. Buchanan, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Paying a brief visit to the North Shore Mr. and Mrs. Attilla Cox and Miss Harriet R. Cox of Louisville, Ky., are registered at the Oceanside for a week or ten days.

The J. W. Andersons of the Sea-crest cottage are entertaining Allen N. Drake of Buffalo, N. Y.; also Miss Louise Schreiber of Greenwich, Conn.

HUNDREDS OF GOOD SUGGESTIONS

TO perplexed members of prize committees, we can think of no better suggestion than a visit to our Magnolia shop; it is really a small edition of "THE GIFT SHOP OF FIFTH AVE.." for it contains lamps, Sheffield ware, china sets, table decorations, crystal, and hundreds of novelties, as unusual for their distinction as for their variety. And always, without exception, the same reasonable prices of our New York shop prevail.

Harlow, Jr., are also at the hotel, where they arrived in June to spend the entire season. Mrs. Harlow, Jr., was Elsie Martin of Plainfield, N. Alfred A. Morrell, who had charge of the Dreicer shop during July, and Mrs. Morrell left for New York on the mid-night train Saturday. MAGNOLIA Phone 591-W for Appointment Adams Villa

A Merry Group of the Oceanside friends of Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. Wheeler gathered at Del Monte's last Friday night (July 30) in honor of Mr. Wheeler's birthday. A loving cup was presented Mr. Wheeler, which was a masterpiece of (tin) art. We know that a friendly disposed tea pot contributed its cover to the making, though how many more kitchen utensils were robbed can only be guessed at. It presented the conventional silver and gold appearance, even though it was only paint. Mr. Wheeler recently won a golf match at Myopia which prompted Mrs. Alfred Morell to write the following ode, and which was also responsible for the presentation of the cup:

O, listen! while I sing to you
About a golfer tried and true
Who nothing daunted, gained his goal
By winning putt and winning hole.
The day was fair. The greens were, too,
Excepting Jim whose ruddy hue
Was fairly pale, for on this day
He had Myopia to play.
But Charlie Wheeler's golf was true,
His courage up. His hopes were, too.
His swing was mighty, and his putt
Was all one could desire,—but
His modesty was going strong
Conceit was short where drives were long.
And so this cup we tender him
For—thanks to Mac and Frank and Jim—Old Charlie's handling of that game
Is hereby handed down to fame.
Sir Thomas never hoped to 'lift'
As splendid trophy as this gift.
The gang's all here, and as we sup
We tender the Myopia cup;
And full it is of hopes of joy
For you and yours, but then, Oh, Boy!
'The stuff' is hard to get, and so
We think you'll have to let that go
Just let it brim with love, not booze,
And take it with a 'here's to youse.''

And so the party went gaily on while the ghost of John Barleycorn wept tears of anguish at such a "dry" affair, though on the whole the members "faced" the proposition cheerfully. To be sure, the "faces" were false, and it may be added that they changed the appearance of their wearers very substantially. One of the men looked quite venerable in long whiskers, while still another looked as though he had just arrived from the Emerald Isle "wid a twinkle in me eye, and a dime in me pocket." All the "faces" were different, of course, and afforded no little amusement.

Mr. and Mrs. Justin G. Sholes and three children, of 11,130 Magnolia Drive, Cleveland, Ohio, are occupying the first floor of Sea-crest, one of the Oceanside's attractive cottages, where they plan to remain the balance of the season. Mrs. Sholes is the niece of the late Gen. Garretson of Cleveland, an old-time guest of the hotel.

Visitors for a short stay at the Oceanside last week were Mr. and Mrs. F. Corlies Morgan and C. Ross Smith, of Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Henry and Miss Henry of Detroit are registered at the Oceanside for the balance of the season. The Henrys are friends of the John W. Andersons who are spending the season at the hotel, and Mr. Henry is the brother of Mrs. Russell Alger, of Detroit, also a guest here.

Registered for the month of August are: Mrs. Leslie C. Bruce and Miss C. Bruce of Greenwich, Conn.; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth W. Walters, Gustav F. Walters and Kenneth W. Walters, Jr., of Buffalo, who are occupying apartments in the Sea Vista cottage; Mrs. T. A. Cawthra, Miss Genevieve and Miss Elizabeth Cawthra of New York; Miss E. G. THE POPULARITY of the Oceanside dances is attested to by the large number of folk who come to the hotel on dance nights from every section of the North Shore. When the man in the moon shows his smiling face, as he did every night last week, sends shafts of pure gold along the water and peeks at you through the trees, the North Shore Drive is irresistibly attractive. Small wonder then that the summer colony should grasp the advantage of a delightful ride coupled with the anticipation of whirling through a dance to well executed strains of the popular music.

Mrs. Isaac G. Lombard and her daughter, Mrs. H. E. Haass, of Chicago, Ill., are being welcomed back to the Oceanside by their many friends of former seasons. They will spend the balance of the summer here.

Registered at the Oceanside for a short visit, Saturday's arrivals included Mrs. J. B. Hildebrand of Chicago, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. R. Rowland, of Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hann and young daughters, Margaret and Harriet, of Baltimore, Md., are spending the month of August at the Oceanside. R. H. Smith, also of Baltimore, is their guest for a short visit.

The many friends of Mrs. Jane G. Bennett and her daughter, Miss Jane C. Bennett, of Pittsburgh, are welcoming them back to the Oceanside, where they have spent a number of seasons. They arrived Tuesday.

Another old-time guest to arrive at the Oceanside for the month of August is Mrs. Henry C. Gollan, of New York. She is accompanied by Mrs. A. E. Cooley, also of New York. They have taken apartments in Perkins cottage for the duration of their stay.

CAPE ANN.—At the present time, Cape Ann is crowded with guests at the hotels, but still there is room. Thousands of people from various sections of the country and abroad will come to this part of the North Shore. A pageant will be presented on Friday and Saturday evenings. One of the ships is expected also, during the Universalist celebration.

Janet's Garden at 88 Prospect st. has been entertaining a large number of people this week. Here is a real atmosphere of cordiality. The entrance through the house at the front and then through the French doors at the rear, before one reaches the garden, gives an impression of the real French garden. Once inside, one is shut out from the commercial world and the restful, pleasant atmosphere prevails. Among those entertaining friends at tea in this delightful spot, from along the North Shore, the past week, were: Mrs. D. G. Knowlton, of Buffalo, N. Selling Happiness Instead of Furniture

"Happiness" is really what we have to sell to owners of summer homes on the North Shore. It is more than porch and interior decorations. It is the happiness that only a background of artistic and comfortable furnishings can give to summertime. No home is too large—none too small—for our kind of happiness.

MURRAY PILGRIMAGE TO GLOUCESTER

One Hundred Fiftieth Anniversary of Founding of Universalist Church will be Observed August 26-29

GLOUCESTER, famed for fisher heroism and glorious in tradition, and incidentally the greatest salt fish manufacturing port in the world, and unsurpassed as a summer resort, will extend the most cordial of greetings to all who participate in the Murray Pilgrimage, August 26-27-28-29. The arrangements at Gloucester for this 150th anniversary celebration are being cared for by a committee comprising all the parishioners of the First Church, and the stupendous task is fast being systematized and orderly plans are emerging from the chaos of a beginning. The applications being received by the registration committee, Cheever L. Hersey, chairman, indicate that the interest in the Pilgrimage is nation-wide, and that it will be the most important event in the history of the Universalist church since the wondrous 100th celebration of fifty years ago, when thousands journeyed by train, stage-coach and chaise to Gloucester, where the ancient spirit of hospitality is never-failing.

The program as outlined is as follows: The celebration will occupy Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, August 26-29. It will present Universalist history by means of pageant, addresses, sermons and visitations of historic shrines. It will stimulate enthusiasm by means of great meetings directed by strong speakers. It will combine recreation with a consideration of the serious problems before our church. There will be excursions by motor boat, and automobile. There will be bathing, and strolls along the shore. There will be sunrise services and campfire meetings down on the sand. There will be special gatherings of those interested in the different departments of denominational work.

Among all the other objects of this celebration, there should be placed first the fact that this great meeting is first of all to bring together the largest number of Universalists and the largest number of churches from the widest limits of territory ever gathered in the history of the denomination. And in the second place, it is to send this great multitude out into the world with a new enthusiasm for Universalism to perform the finest service for humanity which the church has ever attempted. One of the special features will be the assembly of Universalist comrades, made up of the business men from the churches, who will discuss plans and programs and from this meeting go forth to their churches to perform a man's service for the faith in connection with the crusade.

In order to give balance and variety to each day, the Colonial interior of Independent Christian (Universalist) Church, Middle st., Gloucester

mornings of Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be devoted to addresses, the afternoons to recreation, and the evening to the pageant, lectures, and social events. Every day will be opened with a sunrise service down on the sands of the rocks of the sea, and the day will close with campfire services lit by fires of driftwood.

Three hundred will take part in the Pageant on Friday and Saturday evenings, and the program will include several unique dances.

The Rev. William H. Rider, D. D., will be the prolocutor; the Salem Cadet Orchestra, 40 pieces, will play; all under the direction of Charles H. Hillman, who served in the "Princess Pats" for four years and a half.

Added attractions will include visits to the fishing establishments, "taking in" the famous North Shore drives, boating and bathing, daybreak bathing parties, and young peoples' jollifications in the evening, around driftwood fires on the beach at Stage Fort Park, where all the 150th anniversary exercises will be held.

On Saturday afternoon a reception will be tendered the young folks attending the celebration, at Annisquam, by the many Universalists who summer at this mecca of the artists, and on the same day the First Universalist church of Salem, Rev. Ulysses Sumner Milburn, pastor, will keep open house to receive and entertain any of the pilgrims who care to visit the "Witch City" on that day.

A noted Essex County caterer will care for the wants of the inner man, meals being served under a big tent. Space has also been reserved for the checking of a thousand autos at the Park

All indications point to the fact that nearly every State, as well as far away Japan, will be represented at this celebration to honor the illustrious character, the Reverend John Murray, and his brilliant achievement of establishing the Faith of Universalism in the World.

Age makes some men cognizant of their lack of wisdom.

It takes a child to make a wise man feel like an ignorant fool.

NEW OCEAN HOUSE AND ANNEX, AT SWAMPSCOTT

NEW OCEAN HOUSE at Swampscott is filled with guests and some of the parlors are being closed at night and used to accommodate the summer guests who are flocking to this popular hotel at Swampscott.

The Black and White ball of the New Ocean House, last Saturday, was a huge success, and the ball room, lobbies, dining room and annex were filled with dancers, who came from up and down the North Shore, garbed in black, white or combinations of the two.

The ladies of the New Ocean House, under the leadership of Mrs. Mary C. Rogan of Boston, are collecting a fund with which to entertain the shell-shocked soldiers, who are quartered in Boston hospitals. It is now planned to hold a fete the middle of August, when the soldiers will be brought to the Shore in automobiles loaned by the guests of the hotel. A buffet lunch will be served on the lawn and the men given a chance to enjoy a swim and other sports. ---

On Sept. 11th Swampscott is planning to hold a Governor's day in honor of Gov. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who are summering at the Swampscott shore. The fete will be held at the New Ocean House and elaborate plans are being made.

Sept. 15 and 16 will be Lynn Rotary club days at the New Ocean House and the national rotarians will be entertained, the huge garage of the hotel being turned into a convention half. It is expected that 500 rotarians will be quartered in the hotel.

The Sunday evening concerts at the New Ocean House are much enjoyed and such artists as Miss Margaret Sanger, the vocalist, and Theodore Hazard Keller, pianist, are to be heard at each concert. The Hundred club orchestra under the direction of Harold Veo provides music this year at the hotel.

On August 18th the annual children's costume ball will be held, and Mrs. Edward R. Grabow will be the hostess of the occasion.

Arthur Delroy of New York was the entertainer at the New Ocean House, Monday, giving an exposé of the ouija board for the guests.

Another formal ball will be held at the New Ocean House on August 14th. This, too, will be attended by the North Shore summer colony.

Among those from Boston registered at the New Ocean House are: W. A. McKenney, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Fuller, John Lodge, Miss Gertrude Harris, W. O. Bacon, Jr., Frank J. Allen and Russell E. Hamlin; also Mrs. Louise B. Tyler, of Milton; Mrs. H. M. Whiting, Brookline; R. M. Lawton, Brookline; Mrs. Grace Felton Rice, West Newton.

Among the arrivals at the New Ocean House during the past week, were the following: W. Burnett, Amherst; Mrs. Thomas Lindsay, J. A. Lindsay, Miss B. Lindsay, Ottawa, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. P. Hill, Augusta, Me.; Mrs. Albert W. Wiggin, Mrs. S. Prescott, New York; Mrs. Mary E. Pohlman, Cleveland, Ohio; Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Hoffman, New York city; Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Woods, A. W. SOCIAL ACTIVITIES ALONG THE NORTH SHORE

Tide Over League Sale at "All Oaks" and the Tony Sarg's Marionettes Among Events of Week

TIDE OVER LEAGUE held one of its most successful sales Tuesday at "All Oaks," the beautiful home in West Manchester of Mrs. Edward S. Grew. The piazza on the fountain side of the house was used to display the exquisitely made articles from the league's workshop in Boston. Mrs. George E. Warren, of Manchester, had special charge of the sale. She was assisted by Mrs. Freeman Allen, Miss Mary C. Burnham, Mrs. Thomas Motley, Jr., Mrs. A. Lawrence Hopkins, Mrs. Charles Downer Hazen, Mrs. Robert Amory, Mrs. Alanson L. Daniels, and Miss Husted and Miss Van Cleve, manager and assistant manager of the shop and salesroom at 296 Boylston st., Boston.

Mrs. Lester Leland, of West Manchester, had charge of the bridge, a feature of the afternoon. The tables, 42 in all, were placed in the sun parlor, hall and drawing room. Among those buying tables were Mrs. Philip Dexter, Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, Mrs. W. B. Thomas, Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Mrs. R. Paul Snelling, Mrs. G. M. Lane, Mrs. Henry P. King, Mrs. Henry E. Russell, Mrs. W. D. Denègre, Mrs. C. C. Converse, Miss Hunt, Miss Edwards, Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson, Mrs. M. G. Haughton, Mrs. Wm. H. Coolidge, Mrs. Reginald Bangs, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, Mrs. John S. Curtis, Mrs. Allen Curtis, Mrs. R. S. Stevenson, Jr., Miss Burnham, Mrs. F. B. Crowninshield, Mrs. Wm. R. Fay, Mrs. Samuel Wolcott, Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, Mrs. George H. Swift, Mrs. T. P. Curtis, Mrs. C. M. Weld, Miss Rosamond Bradley, Miss Rantoul, Mrs. F. P. Frazier, Mrs. Albert I. Croll and Mrs. Chas. P. Curtis, Jr. Prizes were given by one of the members of the committee.

Mrs. Grew's spacious house with its charming piazzas, sun parlor and garden setting made a most delightful place for the several hundred that patronized the sale from morning until late in the afternoon.

The Tide Over League was founded by the late Dr. James Marsh Jackson, of Beverly Farms and Boston.

Tony Sarg's marionettes played before highly appreciable audiences in four performances last Friday and Saturday in Horticultural hall, Manchester. The marionettes were presented by the "Bookshop for Boys and Girls" of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, of 264 Boylston st., Boston. "The Rose and the Ring," by Thackeray, was shown Friday afternoon and evening and Saturday afternoon, with a special performance of one-act playlets put on Saturday morning for children.

Patronesses for these entertainments included the following: Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Mrs. William E. Atwood, Mrs. Samuel Cabot, Mrs.

"All Oaks," Mrs. Edward S. Grew's residence, West Manchester

The fountain at "All Oaks," Mrs. E. S. Grew's estate, West Manchester, showing "The Water Sprites," one of Mrs. Maynard Ladd's most notable pieces of sculpture

Harold L. Chalifoux, Mrs. Russell Codman, Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge, Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, Mrs. Charles K. Cummings, Miss Florence Cunningham, Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, Jr., Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Jr., Mrs. Robert Livermore, Miss Katharine P. Loring, Mrs. William Lowell Putnam, Mrs. Edward P. Richardson, Mrs. Ellery Sedgwick, Mrs. John N. Stevens, Mrs. Roger Sherman Warner, Mrs. Bayard Warren and Mrs. Renton Whidden.

The play, taken from Thackeray's works, has a few local touches in its reproduction. Tony Sarg, of course, designed the royal personages in it according to Thackeray's own sketches.

Lilian Owen, who has her own marionettes in East Gloucester, painted and decorated some of the palaces used, also she "put on their heads, arms and legs, and stuffed their tummies." The armor of King Padella and his charger she forged in the studio of Miss Grace Hazen, a New York artist, long of the East Gloucester colony.

About 150 were present at each of the performances. The little folk and their attendants had a most enjoyable time Saturday morning. "Charlie" was their favorite puppet and whenever he appeared they were wild in their greetings. "Hello! Charlie," and "How old are you, Charlie?" were heard all over the hall. Scenes where they could talk to the puppets and be answered were their greatest delight.

And there was a peculiar, subtle something about these wonderful puppets that made them very human-like so that all ages equally enjoyed them.

Friday afternoon young girls from the summer colony in Ipswich ushered, including Miss Katherine Dodge, Miss Elizabeth DeBlois, Miss Anna Flichtner, Miss Sybil Appleton, Miss Adele Crockett and Miss Florence Fenno.

At the three other performances the ushers consisted of students from the community theatre dramatic school, the Playhouse-on-the-Moors, East Gloucester.

Friday evening Miss Lucile Smith, Mrs. Edward Parsons, Miss Blanch Davis, Miss Edna Davis and Miss Margaret Davis ushered. Saturday morning they were Miss Hazel Sprague, Miss Margaret Lyle, Miss Dorothy Stimson, Miss Mildred J. O'Leary and Stanley Miller. Saturday afternoon the group was made up of Miss Amy Ball, Miss Ruth Evans, Miss Dorothy Stimson and Chas. Edgecomb.

SELDOM has a North Shore musicale been as widely commented upon and so thoroughly enjoyed as was Mrs. Hall McAllister's second in her series, the one taking place last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Coolidge, "Blynman Farm," Manchester.

The artists were an interesting group. John P. Marshall, for many years organist at the Boston Symphony orchestra, played the pipe organ, a superb feature of the Coolidge home. Rudolph Polk, a violinist of rare attainments, whose recitals both in Europe and America have met with great success, gave selections and also accompanied in some of the vocal numbers. Mlle. Germaine Cossini, contralto, gave several selections which brought much applause to this charming and gifted singer so well-known upon the Shore in connection with her French readings. Mlle. Cossini is a concert singer in Paris and this was really her first appearance in a large general concert upon the Shore. Mrs. Nevil Ford, daughter of Mrs. McAllister, was the sympathetic accompanist. Mlle. Cossini wore chestnut colored charmeuse with a hat to match of tulle; Mrs. Ford, pale yellow georgette crepe embroidered in white.

Mlle. Cossini gave "Miserere Mei," by Rabaud, accompanied by the piano, violin and organ. So beautifully was this done that she had to repeat it.

The great hall with its high arched ceiling made a music room of unusual beauty and it, as well as the house in general, was much admired by the guests. The pipe organ is in the hall in the central part of the house and its rich, rolling tones seem to harmonize perfectly with vaulted ceilings and other gothic features of this new home of the Coolidges. The glass-enclosed loggia running the length of the hall and facing the terrace and sea took care of the overflow from the main hall, also the large living-room opening off the hall and loggia. The latter is a charming place with its many flowers, wall fountain, tile floor and arched ceilinga veritable garden-room, conservatory and lounging room combined of exquisite appointments.

Among those present were seen Mrs. Henry F. Sears, Mrs. Edwin A. Ford, Mrs. Malcolm G. Haughton, Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot, Miss Edwards, Mrs. William A. Parker and her sister, Miss Olivia Ames, Mrs. Alexander Steinert, Miss Stone, Mrs. Edward J. Holmes, Mrs. John Hays

REPUBLICANISM through and through was the keynote of every word uttered at the conference of women of the first, second and third senatorial districts in Essex county, of the Republican party, at the Unitarian parish house, Beverly, in their all-day session on Wednesday. Mrs. Charles S. Bird, of Walpole, chairman of the women's division, presided at the morning session. Miss Katharine P. Loring, of Pride's Crossing, had charge of the afternoon meeting. The morning was taken up with reports from the various officers and an address by Mrs. Frederick P. Bagley. Mrs. William Follett will have charge of the work in Manchester.

The ladies had luncheon together in Beverly, and then gathered for the afternoon meeting, which was open to the public. Mrs. Bird again spoke. Wm. S. Felton, of Salem, welcomed the women into the Republican party, and Hon. John M. Gibbs and Mrs. James D. Tillinghast made addresses.

Mrs. Bird's spirit is shown when she says: "I am a Republican because I am convinced that that is the party that can do more than any other for men, women and The record of the Democratic party the past eight years has made us view with alarm what might result from a continuation of that party in power.

The Hon. Mr. Gibbs made a strong appeal to women's love of home and country and said they should take just as much interest in the country's welfare as in their club, home, church or education of their children. pleaded for the high idealism in these and the coming days as was experienced in war days.

Hammond, Miss Elizabeth Hammond, Miss Natalie Hammond, Mrs. Robert de Wolfe Sampson, Mrs. William H. Coolidge, Jr., Mrs. Samuel S. Stevens and Samuel Endicott and several other men. So thoroughly did these men folk, seldom seen at an afternoon musicale, enjoy Mr. Marshall's playing that they lingered and had a private musicale by themselves after the other guests had departed. Mrs. Coolidge and her son, William H., Jr., the latter a student of Mr. Marshall, play their organ, one of the three or four installed upon the Shore.

His strong point was that personality should not count in an election, but the principles for which a man stood should be the guiding point that ought to influence people to choose their party.

In closing he said, "Let us put our trust in the party that stands for good laws governing child labor, that believes in woman suffrage, preparedness, and good immigration laws." If there had been a Democrat in the audience she would have had a complete change of thought by the time Mr. Gibbs had finished his eloquent talk.

Before introducing the next speaker, Miss Loring told a little story that she said perhaps no one knew. She also said that she knew the characters:

"Once when Thomas Jefferson came visiting in Beverly and Salem after he had been President, he went through a museum in Salem and left his name upon the guest book. Two little girls of Salem, fond of their beloved museum and steeped in the atmosphere of opposition to Jefferson (who compares almost identically with President Wilson as brought out by the next speaker), saw this hated name upon the book. They worried over it and arose one morning at six o'clock, hastened to the museum and tore out the leaf, feeling that they had done something for their Salem."

Mrs. Tillinghast made a masterful address from the historical standpoint, tracing the origin of both parties from their beginning down to the present, and bringing out contrasts in every way favorable to the Republican party.

Sure the women are in earnest and may they vote in November as Mrs. Bird predicts.

DR. AND MRS. ELISHA FLAGG, of Boston, have the attractive Dexter cottage on Common lane, Pride's Crossing. This is one of the secluded houses of the Shore, up on the hill opposite the railway station. Oaks and pines surround it. The most noticeable feature about the place that makes it different from other houses is the great stone arch built over the front doorway. This is made of boulders and is a continuation of the lower part of the house, while the upper half of the cottage is made of stucco. The arched doorway has somewhat the resemblance of an under view of a bridge with stone arches.

RLYNMAN FARM, the estate of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Coolidge, in Manchester, has one of the ideal gardens according to the garden architect, Mary Rutherford Jay. It lies next the house and is entered from the end terrace of the house by a set of rough stone steps with graceful plantings on either side of them.

The first garden-room entered is called the fountain garden. Here the large general garden is centered with a pool and on one side is a shady resting place. The garden can thus be enjoyed from the terrace above or one can sit and look over it from the resting place within. Passing through this section the rose garden is entered. If Miss Jay could see it we think most likely she would call the fountain garden the out-door living-room, but the charming little rose garden, well, it might be likened to milady's boudoir, "done in pink and green."

Miss Jay's special line of thought which she emphasized in her lecture at Dr. and Mrs. J. Henry Lancashire's, heard by so many Shore folk, in their Manchester home recently, was that gardens should lie close to the house and be places where family life could be carried on in warm weath-

So after passing through Mrs. Coolidge's two gardens the lower, park-like grounds surrounding the little pond are reached. All of the grounds are exceedingly well-kept and we know that the National Civic Federation would enjoy having this place opened to the public, especially in rose

THE MISSES STURGIS, of "Rookwood," Manchester, enjoy a tiny brick-walled garden spot on the edge of rocks separating their place from the water and Dana's beach section. Old-fashioned flowers around this low ornamental brick wall and roses and vines climbing over it make it a pretty feature of the garden. The path leading over the rocks and through a thickly shaded part of the grounds brings one finally to an open lawn space. High above this stretch of lawn stands the home of Mrs. Greely S. Curtis and her daughters. Stone steps lead from below up to the house. Flowers edge the rocks around the steps and along the sides of the open space below. This is used as a croquet ground and is the largest lawn space about the estate. Trees and rocks and everything wild and in a natural state seem to be characteristic of "Sharksmouth," so long the home of the Curtis family.

The path joining "Rookwood" and "Sharksmouth" is one of unusual beauty. In its vicinity is where Charles Hopkinson, the Boston artist, and son-in-law of Mrs. Curtis, has found much inspiration. Mr. and Mrs. Hopkinson and their children are year-round residents in a cottage on the Curtis estate.

ARTHUR B. SILSBEE, Prince st., Beverly Cove, has a summer home on one of the most picturesque points along the Shore. The Silsbee place was purchased before the Civil war by Mr. Silsbee's father, as was also the Dexter place settled by that family before the war. Both chose wonderfully interesting points of the Shore. Miss Fannie Mason's attractive place encircles the Silsbee home. It is through her grounds that the avenue leads up to the Silsbee house.

Lying between Mr. Silsbee's place and the home of Dr. and Mrs. Franklin Dexter, is a charming little cove and sandy beach. The Dexter home shows up well with its masses of vines almost concealing the structure of the house. The long pier leading out into the water is from the Dexter place.

Just beyond is the thickly wood land in which "Skerryvore" is hidden away. It is the home of Wm. H. Wellington and his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. S. Burt Wolbach, and their little children.

While standing on the rocky point on the waterside of the Silsbee home the other day, we took in this beautiful panorama. No fairer picture can be seen of thick woods with summer homes nestling in them, rocks big and little along the water's edge, and a tiny beach to show that sand can exist here and there where only rocks seem to abound. Then casting the eye seaward is seen the glorious stretch of sea and islands off the Beverly coast.

The following from Scribner's seems to exactly fit this point, although we know it fits all points, practically, along the Shore:

"It sounds like a paradox to state that you may look out from rugged cliffs over a summer sea and inhale its salt fragrance, and yet by a turn of your heel find yourself face to face with a landscape of rustic meadows and stately woods.'

And yet Mr. Sillsbee said there was nothing to write about his place!

HERE and THERE with NORTH SHORE FOLK HERE and THERE with NORTH SHORE FOLK THEIR VARIED INTERESTS AND ACTIVITIES

MRS. ALBERT IVINS CROLL, of Gales Point, Manchester, brought a new interest to the Shore last week when she opened her beautiful home for a sale of articles made at Llewsac lodge, Bedford. Mrs. Croll is planning to have other sales, if nothing more this season another year will see more of the work done at this lodge, a dependence of the Frances E. Willard settlement in Boston.

Mrs. Croll rcently became interested in the work through Miss Eva K. Foster, of Brookline, sister of Mrs. Wm. A. Tucker, of West Manchester, and both were made directors. Philip Stockton is a member of the present advisory board and Herbert M. Sears was on last year's board.

The Boston settlement has the usual cares of a strong social settlement in a great city.

Llewsac lodge, in which Mrs. Croll is specially interested, is an all-year rest home for women between forty and sixty years of age. It gives assistance to women needing a change or financial, physical, or spiritual aid. A small price is asked for board. Younger working women enjoy weekends at the lodge.

Work is looked upon as a "cure" at the lodge. Women spend their resting time in some form of different occupation from their usual trend. They weave, preserve, make baskets, do embroidery, sew, etc., thus earning part of their board while enjoying the lodge beautifully situated on old Billerica rd., Bedford.

The articles displayed at Mrs. Croll's last Thursday were of the finest workmanship possible. They included dainty linens and rugs and bags all woven on the looms at Llewsac, besides aprons, children's dresses and other useful pieces of lingerie. Orders are taken at any time for this

Llewsac lodge is fully appreciated by those who have been within its friendly doors as may be testified by their remarks:

"You can never, never know how much it has meant to me to have had this haven of rest for these trying months."

"I am sure I was never in a place outside of a private home where the atmosphere was so delightful, the friendliness so genuine and the spirit so loyal."

"I don't see how any one can stay here without feeling the beautiful Christian spirit in this home life. Certainly no one can go away from here without being the better for her stay at Llewsac."

"To the tired city dweller the sense of space and wide horizons is in itself soothing. When one has grown soulweary of brick walls and paved streets and the crowds of people who do not care, it is restful to go where one may be free in the out-door world, to wander away by oneself. And for those who have felt the overwhelming loneliness of the city—and there is no other loneliness to be compared to itthe cheerful companionship of others who are friendly without being inquisitive is equally comforting."

Miss Rosalind Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Madison Wood, of Pride's Crossing and Boston, is one of the Shore folk continuing her war work to the present day. This is Miss Wood's third year at Cuttyhunk island, on the South Shore, where she and Mrs. Samuel McCoomb, wife of the Rev. Dr. McCoomb, of Boston, are in charge of a convalescent home for wounded officers.

It is a home-like place, really a club for the convalescent men, accommodating thirty patients. Only wounded officers are taken as cases of communicable diseases are not treated. Every effort is made to keep the spirit of the place as near like a private home as possible. It is an organization connected with the American Red Cross, charitable and hospitable in its purpose and plans.

Miss Wood only makes occasional visits to see her parents at Pride's Crossing, preferring to devote all her time and energies to the work on the island.

THE MAGNOLIA SHOPS NOTES OF INTEREST

By GLADYS H. RICHARDS

WHAT could be more delightful than a ride along the beautiful North Shore Drive, with its sweet woodsy perfume and fresh ocean breezes, to the Magnolia Shops. These attractive little shops hold a very real position in the social activities of the North Shore colony, for the women know that if a gown must be had for a certain function—"something different from what I've been wearing"— it can be found at Magnolia.

Decorations to make the summer cottage inviting and "homey" can also be secured in the shops, as well as quaint little novelties for gifts.

To prepare for the social festivities of August-and there promises to be a great many—we must have loads of dance frocks and dinner gowns. The soft lines this season are so charmingly becoming that there is really no difficulty in selecting, except as to color, and that has been made easy by the large variety of perfectly blended colors on display. First of all we shall visit Hickson's, whose lovely "things" are so irresistibly attractive. A dance frock of pearl grey chiffon has just been brought down here, and, of course, we are the very first to get a glimpse of it. It has a long softly full overskirt of chiffon, smartly finished at the bottom with a wide band of grey squirrel. A unique note has been struck in this altogether desirable little gown by the square insertion of filet lace in the over-skirt. The underskirt-also of chiffon—has the modishly pretty turkish effect at the bottom. The bodice has the florentine neck line, with a deep yoke of the filet, also finished with a band of squirrel. A wide silver girdle lends its charm in completing the air of simple elegance of the tout ensemble.

Exquisitely beautiful is the wrap of soft rose chiffon velvet, with its deep collar reaching almost to the waist line. Rows of wide ostrich feathers give the collar the appearance of being sectioned. A charming contrast is the lining of turquois blue silk. Richly lovely and luxuriously "comfy" this wrap would win the heart of any lover of the beautiful.

A gown, a wrap, and now a fall suit! All of us—even those who couldn't possibly wear rose—were quite lost in admiration of that lovely wrap, and were reluctant to turn our attention away, but then a fall suit—well, it's a fall suit, and everybody knows that the fall wardrobe is in grave danger unless it is attended to right away, for the first thing we know we shall wake up some fine morning to find that presto! summer has been changed into golden autumn.

The manager tells us that there is quite a stunning suit of henna—"But wait a minute," she adds, "this is a decidedly 'different' henna,"—and it is! The coat is long— as Dame Fashion dictates for the fall—and is hand-embroidered with black chenile squares. The distinctive collar is of seal, as are the cuffs. But the word "cuffs" does not describe them in the very least. There is a decided flare to the fur on the cuffs, which is finished in points. The cloth sleeves and cuffs fit closely and independently.

A very new hat is of American beauty velvet, its only trimming being heckle feathers of the same shade.

An alluringly attractive gown, and one that is very distinctive, at Ruby's, is of orchid taffeta, daintily soft in line and drapery. An over-skirt of shadow lace and a touch of floating silk net adds a charming finish. Another pretty gown is of brown tulle over yellow taffeta trimmed with gold lace. The yellow and gold gleaming through the net make the gown triumphantly lovely.

A coat at this select little shop that is smartly practical is of silk jersey with deep tucked collar and wide sleeves. It is lined throughout with silk, which makes it conveniently easy to slip on.

A dress of canton crepe tastefully embroidered in gold lama in the back is very French—as indeed all of their styles are—and has the narrow panel. The front is very simple; an echo of the embroidery appears and a unique belt formed, it would seem, of the ends of the back bodice, is caught loosely with a buckle of the same material.

And still more pretty gowns and frocks! At Bonwit Teller's a richly simple gown is of black crepe meteor, embroidered with gold beads. This charming gown has the straight chemise lines, except for the fitted effect at the sides, which are caught in with bows of black satin ribbon having long streamers. A blue crepe meteor gown has the all-over bead bodice and apron, with a graceful drapery of the crepe in the back. On either side harem panels are also of the beads. This gown like the first has the high back and low front neck effect.

Piquantly dainty is the frock of peach georgette, with its over-drapery of chenile dots of the same color. Points of georgette finish this smart flounce, and the narrow sash of two-toned satin ribbon adds a dash of contrasting color. A lovely grey georgette gown for dinner or evening wear has pretty designs embroidered with tiny silver stars.

Moving further along towards the back of the store we catch a forbidden glimpse of a gown that is being made ready for display,—and nothing will do but we must see it at close quarters. It is made entirely of black beads with just a touch here and there of the sequins by way of variety. Strings of beads hanging on a net foundation make this straight little gown adorably attractive. A harem panel of the sequins form the sides, and the loose girdle is fastened with a cut jade buckle.

A very beautiful wrap is of imported duvetyne, black, with novel designs of white wool. White fur forms the deep collar and the facing which extends to the bottom of the wrap. Smartly attractive, this wrap may be used for afternoon or evening wear.

We are told en passant that Miss Noonan, the manager, has just returned from New York today (Friday), but no amount of coaxing will win for us entrance to the sacred portals of the room where the new things are, but we are promised that they will be there on display the first of next week.

The purple and white window at Farr's is very effective. In the centre is a long woolen cape, so much worn this season, with a deep soft collar of white. On either side are slip-on sweaters of purple silk and the touch of white is made by the silk stockings and white sports skirt of pleated jersey.

Simply adorable are the exquisite sets of "undies" displayed in the window at McCutcheon's this week. These are hand-made of linen or silk, and are exquisitely lovely as well as practical—a difficult combination. A beautiful negligee is of turquois silk with bloused back and surplice front, which could be used as a house gown. Another negligee equally attractive is of pink silk with a smart little lace coat; it is trimmed with two-toned ribbon.

Everyone knows about their irresistible linen handkerchiefs, so daintily made of their rarely fine linens.

McCutcheon's have also a "find" in scarfs, which are an absolute necessity. They are of duvetyne, quaintly designed in soft colors, and have the wide chenile fringe. Others are of silk and soft wool, and they, too, have the very wide fringe.

In the window at John Lauther's a golf shoe that is very smart is the English brogue with the over-lapping fringed tongue, which protects the laced opening from the moisture. There are also attractive sports shoes of buckskin and leather in black and white, both with the Cuban and flat rubber heels.

At Ovington's, the home of delightful novelties, the new clock mirror is being very much admired by visitors to this attractive little shop. The mirror is panel-shaped and at the top appears the square gold face of a clock, which is conveniently large. It goes on an eight-day movement, though truly the mirror looks perfectly flat and it does not seem possible that the clock's anatomy is hidden somewhere in back. The tout ensemble is attractive and quaintly simple.

A beautiful refreshment set catches our eye next and we are all curiosity immediately. The wicker table is sectioned to hold the pitchers and glasses, while concealed in the centre of the table is a metal container for the ice and bottles. The serving tray forms the cover of the container. Tastefully displayed are also glass plates for salad and ice cream in topez, blue, amber, green and purple, and, indeed, all the very prettiest colors.

And what little tot could be lonesome in the night with bunny, the nursery lamp, in the room to keep him company? Why, his nose almost wiggles! He has lovely eyes which light the room softly, and he can be attached anywhere in the room. And the secret of bunny's illumination is just an electric globe hidden away right out or sight.

In this week's tour we shall visit a store not included on previous weeks—MaKanna's. This is the first season on the Shore for this company, which is, however, well-known in Boston. Dresses, hats and exquisitely simple "undies" are all made by hand and trimmed only with the real lace. A distinctive little dress on display is of dotted Swiss, with surplice front, and wide ties in the back. There is also a hat to match this gown, and a hat can be made to match any gown ordered. There is also a tasteful selection of lace and linen in luncheon sets and table covers. The lovely little collar and cuff sets, with Italian hemstitching, and edged with lace, are made in their Magnolia shop, and we are surprised at the short wait involved.

Again we are charmed with our visit to Mrs. Bill's

Shop, which finishes an altogether delightful shopping trip. Once more we are spell-bound with the beauty of the view from the cozily furnished piazza, which fronts the ocean. The waves, with their pretty fluffy caps, break gently on the wide stretch of grey sand, and here and there we catch a distant glimpse of a bird which swoops down, touches the water lightly, and then rises once more in graceful flight. But we are very impatient to see the new things which have come in since our last visit, and so let us leave the piazza for a short time.

We find that two entire green temple incense sets, used for mantle garnitures in this country, have been added to the large collection of Chinese and Japanese art. These sets consist of two vases, two candle sticks and a large incense burner. In the temples of China the vases are used for joss sticks, the candle sticks for torches and, of course, the incense burner for incense. One of these sets includes the old carved wood torches.

In looking around, Mrs. Bill tells little anecdotes of this piece and that, adding greatly to the interest and helping us to understand just what they are used for. There are two images of the sacred dog which have actually been buried, following the Chinese custom, and have now been recovered. Indeed, there are several images, which had been buried with their dead by the Chinese, at the shop.

There are quaint little fans, and jewelry and many, many unique and inviting little Chinese and Japanese pieces.

The camphor chests, made of the real camphor wood, are also desirably beautiful and practical. An exquisite little wine cup is made from the horn of a rhinoceros, and is very beautiful in color.

The Marie Earle toilet preparations at Bonwit Teller's are proving a source of interest to North Shore folk. These preparations are well-known in Paris, London and New York, and are equally popular on the North Shore. A representative of Marie Earle is now at Bonwit Teller's, where she gives consultations, and makes appointments for home treatments.

A very distinctive and very smart pair of shoes in the window at Thayer McNeil's are of white, with pretty bandings of patent leather as trimmings, and a modified French patent leather heel. North Shore patrons are finding their shoe-cleaning department a great convenience.

OLD-TIME WALL PAPERS AND REPRODUCTIONS

Rare Collection Shown by the Bixby Co. in Salem

"LD-TIME wall papers and reproductions" sometimes form the subject of interesting articles in the magazines, but seldom are people privileged to look upon the articles and purchase, if they so desire. For more than a generation the house of Bixby, on Essex st., Salem, has been the mecca for people who desired to find the best in wall papers. Here the most particular could always find one of the largest lines in New England, and always one of the Old-time wall papers and reproductions may be found at Bixby's today in larger quantities, greater varieties and more choice assortment than at any store in New England. People from Boston and Lynn, and more distant points, in fact, as well as the North Shore towns, seek this old-time Essex County store for this sort of thing in preference to Beginning Monday, August 16, and continuing for the balance of August the house of Bixby will make its annual exhibition of old-time wall papers and reproductions. A cordial invitation is extended to North Shore peoplesummer residents, hotel guests, as well as year-round dwellers-to call at their store, 242 Essex st. (just out of Town House sq.), and see this collection, regardless of any intention whatever of purchasing.

LITTLE BETTINA

By Rebecca T. Hodges

(Concluded)

DARKNESS had fallen as they drew up their chairs by the white spread kitchen table.

"I ask no greater heaven," Pierre cried, lifting the cup of steaming coffee to his lips and looking into his wife's eyes.

A faint sound came from the other room.

"What is that?" asked Pierre, curiously.

"O, that-" stammered Marie, the color draining from her cheeks.

Again the cry came. "Why, what is that?" he repeated. "It sounds like a

He glanced questioningly at her.

She had grown ashy white and hid her face in her

Pierre pushed back his chair and strode across the floor and threw open the door.

On the bed lay a fair-haired blue-eyed baby whimpering and holding out its hands.

"Whose child is that!" demanded Pierre, imperiously. Marie dragged herself up from the table and leaned weakly against the door.

He grasped her roughly by the arm.

"Tell me, Marie, you hear me! Tell me the truth! Whose child is that!"

With dry, twisted lips she whispered, "Mine."

Pierre brushed his hand uncertainly across his fore-

The child began to cry and Marie walked over to the bed and picked it up. It lay there in her arms cooing and twining its little finger in her dark hair.

"Yours!" Pierre thundered. "Where did you get it!" "O, Pierre, dear, dear Pierre," she cried, wildly. "Do listen to me and try to understand. I knew you didn't realize what had happened. Ask anybody—ask anyone here in the village and they will all tell you the same thing! I could not help it! I was here all alone. The German captain was quartered here in this house for over a month. I had to wait on him hand and foot. I could not help it-I was a prisoner—I prayed for death and I longed, O, so much, that I had the courage to kill myself—but I was so afraid and I longed for you, O, dear, dear Pierre," she pleaded as she saw his stormy and averted face-"do understand and forgive me!"

"So that is what you meant all the time!" he shouted, his face white with rage. "Don't touch me!" He shook off her trembling, appealing hand.

"Put that thing down!" he commanded, pointing to the wondering baby.

"Why, Pierre," she sobbed, holding it more tightly to her breast. "This is my baby—it is mine—it isn't her fault, poor little helpless thing."

"What do you intend to do with it," he demanded, shaking with anger. "You certainly can't keep it!"

Marie cried out sharply. "O, Pierre, what do you mean! This is as much my child as any baby could ever

You don't know what you say!"

"Yes, I do," he retorted, grimly. "It means one or the other of us. I won't have that thing here with me, that is one sure thing: I can forgive you in time, although God knows it is an awful blow-but never will I be reminded every minute of every day of what has happened. You'd far better have died. Choose!" he thundered.

"How can you be so brutal!" she cried. "O, do be fair, my Pierre, my husband. I love my baby because she is mine and I have fed her and played with her and watched her grow. She has brought sunshine to me when only the darkest, blackest night was around me. O, dearest Pierre, you are the only man I adore, my darling! Little Bettina will never bother you—you will learn to love her yourself in time because she is mine."

"As sure as there is a God in Heaven, I won't!" he swore, as he wrenched open the door. "Take that child out of this house or I'll leave."

Bettina reached up a chubby, dimpled hand and clutched her mother's ear.

Pierre gave one look as Marie buried her face in the baby's dress-then slammed the door behind him and dashed down the flagstone path into the street and out of Sobbing hysterically, Marie laid the baby on the bed and threw herself in a passion of weeping on the floor.

Little Bettina lay on her back in the middle of the bed and cooed as she played with her toes.

Hours later, weak and faint, Marie straightened the kitchen. Mechanically she poured out the cold, untasted coffee from the cups and put away the bread and meat. She folded the linen cloth—the pitiful remnant of their celebration and laid it neatly in the drawer. She fed the hungry and complaining little intruder and then crawled into bed beside her.

There were no more tears left. She felt like an old, old woman so surfeited with bygone emotions that the springs had long since dried.

"This part of my life is over," she realized, in dumb despair. "Pierre will never, never come back. How can I bear it! I thought nothing more terrible could ever come "Pierre will never, never come back. How can I to me—but this is the worst—this is the end of everything."

The sleeping baby beside her stirred and half sighed, and Marie reached over with a caressing and reassuring pat. The little fingers curled around her hand and Marie sobbed anew, but a faint hint of peace seemed to enfold her.
"O, my little baby, I could never give you up," she breathed. "But what a dreadful tragedy you have brought with you!"

She fell asleep toward morning and when she awoke the sun was bright and warm in the sky. As she kissed the little rose leaf cheek she felt anew the wave of black despair and the whole force of what it meant swept over

She sprang wildly out of bed.

"I must work and work hard and long and always," she thought. "I can never stop, for then I will think and think and think."

Old Father René stopped in that morning. She heard him come up the path and the tap tap of his cane on the stones. Then he stopped to play with Bettina who was creeping on the grass before the door.

"My child," the aged priest called to her. "I am thankful for your happiness. I hear that Pierre is at home on leave."

She stopped short and leaned weakly against the table. "O, Father René," she answered, tragically. "Pierre is here no more. He came last night, but left almost at once. He will never return," she told him, simply.

"Why, my child," the priest came slowly toward her with outstretched hand. "What do you mean?"

"Pierre has gone, Father," she repeated. "He came last night. We were so happy. I didn't know a reunion could be so beautiful. But he didn't know of Bettina—he couldn't seem to understand, and he said that I could not have him and her, too. I nearly died, Father," she continued, dumbly. "I never can be carefree again. But Bettina is my baby-I couldn't throw her away. I didn't see that there was anything else to do - so I have kept her - and Pierre, my husband, has gone—forever."

She stood before the understanding and sympathetic priest with unseeing eyes.

"My child, you did the right thing, I believe, in the sight of God. He would not have you turn away the little innocent living soul of that dear, helpless baby, I know. And it may be that perhaps in time Pierre will come back."

"No, Father." She shook her head sorrowfully. "He will never come back."

With bowed head he turned away and left the grief-laden girl alone.

The weeks dragged by. Marie never knew how or why. Day by day Bettina grew and laughed and wound herself still more tightly around her mother's heart. The first day she took a step alone, Marie laughed aloud and the passing Father heard it and rejoiced in it.
"O, Time—the great Healer," he thought.

Each day Marie went down to the village or up to the big chateau to help in any way that she could. Some American women had transformed the halls and rooms into hospital wards and any aid that the village women could give to them was eagerly seized.

"I love that little Marie," Helen Sturges exclaimed one day, taking off her nurse's cap and sinking down on the chateau steps. Miss Smith, the thin and competent head nurse, sat beside her.

"She has a tragic face to me, Helen," she answered.

"She has suffered. Is her husband living?"

"Yes, I suppose he is," Helen replied. "At least he, was the last Marie knew. You know she was right in the path of the German invasion and the inevitable happenedso when Pierre came home for a few days' leave he found the baby—and raised all kinds of a fuss—and left. She is the pluckiest little thing I ever saw."

"Isn't that just like a man!" Miss Smith snorted. "You would think that any one would have realized her helpless condition and felt sorry for her.'

"Well, Marie told me that the trouble all hinged on Bettina, the baby. Pierre might have been induced to overlook her part in the affair, but the baby-never!"

"It is surely tough luck," Miss Smith acknowledged. "Perhaps he is killed, so he couldn't return anyway."

"Marie is really broken-hearted over the whole affair. It is only her devotion to the baby that makes life worth while for her," Helen said, readjusting her cap. Then she rose to her feet. "Dear me—but I'm tired! How I do love those Germans!" She yawned wearily and went back into the building.

New drives brought fresh daily loads of horror to the hospital and Marie was called on for almost hourly aid. She waited on the footsore and weary nurses and did the thousand little petty, yet necessary, and disagreeable tasks that the life required.

A closer and closer bond of friendship grew between the American woman and the little helpful, devoted French girl.

And then came the armistice.

Waves of hysterical rejoicing swept over the world and the little town with its hospital staff joined in the tumultuous thanksgiving.

Mrs. Sturges went down corridor after corridor reassuring the wounded that it was "all over." Marie followed by her side.

Then she spoke timidly. "Madame, may I speak to you one moment?"

"Why, certainly, Marie, child," the older woman assured her, kindly. "Come out on the terrace. No one will disturb us and I'm sure I need the rest a minute myself. Now, what is troubling you?" she asked, sinking down on

Marie seated herself and folded her hands tightly to-

"O, Madame, the war is over. Soon, thank God, the men will be coming back to their homes, to their work, to their loved ones. As for me," she shrugged her shoulders and gave Mrs. Sturges a pathetic little smile. "I have no one any more. You know my story. Pierre will never return. Let me go back to America with you, dear Madame. There I will work for you any way you say. I can sew or cook, and then my little Bettina can grow up an American. She need never know. O, dear Madame Sturges, do say yes and let me go."

Marie leaned forward and gazed beseechingly into Mrs.

Sturges' eyes.

Helen listened thoughtfully and turned it over in her mind. Then she put out her hand impulsively and grasped Marie's arm.

Marie, I'll do it! You and Bettina shall go home with me. There you can forget everything and begin all over again. Dr. Sturges and I will see that Bettina is taken care of and has an education. It is the very least we can do."

"O, dear Madame, you will never be sorry. And you will teach me English?"

"Positively. Now don't worry at all, Marie. I'll go back to America just as soon as I can be spared and you and Bettina shall go, too."

Miss Smith approved heartily of the plans when Helen

"No, I don't believe you will ever regret it," she said. "She is so anxious to leave here and her devotion to you is amazing.'

"I want to leave at the first possible opportunity. Dr. Sturges is now at several big hospitals and I'd like to be back at home before he gets there. There will be quite a bit to do before we can pick up the threads of living again.'

So, in the spring, Helen Sturges, with wide-eyed Marie and toddling Bettina under her care, landed in New York. In spite of everything Marie found herself increasingly interested in all the new, strange things about her; and after the inland train trip when they drove up to the comfortable rambling home set far back among the trees of the yard, she sighed for joy and contentment.

"This is your home, Marie—yours and Bettina's," Mrs.

Sturges said, smilingly, as they went up the steps.
"Maggie, you dear, good soul—how are you?" She threw her arms around the smiling, tearful Irish woman who had flung open the door.

"The saints be praised! Ye are back safe and sound!"

Maggie cried, crossing herself. "And, Maggie," continue continued Mrs. Sturges, "I have brought back this little French girl and her baby-Marie Ledouc and little Bettina. We will put them for the present in the room at the end of the hall right beside yours. Now we must help Marie with her English, too, Maggie. She wants to learn so badly."

Then she turned and spoke to Marie.

"You go with Maggie—I know the baby is tired."

Maggie, talking volubly, ushered the tired travelers into the spotless, clean room. A soft braided rug was on the floor—white curtains at the windows—comfortable chairs and a big wide bed.

"And this is mine," Marie sighed blissfully as she undressed the weary Bettina and put her between the soft, clean sheets.

Happy, busy weeks sped by. Bettina, rosy and chubby, chattered continually in her newly-learned English. She twisted around her baby fingers the women of three nationalities, the Irish, the American and the French. She and dewy, sat on the floor playing with her dolls. divided her time impartially and smilingly between the kitchen, the gardens or drawing-room and her mother's sewing room. Her yellow, bobbing curls endeared her wherever

And then one day Mrs. Sturges had the letter written at New York from her husband. She wept for joy as she read it over and over.

"I'll get home within a very few days now, and no one knows, dear Helen, how I long for you and home. I am bring a young Frenchman with me. He is to be my chauffeur. He is extremely intelligent. I pulled him through several crises after he lost a leg and he is very happy to be with me. It is a most opportune arrangement, for he is an expert driver and I have seen to it that he has his artificial limb—so he really has no handicap. How can I wait until I see you, dear heart.'

Helen kissed the letter and tucked it into her dress.

The whole house teemed with the preparations for the doctor's welcome and home-coming.

"I am so glad for you, my dear Madame," Marie said, warmly as she tucked in the end of the new, crisp veil she was tying on Mrs. Sturges' hat.

"I must look as nice as possible, Marie," Mrs. Sturges colored girlishly. "I haven't seen the Doctor for four

"That is a long time," Marie assented, sadly, "but you know he will be yours when he does come."

Mrs. Sturges kissed her tenderly as she hurried down the steps to the waiting taxi. There was just time to get to the station before the train came.

Marie walked restlessly up and down. Bettina, fresh

Suddenly she heard Maggie call—"they've come!" She hurried to the door and she and Maggie and Bettina waited on the broad porch as Dr. Sturges, with his wife's arm held tightly in his, came up the path.

He gave the exuberant Maggie a resounding kiss on her broad cheek and a warm grasp to her hand.

"Dear," Mrs. Sturges said, drawing Marie forward, "this is my little French Marie about whom I wrote to you -and here is our adorable Bettina."

Bettina smiled engagingly up at him and he chuckled with delight as he turned to speak to Marie.

But she paid no attention to him. Her eyes, widely dilated, were fixed on the young man coming up the path. He walked stiffly and with a limp.

At that moment he caught sight of her and dropped the bags he had in his hands.

Marie stood absolutely still, her hands tightly pressed to her bosom.

With a sudden, comprehending glance, Mrs. Sturges hurried Maggie and Bettina into the house and whispered a few words to the Doctor. He nodded sympathetically and then, with his arm around Helen's waist went into the hall and closed the door behind them.

Pierre shot one quick look at the curly-headed child, and then as the others disappeared into the house, sprang forward towards the waiting Marie.

"O, my beloved Marie! Have I found you again! Will you ever, ever forgive me?" he cried, holding out both hands.

For answer she lifted a tearful, ecstatic face to his and they stood there clasped in each other's arms.

THE END.

CHILDREN'S ISLAND SANITARIUM

One of the North Shore's Immediate and Nearby Institutions that Deserves Support of Everybody

CHILDREN'S ISLAND SANITARIUM.—What is it? Where is it? Why is it? What, where and why are familiar terms of our curious days. But who says curiosity dies out when we have passed the teens?

Suppose you go with me for a few minutes and satisfy your curiosity about this charitable institution—one that seems a very part of our beautiful North Shore.

Upon arriving at Marblehead Captain Klink cordially meets you at Tucker's wharf in either the small boat, "The Philip," or the large one, which bears the name, "Children's Island, Salem." This large boat was purchased by North Shore folk, the $2,000 paid for it being raised at a bridge tournament and sale of island products at the Pride's Crossing home of the late Mrs. Robert S. Bradley, always an interested friend of the island.

While crossing to the island (about a ten-minute ride) Captain Klink may tell you modestly that he has been connected with the island for 32 years. The first eight years of his married life were spent upon it and two of his children were born there. He then moved over to the mainland so that they might go to school, but kept up his strong interest in his island home. The whole island force declares that the place could not get along without him. Captain Klink took charge of the alterations of the dining-room recently completed and the addition makes an attractive and most commodious room. The ice-plant was also made by him. And so on all through the buildings there are touches of Captain Klink's ingenious hands. This brave sea captain who has gone far and wide in his day is now a prop to the whole working force and spirit of the place.

When you alight upon the island the scenery and the low buildings thrill you with interest. There seems to be a mystic spell hanging over this place. Volunteer helpers are on a waiting list of surprising length. Only a limited number can be taken, but the work is so appealing and farreaching and is so attractively situated that young women are ever offering their services as volunteers.

Miss Ruth B. Railey, head nurse and superintendent, has an assistant, Miss Wheelock, who takes special charge of the hospital work. Both are M. G. H. graduate nurses. The other members of the force consist of 11 volunteers, ten regular workers, eleven maids and two men besides Captain Klink. Archie is the man for general repair work and Fred is the assistant in swimming. Each day, no matter what the temperature of the water is, the kiddies go bathing. Those who cannot walk on account of bad legs and diseased hips and spines are carried into the water and dipped by Fred. This is a new régime resulting in much benefit to the patients.

The children are separated somewhat according to age. The baby room, in charge of Miss Bullard contains a playroom and eating and resting section and a room where some of them sleep. Miss Bullard teaches singing, kindergarten games and construction work to her small charges when they are not playing in the sand box, bathing, eating or sleeping, the three latter occupying a considerable amount of their attention while inmates of the island.

Miss McCreary lives in "Clover Breeze" cottage with 16 older girls. These little girls make their own beds, cook simple desserts and sometimes other food and do a bit of general housekeeping in their section.

Miss Cornwell assists in the dormitories and Miss Ol-ney in the Farwell or "sun-light" room.

The latter is a beautiful room for the bed cases. It has a sunny porch on which the children are carried to eat or to lie in swings. But here is something sad to relate. For the 22 bed cripples there are only a few outside cots for their use and only two or three canvas swings. Think what plenty of swings and hammocks stretched out there would mean for the comfort of these poor little wrecks of humanity. Won't somebody send them a hammock?

This room has a tablet reading "In memory of Marian Farwell, 1892-1915," beneath which is the portrait of the late Miss Farwell, the fiancée of Reginald C. Foster, of

Two Happy Little Friends

Marblehead. The two had visited the sanitarium shortly before her death and were much interested in its work.

A motto reading, "It is not life that matters, but the courage that you bring to it," hangs over the mantel in this room.

The boys have a special room for reading and games on rainy days. Sloyd, basketry, weaving, etc., are also a part of the day's work in a large room used on Sundays for vesper services.

Right here let us remind every one that they are cordially invited to come in their own boats at any time to the island. Any hour of the day something of interest is doing.

On Sundays the boat leaves Tucker's wharf, Marblehead, at three o'clock. Visitors are always gladly taken across. The vesper service in which a vested choir of children sing is held at 3.30. Miss Bullard conducts the service and visitors arriving on the 3 o'clock Sunday boat are just in time for it.

The sanitarium can care for 100 children. This week there were 51 walking cases, 22 bed cripples and 18 babies. Children were being changed also for August, including 42 that had spent six weeks on the island and were considered well enough to be sent back to Boston. There are 75 cases that will be retained the entire season.

Now one place we have said that eating took up considerable time with these poor little undersized patients. Very cunning pictures they make sitting at the neat tables in their sunlight garments. Such a lot of little brown backs and arms and faces it would be hard to find any place. They march into the dining-room, say a short grace and then "fall to." Miss Railey is an expert dietitian and looks after the food in every detail. Breakfast consists of fruit, milk and cereal and bread and butter. Crackers and milk come at 10 a. m. Dinner brings a meat stew or an egg and macaroni substitute, a vegetable and a dessert. Milk is not given with the meat meal. Plenty of green vegetables are used to build up with their mineral salts. Lettuce, especially, is considered good for them. Crackers and milk come again at 3 o'clock. For supper a cooked cereal, bread, butter, milk and sauce are given. Liberal helpings are always given and plates are filled up as often as they are requested—the lifted hand of the child signifying that more is wanted.

The kitchen is a most interesting place. Vera, the cook, is compiling a cook book for the island designating quantities used in making recipes for the number served. Miss Hughes, the housekeeper, has her work down to a fine point and keeps things running smoothly for the island family. Not a fly is seen about the place, which speaks wonders for cleanliness. Kettles holding 20 quarts are used in boiling the vegetables and making of stews. Milk comes in great quantities, 112 quarts a day of Hood's is the summer's allotment.

The volunteers in white with a white apron and white head-dress and the maids in blue make a pretty sight among the little ones in their sunlight garments. If a volunteer stays three months she is now privileged to wear a blue chevron on her arm.

Miss Railey, the superintendent, has a certificate signed by President Wilson stating her length of service overseas, from Sept., 1917, to Feb., 1919. While she was absent Miss Foster and Miss Leghorn took her place.

We might go on almost indefinitely about the cleanliness and order of the place. The neat little beds, the individual towels, tooth brushes and other toilet articles, the white enameled plates and mugs and all that is done for them in a spiritual and mental way as well as the physical. No waste is allowed. Even of water they must be careful. The clean plate before dessert is a rule. Any contributions of books, Victrola records or games and toys all help out in the pleasure side.

But, if you have followed our story carefully, you will see that such an institution requires a large amount for running expenses. The sum of $7,000 is required to keep up the island work and so far only $2,000 has been donated. Any one wishing to send a donation for the support of the place may send it to Mrs. Roger W. Cutler or Mrs. Bayard Warren, both of Pride's Crossing.

FORM OF BEQUEST:

Mrs. Cutler and Mrs. Warren are sending out the annual report of the sanitarium to people all along the Shore. Read them!

The ladies' committee, of which Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, of Marblehead, is chairman, consists of Miss Rosamond Bradley, Mrs. Roger W. Cutler, Mrs. Harry C. Low, Mrs. Wm. E. Russell, Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer, Mrs. Bayard Warren, Mrs. A. G. Grant, Mrs. Robert M. Tappan and Mrs. Geo. S. West, all North Shore folk but the last three mentioned. George S. West is president; Augustus Hemenway, Jr., treasurer; A. G. Grant, secretary; and among others interested is Edward M. Pickman.

Among the Shore members of the corporation are Miss Rosamond Bradley, Mrs. F. B. Crowninshield, Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Cutler, Dr. George P. Denny, Dr. Franklin Dexter, Miss F. M. Faulkner, Miss Edith Fitz, Dr. Elisha Flagg, Reginald C. Foster, Dr. J. E. Goldthwait, W. C. Loring, Dr. H. C. Low, Mrs. Wm. E. Russell, Mrs. Francis W.

Sargent, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Sawyer.

Miss Rosamond Bradley, of Pride's Crossing, one of the former volunteers, and always an interested worker for the island's welfare, has had a new living-room added to the cottage for volunteers. Miss Bradley made this gift in memory of her mother, the late Mrs. Robert S. Bradley, of Boston and Pride's Crossing. It is a charming room of ample size and contains all that would make a girl feel at home after her day's work was completed. Other members of Miss Bradley's family have contributed the furnishings, color scheme of deep blue is effectively carried out in thangings, cushions and rugs. A long table for books as magazines, comfortable chairs and a pleasant place to write are comforts that future volunteers will now enjoy, through the generosity of volunteers who have been there from the Bradley family.

MARBLEHEAD AND A GLIMPSE AT ITS ANTIQUITY

Some of the Interesting Things Seen by a Breeze Writer in a Ramble About the Town

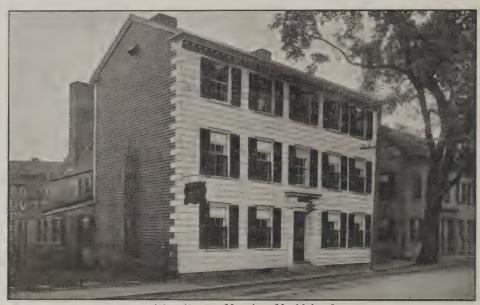

By LILLIAN McCANN

"Remove not the ancient landmark, which thy fathers have set."-Proverbs 22:28.

MARBLEHEAD and a dose of its antiquity were taken in good measure this week by one of the Breeze ramblers. With Dr. and Mrs. Harris P. Mosher's attractive home as an objective point the rambler, after viewing the Mosher antiques, "took in" some more of the old town's famous places. Next week we shall tell you what we saw at Mrs. Mosher's house, also what she is planning to do on Saturday, August 28, when she opens her house and gardens bringing and unpacking baskets and boxes of treasures for the exhibit which opened yesterday. We expressed surprist that so many rare things had been found in the homes the townspeople.

One lady said, in explanation: "The people of Ma blehead were of wealthy English families in many instance Our sea-faring men folk went far and wide and broug home rare things. At one time it was thought best to e for an exhibit and tea in aid of the "Books for Everybody Fund," of the American Library association.

Mrs. Mosher is one of the interested members of the summer colony who is helping out the educational exhibit of antiques which began yesterday, August 5, and continues until next Wednesday at the Lee mansion. Mrs. Mosher has loaned many of her rare dishes to help out in the exhibit. Glass, china, metals and textiles constitute this special exhibit. The house will be open from 10 to 5 and 50 cents a person will be charged, the money to be used for the Marblehead Historical society, which is housed in this old-time mansion.

Before leaving "The Mooring," Mrs. Mosher found out that this rambler had never been inside of the Lee mansion. To all true Marbleheaders that seems unbelievable.

Well, we rambled on down Front st. and soon found ourselves within this noted Lee mansion. It is a mansion of such noble proportions that it seemed like stepping from the present into a dream of the past—the past that tinged of almost princely grandeur. Busy Marblehead women were tablish Harvard college at Marblehead on account of t learning and general thrift of the town, but it was decid that a more inland place would eventually be a better si Then the Revolutionary war came and our men folk we killed off. The families were poor and unprotected in ma ways, but clung zealously to their treasures of better day. These have descended in the families and in that way Mablehead homes have treasures of untold worth as far as a tiquity and educational value are concerned." We the turned from this true Marbleheader, who gloried in the probability of her native place, to view the old house in gener Before we left her she called our attention to an inscription stating that it was Glover's men, of Marblehead, who row Washington across the Delaware.

In 1768 Jeremiah Lee, a wealthy merchant, had t materials of his house carved and fashioned in England a brought to rocky Marblehead for erection. A handsof three-storied mansion was built surmounted by a cupo. The master lived in it only seven years, however, for, at the battle of Lexington he took cold while escaping from the surmounted by the battle of Lexington he took cold while escaping from the surmounted by the battle of Lexington he took cold while escaping from the surmounted by the battle of Lexington he took cold while escaping from the surmounted by the surmounted by the battle of Lexington he took cold while escaping from the battle of Lexington he took cold while escaping from the surmounted by the battle of Lexington he took cold while escaping from the battle of Lexington he took cold while escape he battle of Lexington he took cold while escape he battle of Lexington he took ritish, and died from its effects in 1775. Chief Justice ewall purchased the place and in 1804 sold it to the Marehead bank, from which it was purchased in 1909 by the istorical society.

Upon entering the Lee mansion the sight that impressed e rambler was the great front hall extending to the back the house, with its high ceilings, mahogany wainscoting, in its wonderfully wide and impressive stairway with ind-carved balustrades. The first flight of stairs leads to wide landing, where there is a large oval window flanked of Corinthian columns. The same kind of stairs then connues to the second story. Panelled paper is upon the hall alls. One could linger long in this great hallway imaging doings of the past or in studying the pictures and emems of the old paper.

We passed into the reception room with its rare white anelling and quaint furnishings, then into the banquet som and so on through the house. Room after room resaled the same exquisite panelled wainscoting, the carved iezes, the noble proportions, the attractive pictured wall aper, broad windows with deep seats, panelled shutters, replaces both large and small and old-time furnishings.

The third floor is rich in treasures, also. But you must of leave the old place without climbing up to the cupola. rom here a view of the harbor and town is an interesting ght. While up in the cupola regions take in the old attic ith hand-hewn beams and rafters. The cellar is even of iterest. One can imagine the barrels and bales that must ave been stored here after a trip overseas in the old days.

As we passed through one of the main rooms we saw ortraits of Colonel Lee and his wife. She was Miss Marna Swett, of Marblehead, and eight children were born to them. After Colonel Lee's death Mistress Lee still kept a nost hospitable house. In 1781 Washington had luncheon there, while in 1784 Lafayette was entertained, and we read for Presidents Monroe and Andrew Jackson and others of the other of the property of the mansion.

The rambler does not intend to go into detail about ne china, the old portraits, the Chippendale and Hepplerwaite products, the collection of bonnets, the sea treasers and great store of miscellaneous articles within the old lace. These must be seen to be appreciated. All this we aw for fifteen cents!—the usual price of admission.

Upon leaving we saw a sign that said "King Hooper Iansion" and "County Store." Now the rambler recalled the delightful half-hour spent at "The Lindens," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ward Thoron (Louisa Chapin Hooper) Danvers. This was formerly the home of Robert Hooper, being built by him in 1753 for a country home. It is ow considered one of the purest forms of Georgian archiecture in America. The old-fashioned garden was in the inerary of the recent meeting on the North Shore of the larden club of America.

WHEN Ellen Van Volkenburg, of the Chicago Little Theater, six years ago brought back from Munich a tiny lay figure, she inaugurated the art marionette in America. Ier chief interest was in making children's productions, nd for three seasons she worked accumulating a company f puppets and a repertoire of fairy plays. An actress and irector, she laid especial emphasis on plays of merit and antasy. The next comer in the field was Tony Sarg, who ook and still takes an endless delight in the clowning abilities of the string-moved figures. An illustrator, he approached the theatre from the caricature angle, and his raftsmanship was applied to make the dolls perform as musing stunts as possible.

Lilian Owen, who before the inauguration of her own supper theatre was prominently identified with both Miss on Valkenburg and Mr. Sarg, is a painter with a considerable aptitude in the matter of craftsmanship. She still in-

So with this in mind we crossed the street and thought we'd make a call at the town house of the renowned merchant of ye olden days.

The clang of the shining brass knocker now opens the door of King Hooper's house and one is admitted for the humble amount of ten cents. Jeremiah Lee and King Hooper were brothers-in-law, both having married the Misses Swett, of Marblehead. King Hooper's mansion was built in 1745 and 23 years later Mr. Lee built his. Evidently wishing to do a better thing than King Hooper the Lee mansion far outstrips the other in vast proportions and rare workmanship, but there is a certain "homey" feeling and atmosphere about the Hooper place not felt at the greater mansion.

The same three-storied effect is carried out, however, but the rooms, twelve or more, are smaller and seemingly more closely united. The unusual hand-carved stairway running two flights stands out as one of the most beautiful features of this well-preserved old house. The third floor contains the ballroom, a room not found at the Lee mansion. It runs the full length of the house and has many attractive ballroom accessories. While gazing around this old room, used also as a banquet room, one can almost see the bewigged and powdered gallants of the past with their charming narrow-waisted and widely hooped maidens gravely going through the stately minuet or perhaps indulging in a more lively dance of the times.

To descend from the banquet room to the cellar is rather a jump, but down there is where the food was cooked and then carried to the upper regions. The huge fireplace in the cellar has double beehive ovens used in cooking the big meats of Robert Hooper's day. Mr. Hooper won his nickname from the Marb'ehead sailors because of his generosity in dealing with them.

The house is now in the hands of Wm. E. Spalding, a pioneer collector from New Hampshire. He has been at this work 35 years and 11 years ago opened up his unique "home and store" combined in the Hooper mansion. Mr. Spalding is out collecting most of the time. Throughout his place you will see the rarest of antiques in furniture, rugs, china, silver, etc. The things are placed in the various rooms as in an ordinary house. The effect is not that of a store at all. People meet their friends and visit and incidentally purchase in the old rooms. The Spaldings are carrying out the very spirit of King Hooper's day, in a measure.

If you watch the Breeze advertisements you will see what connection the "Country Store," opposite the Hooper mansion, has to do with it.

And don't forget that next week we are going to tell you about Mrs. Mosher's place and what she is going to do for libraries in which all people cannot help but be interested.

sists that her proudest achievement is that she was able to hold down and fill the job of a regular carpenter in a munitions plant during the war. Miss Owen beside acting in her productions this summer on the North Shore is busily engaged in the designing and building of new productions for her winter season. At the Gloucester puppet shop she carries on the arts of sculptor, carpenter, joiner, painter, scenic artist and dressmaker, a few of the many crafts employed in making the tiny lay figures and the mis-en-scene for their proper exhibition.

Speak out in acts; the time for words has passed, and deeds alone suffice.—Whittier.

The father of twins may think he is double crossed.

THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY promised a slogan that would catch the eye and grip the imagination. The slogan has been announced as "Peace, Progress and Prosperity." Unfortunately, the slogan is a boomerang instead of a two-edged Peace, progress and prosperity are three great words, representing ideas and ideals, that compel the attention of all, because they are so desirable. Unfortunately slogans should have in them one compelling quality, and that is truth; alliteration will not put a catchy phrase over. The Democratic party has had the reins of government and yet, how many months have passed and how many months more must speed before peace is really declared and the technical condition of war brought to an end? Peace is still a dream! The Democratic party has failed in bringing about even a technical peace with the old world. As to the state of discord that exists within the nation, does the situation suggest peace? Progress has not been made! The last four years have been idly spent and nothing of a constructive character has been accomplished by the political organization in power. It is true that some vain dreams of a socialistic state, falsely termed progress, have charmed the political leaders of the opposition, but has the result of their socialistic and economic progress meant progress in its real sense? As to prosperity, the nation has had money,—much money, but money of decreasing values. Wages have been high, but values have been higher. Money does not mean prosperity. Goods, happiness, the opportunity to labor, and fair returns for honest labor and fair prices for commodities are factors in prosperity. The present administration cannot foist all the blame for present conditions upon the war and post-war conditions. No one would be so unjust as to lay all the blame of the war and post-war conditions upon the Democratic policy. After every allowance has been made for the war conditions there is condemning evidence against the policy of the party. Prosperity is desirable, but it does not exist when there is no peace and where progress has been blocked. The Democrats have chosen an unfortunate slogan, one that is easily turned against them to their disadvantage. It is not likely to win favor with the leaders when its destructive force is realized.

THE "LABOR" ELEMENT, particularly in Massachusetts. appears to be lacking in leaders who are able to read the signs of the times and to lead their organizations tactfully along paths that are safe and right. The organization of men who "labor" is desirable, but the direction in which the influence gained by organization is exercised determines whether organized labor aids its own interests and the Commonwealth. The organized labor forces of Massachusetts could be a great force for righteousness, progress and peace. What is needed is high ideals and steady leadership by men of ability, discrimination and skill. It is to be regretted that the steadier element within the organizations, which has been counseling methods that make for peace, has not been able to prevail. Their counsel was sane and wise; it is unfortunate that the rank and file of the organizations have been unable to see the value of the advice which is coming from their own ranks. The attacks upon Governor Coolidge were unwise and would not have been made if the majority had been able to see what the minority saw; that the attacks were wrong and that the organization was making a blunder in continuing a running fight over an issue that was settled at the polls with an humiliating defeat for the evil counsel-

The Essex County organizations have been just as unreasonable in their examination of the record of the Congressman from the district. His record has been good. He has taken a reasonable and just stand upon every measure that came to his attention, yet because he refused to bend his mind and will to the will of a partisan group within his constituency they complain. Churlishness is of no avail in creating public sympathy. The Labor interests have an influence that should not be sacrificed by ill-advised action. Counselors within their organizations have sought to lead the groups from partisan attacks to conservative leadership.

The only way in which the labor people can ever hope to win their rights is by compelling the respect and sympathy of the public in their efforts. Once they have proven their cause by fair play and just leadership, everything that is justly asked for will inevitably be won. The present plans and purposes are disconcerting to their well wishers. attacks upon Coolidge and Lufkin are unwarranted and unjust. Right about face should be the policy of the labor interests. Unless such a reversal of policy is made they will lose ground.

THE QUIET WORK of the women for the rights and privileges of the franchise has been successful. It has been a long and difficult contest, but the women have won by patient and persistent campaigning. They had right on their side from the beginning. Even the opponents of their cause would agree that it was entirely just that the suffrage should be granted to the women of the land. In the exercise of the right of suffrage, the male of the species looked at the task which he performed, as a division of labor. However, the contest is practically over and a new element must be reckoned with in the political contests of the future. The women's vote is going to be a powerful influence. The politicians who have been trained in the old school of politics are going to have many lessons to learn before they will be enabled to have the affairs of their districts in their hands as in former days. The new order of affairs in the political world makes it impossible for political leaders to ignore the new element that is beginning to be felt. The influence of the women's vote will be for the good of the state. This is unquestioned. There is every evidence, judging from the results of the voting of women in other places, that the new influence will prove a blessing.

THE CITY OF BOSTON is having an interesting experience with a financial adventurer who claims to be able to make large interest returns on investments placed with him. The operations of his financial plan are still unexplained and the authorities have been unable to announce any transgression of the law. It has compelled the attention of the State and Federal authorities, but no action which compromises his position before the public and the law has been revealed. The secret of wealth is not shown, but it is intimated that the purchase of international coupons in one country and sold in another permits the operator to realize great profits, making it possible for him to pay large rates of interest on money placed with him. It may be that his claims will prove proof to any challenge of the authorities. Many have failed in the effort to make money quickly. Money should represent values. The real value of money is in the goods or good that the exchange represents. Efforts to win money from the public without returning value to the community is a vain dream. The only way in which true wealth is acquired in the economic world is by adding values to lesser commodities by intelligent and skillful labor or by the discovery of new stores of wealth in nature, such as chemicals or metals. The manufacturer's wealth has come to him because of his contribution of wealth to the country. The only certain foundation to prosperity in any community is the gain made by contributing to the wealth of the community in service or by adding to the values of raw material by work. Such wealth is a help and not an injury to the community. Many a financial bubble has been pricked by intelligent inquirers, not by charging evil, but by asking has wealth been added to the community? Manipulation, scheming and financial adroitness may increase the number of dollars credited to an individual, but it will never add to the wealth of the community.

Leaders of a Group of political agitators committed to a socialistic program have been brought to the bar of justice and sentenced for their offenses against the commonweal. The findings of the court made the imprisonments and fines justifiable. Political leaders are not to be condemned merely because they are directors of a political party, but because their organized efforts are directed to undermine the government of the United States. The laws of our nation are lenient with all men, especially in their religious and political beliefs. The nation is founded upon the principle of political and religious liberty, and from these two ideals, can never depart. But liberty that means that the very fabric of our organized government is to be destroyed is not freedom, but license. The American people do not object to any one holding erroneous views concerning the socialistic adjustments of society, but it does object to views which, when propagated, have as their purpose the undermining of our national liberties and law. Against such attacks, the American people will set the full power of the The recent decisions are just. They emphasize the position of the nation anew, that while America presents the opportunities of liberty and free speech to all, she will punish every one who while enjoying the rights and privileges of the national government is deliberately planning to destroy the very foundation principles of true government. It is well to give every latitude to agitators and propagandists in the interest of the maintenance of free speech, but when the boundaries of propriety and self-preservation are passed, the judgment of law should be meted out.

In Early September an appeal will be made by the Beverly Hospital for funds for the maintenance of the work of that organization. The publicity director has already begun his work and there appears in this issue of the Breeze as in the last issue, an appeal for the work of the institution in Beverly. The attention of the permanent and summer residents should be directed to the work of this organization. It began in an old building in Beverly centre and its success warranted the construction of the plant at Montserrat. The hospital serves a large district, being essentially a community hospital for Beverly, Hamilton-Wenham, Beverly Farms and Manchester. Its work has been well done, commanding the respect of the leaders in hospital work throughout the state, and winning a place in the affections of the people of the district that can never be overestimated. The high pressure of the increasing costs for all sorts of materials has affected the operating expenses of hospitals as well as other interests. The war work campaigns for funds necessarily involved the postponement of the presentation of the needs of many institutions. Now it is the turn of these well-conducted philanthropies to have the attention of the public. The request for funds this year will be a broad one. Everyone will be requested to make a contribution to the work of the institution; the permanent residents and the summer residents alike will unite in doing their part to make the campaign a success. It is not too early for all to begin to plan for the early days in September. The institution stands ready to serve us all at any time and we all should stand ready to serve according to our ability, during the campaign week for funds.

THE SELECTION OF SUITABLE MEMORIALS for the soldiers and sailors who served in the war is a difficult prob-The desire for such memorials is natural and commendable. Already there are movements on foot in nearly every town on the North Shore for suitable memorials. In Beverly Farms, a memorial tablet in bronze, bearing the names of the young men who served in the war, has been placed in the Public Library. In Gloucester the Legion hopes to erect a memorial building. Hamilton has a very happy solution of its problem through the generous gift, to the people of Hamilton by Mr. and Mrs. George S. Mandell, of a community house. The interest of the community will thus be served as the soldiers and the sailors of the war are honored. Manchester has voted to build a new Town Hall as a memorial. Other plans will mature in this district for the honor of the loyal men of the war. How fortunate it is that the minds of the people have turned from the erection of inartistic monuments in stone and bronze to the establishment of institutes that will serve the people or to the erection of buildings that are both ornamental and useful. The example which Harvard University showed in the erection of a Memorial building has not been in vain.

THE DECISION of the Republican candidate to make the Republican workers come to him instead of going to the workers is intelligent, and will undoubtedly prove the most effective campaign policy. The strain to which political contestants are put in the campaign for the Presidency of the United States is great. It would be a task of no great difficulty to so burden a nominee during a campaign as to weary him and unfit him for the strenuous work of the Presidency. The refusal of the Republican leaders to favor a debate between the leaders of the two parties is also wise. Nothing will be gained by such a forensic encounter. The issues would not be clarified and the candidates themselves would be subjected to a nervous strain and to unnecessary labor in these days. The days of political debates have passed; the American people have been too exacting in their demands of their Presidential candidates. In refusing to waste time in traveling and by applying all his energies to directing his workers, the Republican nominee indicates a command of himself and executive ability that promises much for the future. The Democratic candidate may plan a whirlwind trip, but the quiet and embarrassing influence of the last eight years cannot be undone.

The Season on the North Shore has been one of the best in many years from the viewpoints of the prosperity of the Shore, the number of houses rented, the number of visitors entertained and the favorable weather conditions. From Swampscott to Rockport the reports are the same. The motor roads have been patronized as they have never been before. On Sundays and holidays, on Saturdays and Mondays, the roads are well used. A steady procession of motor vehicles pass and repass all points along the Shore.

THERE HAS BEGUN a new era of reconstruction of old houses. The value of the old houses has not been appreciated by the past generations and many old landmarks have been torn down. There are still many well preserved old homesteads on the North Shore. Every one that is preserved adds to the charm and every one that is destroyed detracts from the attractiveness of the district. Community interests are now awake to the value of the old homes and every effort is and will be made to preserve them.

- That picture in the public press the past week of Governor Coolidge milking a cow on his father's farm in the Green Mountain state ought to make a strong bid for the farmer vote. As a milker, the governor certainly looked the part.
- A French inventor is said to have perfected a process whereby photos can be sent by telephone. Now, if someone can invent a process to improve the telephone what a boon it would be to photographers!
- It is a dull day when Federal agents are unable to go out into the country and round up a few stills, or search someone's premises and find the home brew merrily in the making.
- A route has been mapped out for the first aerial Derby around the world. The date has not been set, so you will have plenty of time in which to complete the enjoyment of your summer vacation before planning to go on this trip.
- The Boston minister who lost a pocket-book containing $20,000 last week and rewarded the finder by giving him $15, would have hard work to convince his parish that he needs any increase in salary.
- That "girls of today are exceeding the speed limit" is the opinion of Mrs. M. Francis Brady, the only woman assistant district attorney in Massachusetts. "Manufacturers must make more modest fashions. They must stop fashioning for the young girls the most daring, the most immodest clothes that they can think of," Mrs. Brady continued.

Hereditary

After correcting Tommy many times for speaking in school, the teacher decided to mention this fault to the boy's father. She therefore added this remark to her next report: "Tommy talks a great deal."

In two days the report came back, signed by Tommy's father, with the comment: "You should hear his mother."

-Boston Transcript.

- Only five weeks away is the date when Maine will hold its state election.
 It is a common belief that as Maine goes so goes the nation, and within the next few weeks campaigners will do some strenuous work in the pioneer state.
- It is reported that the Pennsylvania railroad has discharged some 12,000 employees who were put on payroll during war time. The railroad is also following out, in some instances, the plan of having the men work more hours for the same amount of pay. This is an admirable plan of increasing production and thereby reducing the ever-present H. C. L.
- We do not know why Wm. M. Wood, of the American Woolen Co., has shut down his mills. However, we do know that there is no law to compel a man to run his business at a loss. If an employee has the right to give up work because he is not making money enough, his employer also has the right to shut down the shop if the business is not prospering.
- With shoes going down and railroad fares going up, the conclusion is obvious.
- The railroads missed a harvest by not boosting the rates before the conventions in Chicago and San Francisco, but the increase is in plenty of time to catch the tourist before his departure for the south.
- Five German warships are due to arrive in New York harbor tomorrow but they are manned by American crews.

Golden Thoughts

If you and I—just you and I—Should laugh instead of worry;
If we should grow—just you and I—Kinder and sweeter hearted, Perhaps in some near by and by
A good time might get started;
Then what a happy world 'twould be
For you and me—for you and me!

THE SMILE HE REMEMBERED

Of course he remembers Maisie's smile.
It used to set his heart a fluttering.
And that man's smile that he turned and caught,

Fairly set his tongue to stuttering.

Many a smile has enacted its part
As he journeyed down through the years,
But the best-loved smile was his mother's smile,

As she smiled and winked back the tears.

YE ELDER BRETHREN MEET AT MANCHESTER

42d Annual Gathering Big Success — Dinner, Speeches and Business Meeting

Call him not old, whose visionary brain Holds o'er the past its undivided reign. For him in vain the envious seasons roll Who bears eternal summer in his soul.

If yet the minstrel's song, the poet's lay,
Spring with her birds, or children with their play,
Or maiden's smile, or heavenly dream of art Stir the few life-drops creeping round his heart-Turn to the record where his years are told,--Count his gray hairs, -they cannot make him old.

-Oliver Wendell Holmes.

"Do You REMEMBER — ?" "Say, John, I wonder if you recall that story about Deacon So and So?" "I am reminded of the time Ye Elder Brethren had their first picnic here, 42 years ago, although it does not seem so long ago." Stories, anecdotes and incidents relating to the past 60, 70, 80, or even more than 80 years ago, were heard on every side Tuesday at the 42d annual Ye Elder Brethren's gathering, held at Tuck's Point, Man-

There were many reunions of the "boys" who had not seen each other for a number of years, or who had not met since the last picnic, held the 16th of July, 1919. Reminiscences of years gone by, of changes which had taken place in the town, in the state and in the nation, were related by men who had lived through the changes, and at the get-together this week they en-joyed slapping "Bill" on the shoulder, grasping John's hand, asking: "How is everything going with you, Ed?" and "I'm mighty glad to see you again, Bro. Marshall.

With the zest and enthusiasm of a party of children, the "boys" assembled for their good time. We mistrust there were several who did not sleep well Monday night owing to their anticipation of Tuesday's pleasure and their anxiety as to whether the weather would be fair. Seldom has there been a better day for the pcinic than Tuesday of this week. Old Sol showed his shining countenance all day long, there were gentle breezes to prevent the air from being hot, and all nature seemed to smile on the picnickers who had lived for half a century and one of whom has nearly rounded out the century.

Oldest Citizen Present

Nehemiah C. Marshall, of Manchester, the town's oldest citizen, again held the distinction of being the oldest member present, having reached the age of 92 years. This venerable citizen entered into the affair with enthusiasm, fully enjoyed the dinner, and had a grand time meeting his many friends.

Mr. Marshall has been a constant attendant at the picnics of Ye Elder Brethren since the organization was started. He attended the first gathering, which was held years before the town had made any improvements at Tuck's Point, and has been present at every one of the 42 meetings of the

John R. Allen, Second Oldest

John Rogers Allen, of Allen av., was the second oldest member of those present. Mr. Allen, who is 90 years of age, had looked forward to the picnic for a long time. Apparently the joys of realization were fully equal to the joys of anticipation, as he had a wonderful day meeting many friends and acquaintances.

A fish chowder and clam chowder dinner was served at 1 o'clock. Rev. F. W. Manning, pastor of the Congl. church, Manchester, asked the blessing, after which everyone "fell to" and a first-class chowder dinner was thoroughly enjoyed. Frank Crombie, assisted by John Babcock, prepared the dinner. The waiters were Frank Floyd, Louis Hutchinson, Harry Slade, Archie Cool, Roland Brooks, Albert Peters and Frank Foster.

Election of Officers

E. P. Stanley, president, called the business meeting together at 2.30 o'clock. I. M. Marshall, secretarytreasurer, read the records of last year's meeting, after which the following officers were elected: Edwin P. Stanley, president; Lyman W. Floyd, vice-president; Isaac M. Marshall, secretary-treasurer; Frank W. Bell, Benjamin M. Crombie, Charles C. Dodge, Theodore C. Rowe and Jeffrey S. Reed, executive committee.

Secretary Marshall read letters of regret from John Thomas, of Gloucester; Rev. George H. Perkins, of Beverly; Rev. William H. Rider, of Essex, and Prof. N. B. Sargent, of Haverhill. In Mr. Sargent's letter was an interesting poem which is published herewith:

There is beauty that's brighter than bright sparkling sea, Or the palace surrounded with flowers; Or the sweet singing rill from the green wooded hill, And its pleasures may always be ours.

The fire department was called out about 12.30 midnight, Wednesday night, for a fire at the B. J. Manion property, Tappan st. In some unaccountable manner a woodshed and henhouse in the rear of the property caught fire and in quick order flames were leaping in the air, lighting the heavens in most brilliant tones, aided by the misty fog hanging over the town at that time. A big crowd gathered, but the fire was quickly put out, as soon as the water was turned on it.

MAGNOLIA LODGE VOTES TO SECURE TITLE TO BINGHAM PROPERTY

A special meeting of Magnolia lodge, I. O. O. F., Manchester, was held a week ago for the purpose of taking further action regarding the Henry T. Bingham legacy. The com-mittee having the matter in charge made a report which was accepted by the lodge. It was voted that the committee continue its activities regarding the final purchase of the Bingham property. Somewhat of a legal tangle has developed and it will be some little time before the lodge secures a clear title to the property.

LIBRARY NOTES

New Books in Manchester Public Library

Before calling your attention to some works written 1910-1915 I wish to bring to your notice a small volume that has just been given the library: "David Otis Mears, D. D., An Auto-biography and Memoir." Dr. Mears was a well-known preacher, who was born in the neighboring town of Essex, the birthplace of a number of famous men. He was pastor for many years of the Fourth Presbyterian church, Albany, N. Y. His daughter, Helen, was a noted singer, and many in Manchester have been charmed by the melody of her sweet voice. This volume gives a short sketch of a man whose life was an inspiration to all who came in contact with him.

The noted Belgian writer, Maurice Maeterlinck, wrote "The Life of the Bee," a most fascinating description of the habits of that little creature which teaches us-by example-to "improve each shining hour." He also wrote charming play, "The Blue Bird." Have you read it?

Theodore Roosevelt, after leaving the White House, went to Africa for a hunting trip. His experiences are related in a very pleasing manner in his "African Game Trails."

In "Luther Burbank," by Henry Smith Williams, you will find very at tractive reading. In it you learn much about the wonderful experiments carried on by the great plant wizard and of their almost unbelievable results.

Mark Twain was a great American humorist. A very pleasing sketch of his life will be found in "My Mark Twain," by William Dean Howells. A larger and more detailed work is Albert Bigelow Paine's "Mark Twain, An Autobiography." It is in two vol-

Manchester Decisively Defeats Gloucester Electricians, 12-3

The game of last Saturday at Brook st. playground, Manchester, between Manchester and the Gloucester Electricians, proved to be a very one-sided affair. Manchester easily piled up a total of 12 runs, and the visitors were able to secure only three.

Advance "dope" on the game seemed to indicate that it was going to be some contest; however, such was not the case. The home team out-hit and out-fielded its opponents. Errors by the Gloucester players were rather numerous.

Mgr. Slade pitched most of the game for Manchester and was given good support. Needham, at short, made a couple of good plays. Twiss and Cook, both of Manchester, featured at the bat with two-base hits.

McDermott hit well for Gloucester. Gunlefson allowed nine hits and was not given very good support.

The Manchester management is

Sousa and His Band at Salem

The Sousa Library is the accumulation of thirty years or more, a getting together of the greater and lesser products of composers of all time and degrees, from the first down to the last. Nobody knows how many arrangements there are, multiple parts of each composition, but the number is so great that several large music rooms are required to house them. It may be inferred from this that when Lieut. John Philip Sousa squares himself to make out the programs for a tour, he has a colossal undertaking before him.

With such a mass of works and arrangements confronting him, it would seem almost like attempting to pick the choicest blossoms in a field of clover or a garden of roses; but Sousa is ever alive to the period in public desires in the matter of its music as in anything else—its trend in literature, architecture, decorations, painting, fashions or what not, and he knows precisely what to serve in music to best suit the trend of the hour.

Sousa and his band will appear at the Empire theatre, Salem, on Thursday evening, Aug. 12, for one performance only, for which all seats are reserved. Sale of seats will open Saturday, Aug. 7, at the Empire box office and telephone and mail orders accompanied by check or money orders will be filled in the order of their receipt.

OLYMPIA THEATRE, LYNN

Much of the personality of the author has been transferred to the cinema version of "The Yellow Typhoon," a climactic melodrama, replete with intrigue and quick action, which is to be shown at the Olympia theatre, Lynn, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 9, 10 and 11. As the scene of action shifts from America to the Orient, and back from the Orient to the Philippines, there is a scrupulous regard for atmospheric details and incidents that increases the spectator's interest.

The members of the supporting cast perform in a way that is a credit to their director, as well as to their individual talent. Ward Crane is an attractive type, who supplies what small amount of love interest there is. Excellent photography aids in making the picture a success.

In order to acquaint the public with the general telephone situation, and some of the reasons for delay in completing new installations—chief among which is the difficulty of getting the numerous kinds of necessary material—we have prepared a series of announcements of which this is the first.

The General Telephone Situation

The reason orders for new telephone service cannot be completed as promptly as in the past, and that some orders are delayed weeks or even months, is that we are trying to meet an abnormal demand for service with a sub-normal supply of the materials necessary to give service.

It is not unnatural for persons moving into a house which formerly had telephone service to assume that, because of that fact, service to them is readily possible. For this mistaken assumption we ourselves are chiefly responsible, because we used to talk about "renting a telephone, and even bill subscribers for "monthly rental." Consequently the mind of the average subscriber is still focussed on the telephone instrument as the controlling factor of telephone service.

While the telephone instrument is indispensable, it is only one of more than a hundred essential parts of telephone equipment. Lacking any of these parts, a telephone switchboard would be as ineffective as an automobile without its carburetor.

Some of these parts are made by ourselves; others by dozens of specialty manufacturers in various parts of the country. We could increase production if we could get the raw material and the transportation. But with labor troubles in the wire-drawing mills came a shortage of the copper wire necessary for cable and switchboards. Scarcity of paper caused almost a famine of the special kind of paper necessary for the insulation of these copper wires in the cables. And then came freight embargoes, following railroad labor troubles, so that for three weeks this summer one of the largest cable manufacturing plants in the country had to shut down because it could neither get the necessary raw material into its plant nor the much wanted finished product out of its plant and on its way to us.

The desire of waiting customers for telephone service is not more keen than our desire to serve them at once. We want them to feel that we are earnestly trying to do this as rapidly and as fairly as possible.

Men's Club Notes

The Men's club is having another successful season. The rooms are all rented for this month.

The Wednesday and Saturday dances are very popular; tennis, bowling and billiards are much enjoyed.

The movies on Tuesday evening are a success. The hall is filled and the audience is enthusiastic over the show. The pictures are very clear and a new arrangement of the screen makes it possible to see the pictures from all parts of the room.

The club is planning a masquerade for the benefit of the clubhouse some time this month.

Women's Club Notes

The club membership is now 224. Our regular club dances on Monday and Friday nights are well attended. On Monday evening the music is furnished by MacDuff and Griffin, or Holland and Griffin; on Friday by Mrs. Hawkes and Leo Chane.

Tuesday evening a dance was given at the clubhouse for the benefit of the Franklin Sq. House fund. Miss Vera Moses and friends, who are interested in the welfare of this home for girls, managed the affair. A large number were present and voted the party one of the most pleasant of the season. The hall was prettily decorated in red and white with touches of greenery about the fireplace. Every one who purchased a ticket placed his name on the back of it and just before intermission they were put into a hat and one ticket was drawn out. The person whose name was on the ticket received a fine box of chocolates. In this case the fortunate one was Mrs. Alice Foster, the manager of the club.

Thursday evening is whist. The whist players are planning a "real party" for some Thursday in August.

Monday evening, Aug. 9, a costume party will be held by the club members and their gentlemen friends. Three prizes will be offered: 1, for the prettiest costume; 2, for the most original costume; 3, for the funniest costume.

Monday evening, Aug. 16, a Japanese garden party will be held in the hall of the Men's clubhouse for the benefit of the Women's clubhouse. There will be a Boston orchestra of four pieces. Miss May McCaffrey will act as floor director and manager of this affair.

Mrs. Mary H. Trout

Mrs. Mary H. (Knight) Trout, widow of Jacob W. Trout, died at her late residence, on Magnolia ave., Saturday noon, July 31. Funeral services were held Monday at 3 p. m. at the chapel in this village, and were conducted by the pastor of the Village church, Rev. Walter S. Eaton. The interment was in the village cemetery.

Mrs. Trout was a daughter of Captain and Mrs. John Knight, and sister to John Thomas Knight. He was the city missionary in Gloucester for many years and the village folk are indebted to him for the "Little Chapel," as he raised the funds with which to build it.

The late Mrs. Trout was born in this village about seventy-five years ago and lived in the same house ever since birth. For many months she had been very ill and under the constant care of a physician and nurses. Fortunate indeed was Mrs. Trout to have had two such noble women as are those who cared for her during her last illness; her neighbors, too, were devotion itself.

A kind-hearted and generous relative, who in his boyhood days was royally entertained in the hospitable home of Captain John Knight, brought not a little good cheer and sunshine into her sick chamber.

It will never decay as the flow'rs pass away, or the brooklet is lost in the tide. It is not work of art, but the beauty of heart,

That eternally will abide.

Oh! I love that rugged, rock bound shore, Love to hear the ceaseless breakers roar;

But dearer far than land or sea.

Is the love of dear old friends to me.

The business meeting was interspersed with songs in charge of Rev. A. G. Warner, of Fitchburg, a former pastor of the Baptist church, Manchester.

Cong. Lufkin Gives Address

The first address of the afternoon was by Cong. W. W. Lufkin, of Essex. The Congressman expressed his pleasure at the opportunity of meeting with Ye Elder Brethren, and congratulated them on the speed and efficiency with which they elected officers for the coming year. "I only wish the same simple method could be used in electing Congressmen," said he. "It would save a lot of worry and expense!"

Cong. Lufkin said, in part: "It was three years ago when I last met with you gentlemen. Our country had just embarked on the greatest war any country had ever known. Today we are out of the war as far as the actual fighting is concerned, but the afterthe-war problems are now with us.

"It must be most interesting to you men to look back at things as they were 35 or 40 years ago and compare present conditions with that time. To view the progress from the days of the stage coach to the automobile and the airplane. It is also of interest to compare the cost of state and national government with the cost existing in the days of your youth. You doubtless recall the hue and cry raised all over the country at the 'shameless extravagance' of our first billion dollar Congress.

"Some of you can remember when our government was operated at a cost of only $100,000,000 a year. Now, in peace times, if you please, our current expenses for the past 12 months were four and one-half billions. Today every dollar which the government needs for its maintenance, comes just as directly out of your pocket and out of mine as the revenue collector can make it.

Must Not be Unprepared Again

"There are certain lines in the management of our government where we can never return to pre-war standards and expenses. Among the lessons of the war was one which taught us that we must never again be unprepared for any emergency which may arise.

"I sometimes fear we may revert to pre-war conditions regarding our army and navy policy. Regardless of all the running expenses of our government we must have a navy adequately equipped to give us the protection we need and which the people have a right to expect. Perhaps we do not need the largest navy in the world, but we do need the best. I believe this country is rich enough and big enough and proud enough to maintain a navy such as we need.

The Immigration Problem

'Another problem which is facing us since the war is that of immigration. From now on we must carefully scrutinize the immigrant in his home land, at Ellis Island, and even for a few years after he has settled in the United States. I believe that every one of the foreign immigrants who comes to our shores should be compelled to learn the English language to such an extent that he can read and write it to a reasonable degree. I would have every one of them registered and carefully watched, and if they did not take out the first papers signifying their intention of becoming citizens, then I would have them deported to the country from whence they came.

"In conclusion, I wish to bring you this thought: We are on the eve of the ten most important and troublesome years in the history of our country. The problems ahead are fully as troublesome as any we have faced. Men and women are going about with long faces and anxious expressions and they will tell you that the country is going 'to the dogs.' However, I am too much of an optimist to believe this. Some-one has said that the 'Ship of State' may be leaking, that she may have lost her rudder. Regardless of who is elected the next President I believe we shall see the clouds lifted, order restored among the mmbers of the crew, and the grand old Ship of State will sail into a safe harbor with the crew supporting the Captain and the American flag flying from the mast.'

"Country Will Get Along All Right"

Patrick Boyle, of Manchester, was the next speaker. "I believe our Congressman has hit the nail on the head," said Mr. Boyle. "But you needn't be a bit afraid for this country, she will get along all right. Every boy should read the history of the United States. Next to the history of the church of God it is the greatest history in the world. The fishermen of Galilee went out into the world and spread Christianity. We will go on with the same spirit as manifested by the men and women who founded our country. Last year we raised five billions of dollars to save the world and we did save the world.

"It seems to me that we have seen the end of the 'divine right of kings to rule.' There is in Holland today a man who thought he would sometime be monarch of the world. He is now sawing wood!" Mr. Boyle recited in an impressive manner that popular patriotic reading, "Your Flag and My Flag."

Judge Battis, of Salem, was one of the guests present during the day and made a few remarks at the business meeting

Francis M. Stanwood, of Brookline, a summer resident of Manchester, expressed his pleasure at again attending a gathering of the Elder Brethren. Mr. Stanwood said he was pleased to meet so many survivors of the terrible winter of 1919-1920, during which winter "Mr. Boyle's taxis were housed for twelve weeks and Mr. Dodge says that getting into his workshop was like climbing the Alps."

County Treasurer Robinson Speaks

One of the interesting speakers of the afternoon was the county treasurer, Hon. David I. Robinson, of Gloucester. Mr. Robinson is a native of Manchester and in his remarks spoke somewhat of his early years spent in that town.

"I thoroughly believe in the gospel of 'preparation' as put forth by our Congressman," said Mr. Robinson. "I do not think the world will end tomorrow, this week or this month. If I read the Bible correctly there is a passage which states 'there shall be wars and rumors of wars, but the end is not yet.' We have had a great world war, and there are rumors of other wars, but 'the end is not yet.'

"Since being here today I have been going back in my mind to the time when I first left Manchester. Last Saturday I went over to the Neck to the site of my old home. Everything was changed. I recognized a large rock which used to be called 'sliding rock,' in my boyhood days. Sixtynine years ago I enjoyed sliding down this rock to the positive detriment of my clothing!

Many Changes in 69 Years

"I was thinking and wondering if the changes in the next 69 years will be as many and as great as in the past 69. If so, the business man will then be leaving from the roof of his home by aeroplane for his office. As children we read Jules Verne's 'Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea,' and marvelled at the fertile imagination of the author. And when Darius Green in his flying machine attempted the trip from the roof of his barn to the moon, he landed on the lawn of his own premises and had made no progress on his quest. We have indeed made remarkable strides in various realms of science and it is interesting to look forward and conjecture as to possibilities of the future.

"Friends, it is a pleasure to meet with you today. The body may be infirm, but the mind is strong and I sincerely trust we may meet together again many times,"

Alfred S. Jewett spoke in a reminiscent mood, recalling past gatherings and incidents connected with them. "One advantage of going to war," said Mr. Jewett, who is a comrade of the Civil war, "is to 'know thyself.' How can anyone know himself until he has been tried and tested? This is amply proven under the stress of war days.

"When I was a boy I enjoyed going to Boston and hearing the leading orators of the day. It is the attitude we hold toward the world which gives us peace or pain of mind. It seems to me me that the Indian secured satisfaction by being in harmony with nature. I am over 80 years of age and with Henry Ward Beecher can say: 'I thank Cod for every gathering of men and women, for the intimacy of touching elbows.' I stand on the side of optimism and believe we can thoroughly enjoy all things which are lovable and of good report."

Rev. F. W. Manning spoke of the picnic as "a very happy idea, well carried out. It is unique in its pleasure and enjoyment. Men of fourscore are but children of a larger growth, these men are 80 years young, not 80 years old. As Tennyson in his ode to

Ulysses, said:

'Old age hath yet his honor and his toil; Death closes all: but something ere the end,

Some work of noble note, may yet be done, Not unbecoming men that strove with

Has there any old fellow got mixed with the boys

If there has, take him out, without making a noise!

Hang the Almanac's cheat and the Catalogue's spite! Old Time is a liar! We're twenty tonight!

We're twenty! We're twenty! Who says we are more? He's tipsy,-young jackanapes!-show him

'Gray temples at twenty?'-Yes! white, if we please

Where the snowflakes fall thickest there's nothing can freeze!

Was it snowing I spoke of? Excuse the mistake!

Look close, -you will not see the sign of a flake;

We want some new garlands for those we have shed,-

And these are white roses in place of the red!

We've a trick, we young fellows, you may have been told,

Of talking (in public) as if we were old;-That boy we call 'Doctor,' and this we call 'Judge;'

It's a neat little fiction,—of course it's all fudge.

That fellow's the 'Speaker,'-the one on the right;

'Mr. Mayor,' my young one, how are you tonight? That's our 'Member of Congress,' we say when we chaff; There's the 'Reverend' What's his name? -don't make me laugh!

Yes, we're boys,—always playing with tongue or with pen,—And I sometimes have asked,—Shall we ever be men? Shall we always be youthful and laughing and gay Till the last dear companion drops smiling

Then here's to our boyhood, its gold and its gray!

The stars of its winter, the dews of its May!

And when we have done with our lifelasting toys

Dear Father, take care of thy children, the Boys!

The recitation by Mr. Lee of the above poem of Oliver Wendell Holmes was very apropos and met with ready applause from the "boys."

As is customary at these gatherings, the final song was "Nearer My God to Thee." Under the direction of Rev. A. G. Warner, chorister, this selection was sung and thus closed one of the most pleasant and successful of the gatherings of Ye Elder Brethren.

A prosperous farmer has gained the reputation of being the stingiest man in his town and consequently is not a general favorite with his neighbors,

He owns an old horse which, to put it mildly, is very thin. As if to make up for lack of flesh on its body, however, the animal has a head many sizes too large. The other week he went to the expense of a new collar for the animal. A few minutes after the delivery he was back at the saddler's with the collar.

"Don't you know nothing'?" he blurted out. "You've made it too small. I can't get it over his head!"

"Over his head?" replied the saddler. "Man alive, it wasn't made to go over his head. Back him into it!" Chicago Daily News.

SOCIETY NOTES

DÉBUTANTES do not seem to be as numerous on the North Shore as in former times. Many of the girls of an age ready for presentation are taking up college work this coming year and hence their début will be put off a year or more. The following list of "buds" for 1920-'21 are the only ones we have been able to find so far: Miss Charlotte Moseley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Moseley, of Newburyport; Miss Rose Fessenden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Fessenden, of Coolidge Point, Manchester; Miss Elizabeth DeBlois, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George L. DeBlois, of Ipswich; Miss Florence Fenno, daughter of Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno, of Rowley; Miss Eleanor Dodge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert G. Dodge, of Ipswich; and Miss Lois Arnold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Kent Arnold, of Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Rob't G. Dodge, of "Greenwood Farm," Ipswich, are presenting their second daughter, Miss Eleanor Dodge, this winter. No plans are yet made for the presentation. Miss Dodge has been a student at Miss Winsor's school in Boston. Her sister, Miss Katherine, was presentted last winter.

Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Kent Arnold, of "Ledgside," Manchester, will present their oldest daughter, Miss Lois Arnold, this year. Miss Arnold is a graduate of Miss May's school in Boston. No definite plans are yet made for her début.

Miss Ella Snelling, of Beverly Farms, is spending a week visiting in North East Harbor and other points, and will return about next Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Fuller (Dorothy Caswell), of New York, are in their cottage at Woodmere, L. I. A few weeks ago Mr. and Mrs. Fuller were on the Shore visiting friends, and the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Watson Caswell, Essex County club, Manchester.

Miss Natalie Ryan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Barry Ryan, of New York, formerly of Beverly Cove, is visiting the Sydney E. Hutchinson young folk at Beverly Farms.

Gladioli at the garden located on Western ave., Magnolia, formerly the golf links, are exceptionally beautiful. They are gathered fresh every morning and sold both at the garden and at Foster's Drug store.

Mrs. Cranmore N. Wallace, of Beverly Cove, has her sister, Mrs. James Tirrell, of So. Weymouth, with her this season. Another sister, Mrs. Charles T. Foster, and Mr. Foster, of Malden, and a nephew, Louis B. Vining, of Newton, are frequent guests of Mrs. Wallace. A niece, Mrs. C. Wilder Pierce, of Malden, is coming later in the season. Dr. and Mrs. R. W. Angell, of Boston, spent the week-end with her and the house party of relatives.

Charles H. Tyler, of "Willowbrook cottage," Beverly Cove, will show 15 of his fine English setters at the Newport dog show, Saturday, Aug. 21. Early in September he will show dogs and fancy chickens (Brahmas) at the Syracuse, N. Y., fair. Every year about Thanksgiving time Mr. Tyler takes his 25 or more dogs to North Carolina. There they are trained while Mr. Tyler incidentally enjoys quail hunting. In the early season "Willowbrook" kennels took several prizes at the Auburndale show.

COMMODORE HERBERT M. SEARS presided at the banquet of 150 yachtsmen at the Eastern Yacht club, Marblehead Neck, Tuesday. Apropos of the good work done by the boys and girls in the Marblehead races, C. Sherman Hoyt, manager of "Vanitie" and the New York Yacht club representative, said in his after-dinner speech:

"I want to take off my hat to you people here in the East for the way in which you are bringing up the youngsters. We can't show you anything like it in Long Island Sound, for there is no inducement for the 'kids.' My experience today when I saw boys and girls sailing those small boats was one of the happiest in many years. Certainly yachting is in no danger in Massachusetts Bay while these youngsters are in the game."

Small craft manned by boys and girls, the so-called "hopeful classes," made a great showing on the third day of Marblehead's races. It is said the hope of yachting lies in the boys and girls. Not only did the small classes fill encouragingly, but six of the little boats were sailed by girls, and Puss In Boots, with Miss Pauline Ames at the tiller, won in the Annisquam cat boat class. In fact, young women and girls were represented in nearly two score of the 146 yachts which crossed the starting line.

Someone has suggested that the Manchester Yacht club have boats for children.

Dr. and Mrs. Harris P. Mosher and their daughters, Mrs. F. J. Shepard, Jr., of Auburndale, and Mrs. H. R. Alexander, of New York, are all interested in the coming antique exhibition at the Mosher home, 127 Front st., Marblehead. Mrs. Mosher has been collecting since a child. The exhibition takes place Saturday, August 28, an all-day affair, with tea in the afternoon, a benefit for the "Books for Everybody Fund."

Horticultural hall, Manchester-by-the-Sea, Geo. Loan Tucker's "The Miracle Man," Thursday, Aug. 19.

The Arthur Meeker party on board the "Victoria" touched North Shore waters last week. While anchored off West Beach they visited the new boat being built in Manchester for Allison Vincent Armour. The party then left (Friday afternoon), bound for a pleasure trip to Montreal. At York Harbor, Me., the yacht ran ashore off York Ledge, and had to send a wireless message asking for assistance. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Meeker and family are from Chicago and formerly lived on the Shore both at Marblehead and Beverly Farms. Their son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Horace Gray, of Boston, have been Beverly Farms residents until this season. Mr. Meeker belongs to the New York Yacht club and had chartered his yacht to Sir Thomas Lipton for personal use during the international races, receiving it back only August 1, when the trip to the North Shore began last Monday.

Mrs. Francis W. Sargent, Jr., of Beverly Farms, left Thursday to spend the week-end with Dr. and Mrs. David Cheever on the South Shore. Mrs. Sargent is a sister-in-law of Mrs. Cheever.

The Barrett Wendell, Jr., place at Beverly Farms will draw all the kiddies, big and little, along the Shore next Monday afternoon, August 16, when a play will be put on in the field near the house by some Shore children, as a benefit for Children's hospital in Boston. Mothers, too, will want to go and see how "Nick Bluster's Trick" is played. Performance begins at 3 o'clock. Children taking parts are Barbara Wendell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Jr.; Anna Dennett, daughter of Major and Mrs. Carl Pullen Dennett, of Manchester; Elsie and Susan Brewer, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Brewer, of Manchester; Edith and Ruth Koshland, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Koshland, of Manchester; Margaret Cummings, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles K. Cummings, of Pride's Crossing; and Mary Flagg, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Elisha Flagg, of Pride's Crossing. All are children between 8 and 10 years of age who are in a hospital club. See "Junior Breezes" for particulars.

Would you like to run an attractive little inn and tea room for your charity? There is one for sale with such charming appointments that it would be a continual pleasure and source of pride to the owner, as well as a money winner for whatever object it was devoted to. Inquire at Breeze office.

St. John's Church fair was the usual gala occasion at Beverly Farms this year. Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Mason gave the use of their lawn, where the fair was held all day yesterday. The booths were spread around the edge mostly and each made a pretty sight with its array of articles. Tea tables were the attractive feature in the late afternoon.

The central committee that made the fair such a success included Mrs. Ernest Townsend (president of the auxiliary), Mrs. Robert Means, Mrs. J. M. Younger, Mrs. James Stevens, Mrs. Charles Cabot, Mrs. Russell Burrage, Mrs. Thomas Jack, Mrs. Frank Preston, Mrs. E. F. Campbell and Mrs. Henry Mason.

Tea was served by Mrs. R. Paul Snelling, assisted by the Misses Katherine Crosby, Katharine Abbott, and Helen and Priscilla Rhodes.

The following tables and booths were on the lawn:

Miss Elizabeth Perkins had a booth filled with rare collections and gifts of pottery. Among these were Canton and India china, some from the Canto Galli potteries in Italy. Chinese birds and Mexican and East Indian articles. Miss Perkins sold these articles which she had collected mostly herself. A few were from her own studio at Beverly Farms, where she paints and works in clay.

PAGEANT AT STAGE FORT PARK, GLOUCESTER

Murray Pilgrimage and 150th Anniversary of Founding of Universalism will Bring Many to Cape Ann in Late August

WE have all seen the motion pictures, the reproduction of dramatic life and current events as pictured on the screen, yet no opportunity has been afforded to see the same episodes and action in real life, but the pageant at Stage Fort Park, Gloucester, on the evenings of Aug. 27 and 28, to be given in connection with the Murray Pilgrimage, the 150th anniversary celebration of the founding of Universalism, will be exactly such an incident and event.

Certainly no better place could be selected in which to give a pageant than in the natural stadium in this historic spot, which was settled in 1623 and now noted as the sight of the first permanent settlement in Massachusetts.

The warring of the unseen powers which surround us in our daily life and under whose sway the world keeps moving will be carried out in allegory by groups of young ladies representing the more benign spirit, and energetic young men representing the sterner and more malign influ-

Surrounded by these invisible spirits (invisible, metaphorically speaking) the lives of the mortals, viz.: John Murray, Thomas Potter, Mr. Sargent, Judith Sargent, the generals of the Continental army, and all those whose lives and influences were brought to bear upon the ultimate success of Mr. Murray's efforts, will be reproduced as closely as possible to the basic historical facts, thus producing an ensemble which can be described only as a grand moving picture, carried out by living mortals embellished by the vocal efforts of the large chorus and enhanced by the most beautiful of classic music rendered by the most efficient musical organizations to be found in New England.

With a large ensemble consisting of upwards of 300 people, lighting effects and color schemes and costumes of the best procurable, a success both artistic and epochable is surely to be anticipated.

Added to the material efforts of the pageant committee, we have that glorious setting which nature has herself provided for us, the beautiful piece of rocky coast which makes up the seaward side of Stage Fort Park. Truly a fitting background for the dramatic scenes to be portrayed. The bold, rocky formations softened by occasional clumps of foliage through which the spirits will flit hither and thither while the main action evolves in the foreground, the moon being in the full (as it will be at the time of the performance) all conspire to produce an effect which will be gratifying in every sense of the word.

The ladies, gentlemen and young people participating are all enthused to the highest point, thus ensuring a heartfelt spontaneity in their work which many would be power-

Neither time nor money are being spared to make this event a lasting memory of honorable achievement to Gloucester and the Universalist Church.

bles at the fair for St. John's church in Beverly Farms took in \$176 Thursday. Dolls were entered for prizes by the club members and their friends. Natalie Hutchinson took the prize for the best dressed doll, a beauty in sheer white; Alice Means had the prettiest doll, and Cynthia Means dressed her own doll which took the prize for the greatest size. Ned Hutchinson entered a doll less than an inch in length and gained first prize. Helen Mason had the most original doll, a copy of a Quaker girl. Ruth Swift, the mother of a large family of dolls entered, had the oldest one, $8\frac{1}{2}$ years of age. Among others who entered were Lucile and Eleanor Swift and Susan Means. The president of the bicycle club is Frances Hutchinson who was a busy person here, there and everywhere during the day. Never did the children's table have such a good showing or do as much business as this year at the fair.

The club is sorry that Cynthia and Nancy Means could not participate in the day's work owing to sickness.

The Bicycle club, of Beverly Farms, is composed of the following young girls: Frances and Natalie Hutchinson, Cynthia and Nancy Means, Madaline Post, Abby Beveridge, Ruth Swift, Helen Mason and Katie Wilkins.

Something very interesting is going to appear in the Breeze in regard to this club. Watch for it!

"Mary had a little lamb,
Its fleece was white as snow.

And everywhere that Mary went

The lamb was sure to go.''

PROBABLY every one of the present generation knows the above lines and the entire story of Mary's lamb, but do they also recall the fact that the "Mary" of the verses was a real person, well-known about Boston, and that the incident about her lamb actually occurred?

The "Mary" of the poem was Miss Mary Sawyer, of Sterling, who afterward became Mrs. Mary Tyler, of Somerville. At 70 years of age she was a vigorous lady, with her mind unimpaired. It was during her 70th year that she one day, during a visit to the Old South Meeting House, was prevailed upon to tell the story of the lamb. Her story was substantially as follows:

One morning she went out to the barn and found there two little lambs, which had been born during the night. One was so weak and puny that her father declared it would be of no use to try to raise it. Mary's tender heart pitied the tiny creature, and she begged her father to let her try to save it. He gave it into her care, promising that if it lived it should be her lamb.

Little Mary took the creature into the house, wrapped it up, laid it in a warm place, and fed it carefully with warm milk. All day she watched over it, and by special permission she watched it through the night, too. In the morning her father said that the lamb would live.

It was, then, no wonder that the pet lamb loved Mary and wanted to go everywhere with her. The day that it went to school and was turned out it happened that a young man was there who saw the whole thing, and wrote out the story in the verses which we all know so well.

The lamb lived and thrived and had lambs of its own; it ran into the pasture with the cattle, till one day a cow with sharp horns, while playing, tossed it into the air, and it fell bleeding at the feet of Mary, who chanced to be in the field. With deep grief she watched its little life go out.

From the lamb's fleece a quantity of yarn was spun, and Mrs. Tyer brought some of it to Aunt Tabitha's "bee" and sold it at 25 cents for each piece. In this way she secured $60, which she gave to the fund for the purpose of paying for the Old South church in Boston.

And that is the true story of Mary's Little Lamb, as given in an early issue of one of Boston's oldest newspapers.—Boston Globe.

Swimming events are now being planned by the following "Junior Breezes:" Emily Coolidge, Joan Higginson, Betty Bartlett, Netta Sedgwick, Evelyn Cummings, Ann Gavit and Gabriella and Vivi Ladd. This will be one of the many season's events for Children's hospital in Boston, planned and carried out by the children themselves. It will take place Monday, Septembed 13, at Mrs. Maynard Ladd's studio, Preston Place, Beverly Farms.

Montserrat club is the scene of a pretty tennis tournament now on, by the younger set and some of their friends, for the benefit of the Children's hospital in Boston. See Society columns for particulars.

Francis Manning Stanwood, throughout his long life a resident of Boston and Brookline, died suddenly Thursday morning at his home at 173 Babcock st., Brookline, at the age of seventy-two years. Death was due to heart failure, and up to a few hours preceding the end he had appeared to be in his usual good health. He had been retired for some years from active business.

Mr. Stanwood was born in Boston on July 31, 1848, and was the son of Eben Caldwell Stanwood and Eliza Jane (Dole) Stanwood. He prepared for college at the Boston Latin school, of which he was a graduate, and entered Harvard with the class of 1869, but did not finish his course, leaving college to enter business life.

He was at one time private secretary to the late Mayor Martin of Boston and afterward was identified for many years with the former Boston Journal, of which he was at one time manager and editor. Later Mr. Stanwood became president of the Hotel and Railroad News Company, which office he held for many years.

For a long time he had a summer home on Smith's Point, Manchester, where he served for many years as treasurer of Emmanuel Church. Mr. Stanwood was married, on Jan. 21, 1871, to Miss Louisa Blair Rogers, a daughter of the late Colonel Charles O. Rogers, of Boston. In addition to his wife, Mr. Stanwood is survived by three sons and two daughters, who are Francis M. Stanwood, Jr., Eben Blaine Stanwood and Paul Stanwood, and the Misses Louie R. Stanwood and Alice Stanwood, of Brookline.

ESSEX COUNTY CLUB, Manchester, is having its annual invitation 4-ball tournament this week, beginning Wednesday and closing tomorrow, Saturday. The Shore's expert golfers and professionals from elsewhere are among the couples gaining fresh laurels at Essex. Francis Ouimet and T. G. Stevenson are partners. Mr. Stevenson, of Beverly Farms, has long been a renounced golfer who once played Myopia in 73 strokes and who never lost a Lesley

Two couples, who have won Essex 4-ball tournaments, are competing again, F. T. Pfaelzer, Jr., and J. Ward, who won it last year, and B. W. Estabrook and C. M. Amory.

The Junior League, of Boston, has severed its connections with the Sewing Circles, and hereafter the débutantes will be elected to membership in the league by a secret elections committee, after which, if they so decide, they may form a Sewing Circle. The elections committee will meet some time in September. As yet only a few names of girls who are to come out in 1920-21 have been sent in to the league for admission, and débutante matters seem to be at a standstill for the present. It is not certain that a Sewing Circle will be organized this year, as the increasing number of débutantes each season adds to the problem of the hostesses to provide suitably for their guests at the weekly luncheons, which are the chief feature of the Sewing Circle. When it is time for débutante affairs to come to the front the question will be decided.

ANNISQUAM.—There was much interest this week in the annual fair held in aid of the Annisquam Universalist church, when a number of summer people served on booths. The fair was held in the village hall and the patronage was large. Mrs. George C. Andrew and Mrs. William L. Norton, of the Annisquam cottage colony, had charge of the summer table. Miss Emma Dickerman had charge of the girls' table. A real New England boiled dinner was served in the early evening and the large number of people seated to this feast pronounced it a grand success.

There is one thing missing at the Annisquam colony this season and that is the little ferry, "Wonasquam," which plied up and down the river, between the city proper and East Gloucester. It was not only a convenience, but the trips were a source of great pleasure and enjoyment. The trip, especially at early evening, towards sunset, when the river reflected the colors of the sky, gave an experience to the vacationist here one not soon to be forgotten. The owner of the boat, Percy W. Wheeler, could not make this project pay, however, and the Wonasquam was sold last winter to Boston parties.

Arrivals at Wonasquam Lodge are Dr. Arthur C. Jelly, Boston; Mrs. James Stiles. Gardner; Miss Lillian Leach, Brockton; Mrs. Dan B. Harris, Miss Julie Hammond, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. Wilbur Barnes, Griffin, Ga.; Mrs. U. A.

THE GARDNER LIGHT-FOUR

New England cities are just now having their first glimpse of a new low-priced motor car that has attracted much favorable attention in the west and in the south. It is the Gardner Light-Four built in St. Louis by Russell E. Gardner and his sons R. E., Jr. and Fred W., who formerly built and distributed the Chevrolet car in middle western territory before it was sold to the General Motors two years ago. Last year they repurchased the plant in St. Louis and last January began turning out the Gardner. Production has reached 1000 cars a month and the schedule for next year calls for 18,000 cars. During the winter and spring the Gardner was introduced in the west and the south.

The first car to come to New England arrived recently after a noteworthy run from the factory to Boston, making the trip in six days without any trouble more serious than a tack through one of the tires. The car averaged 26 miles an hour and made $18\frac{1}{2}$ miles to the gallon of gasoline. This car is now being taken on a tour of the principal New England cities and the interest created in the west is being duplicated here. The Gardner has a four cylinder engine with $3\frac{1}{2} \times 5$ inch cylinders, 112 inch wheelbase and weighs 2200 pounds. It is built in touring car and roadster, sedan, coupe and commercial truck types and is designed to meet the market for a thoroughly substantial, comfortable riding motor car at a low price.

Boston capitalists are interested in the Gardner, the company having been financed by Hornblower & Weeks of Boston in association with Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. of St. Louis. The capitalization is in 155,000 shares of no par value, of which 50,000 shares were recently offered to the public at $27 a share. According to officials of the company it will start dividends at $3 which means a yield on the investment of more than 11 per cent. Shares are now being traded in.

THE heat of the past week has been one of the factors drawing folk to the cool North Shore, and especially to the Oceanside, famed for its spacious grounds, its simple and luxurious appointments, and the delightful view afforded from all parts of the house and grounds. The attractive little cottages are affording much comfort to those fortunate enough to secure apartments there.

There are those who claim that Magnolia is the "coolest place on the North Shore," others do not agree—but certain it is that it is one of the coolest places anywhere in New England, as was attested by the refreshing breezes sweeping in from the ocean on both sides of Magnolia Point, during those past (we hope) few very warm days.

Mrs. A. Rex Flinn, who is spending the season at the Oceanside, entertained Mrs. Norman S. Mackie (Marion McGinley) of Manchester, at dinner on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. E. H. Wills, who returned to her home in Detroit for a short time, a few weeks ago, arrived at the Oceanside this week where she will remain for the balance of the season.

Mr. and Mrs. Attila Cox and Miss Harriet Cox, of Louisville, Ky., who spent a few days at the Oceanside early in the summer, have now returned for the balance of the season.

Mrs. F. H. Olmstead and their little son, Francis C., of Providence, R. I., have joined Mrs. Olmstead's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Culbert, who are season guests at the Ocean-side. Mrs. Olmstead was Julia Culbert before her marriage, and she was prominent in the social activities of the young set here.

Among the recent arrivals at the Oceanside for the balance of August are: Mrs. Joseph R. Woodwell, Pittsburgh; Mr. and Mrs. J. Deane Rucker, Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Manchester, Providence; Mrs. E. N. Buxton, Kew Gardens, N. Y.; Miss M. Prince and Mrs. E. Cohen, New York city; Miss Newburgh, Cincinnati, O.; Mrs. S. F. Buffum, New York city; Mr. and Mrs. Brevort Allin, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Cox of New York.

Mrs. Oliver Neidringhaus of St. Louis, Mo., is spending the balance of the season at the Oceanside, where she arrived last week.

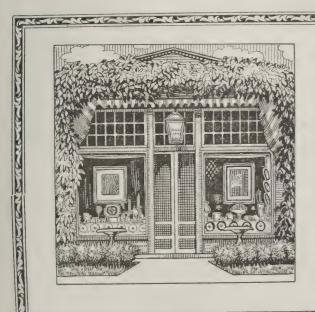

Paying a short visit to Magnolia, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Hickox and Miss Godfrey, of Paris, France, are registered at the Oceanside. They crossed the Atlantic on the last trip of the Olympic.

S. M. Hamill, Jr., of Philadelphia, is the guest for a short visit of his uncle, Dr. S. McC. Hamill, also of Philadelphia, who recently arrived at the Oceanside for August.

Registered for the season at the Oceanside are Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Baker, Miss G. Baker and Miss R. Hassett, of Toledo, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Long, of New York, were guests for the evening, on Tuesday, of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Williamson, who are spending the summer at the Ocean-side.

HUNDREDS OF GOOD SUGGESTIONS

TO perplexed members of prize committees, we can think of no better suggestion than a visit to our Magnolia shop; it is really a small edition of "THE GIFT SHOP OF FIFTH AVE.." for it contains lamps, Sheffield ware, china sets, table decorations, crystal, and hundreds of novelties, as unusual for their distinction as for their variety. And always, without exception, the same reasonable prices of our New York shop prevail.

ALONG THE CAPE ANN AND GLOUCESTER SHORE

By Alex. G. Tupper

CAPE ANN.—The season is at its height on Cape Ann. Every hostelry is crowded with guests and from now till Labor Day there will be few changes. The very warm weather of the past few days has made the people staying in this section content with the cool ocean breezes that sweep over the land. The bathing has been cool and refreshing and daily the fine beaches have been crowded with people. Stage Fort Park was a mecca of pleasure last Saturday, when a steamer load of people, in the majority the employes of the Lowney Chocolate Company, of Boston, came down the bay on the Steamer Mary Chilton, bringing along a military band with them. After arriving at the park about 3 o'clock in the afternoon, sports were in order. Tents were pitched for comfort or convenience of lunch and the hundreds of excursionists had a merry time, returning to Boston in the early evening.

The artists of Cape Ann are almost like bees in swarms and busy at work. Every day the wharves along the harbor and the hills are brilliant with parasols or the smocks of the painters of the feminine type. August finds many exhibitions along the Shore, the Gallery-on-the-Moors, East Gloucester, Grace Horne's Gallery in Magnolia, a small show in the Sargent-Murray-Gilman House on Middle st., Gloucester, private shows by F. J. Mulhaupt, on Rocky Neck ave., East Gloucester, the Molasky pastels at the former Gloucester Yacht clubhouse, Rocky Neck, and the studio of Oscar Anderson, on Rocky Neck ave., near the railways.

A big mid-summer fete in which North Shore society largely participated was the lawn fete held on the grounds of the Addison Gilbert hospital, Gloucester, last Wednesday afternoon and evening, in aid of the new maternity ward for the hospital. The place was an ideal spot for the fete, with its wide area of level, green lawn and pretty landscape. The many tents and decorations of colored bunting, strings of colored electric lights, greenery and crepe paper decorations on different booths, made a wonderful picture.

People of the town and from the summer colonies turned out for the worthy cause and it is expected that in the vicinity of $5,000 will be realized towards the new ward building fund, from this fete. There were several attractions for amusement. An orchestra of ten pieces rendered music during the fete, a dancing pavilion gave pleasure and a large tent with Lilian Owen's Marionettes was well patronized. A cafeteria was a feature and patrons enjoyed having luncheon in the open, on small tables. About $450 was taken in at this stand.

The Bass Rocks booth of miscellaneous articles, under the direction of Mrs. T. H. Mills and Miss Georgiana Dodge and assistants from Bass Rocks, made a splendid record, taking in over $800. Assisting on this booth were Mrs. James Smithwick, Mrs. Thorndike Howe, Mrs. Drayton Meade, Mrs. Winthrop Sargent, Jr., Mrs. Farnsworth Raine, Mrs. Edward D. Parsons, and Col. Howe, Messrs. Mills, Sargent and Smithwick had charge of the whirl wheel. The miscellaneous, cake and hat booths, all under the direction of Eastern Point summer residents, made splendid returns.

The Eastern Point miscellaneous booth had the following committee: Mrs. Stephen W. Sleeper, chairman; Mrs. Charles Stewart, Mrs. James H. Knowles, Miss Mary Serrill, Mrs. John Clay, Miss Caroline Sinkler, Mrs. Elie Nadelman, Miss Mary Kay, Mrs. Howland Twombly, Mrs. Jacob L. Loose, Mrs. Edward Williams. On the cake committee were Mrs. William Sheafe, chairman; Mrs. John Greenough, Mrs. S. A. Sargent, Mrs. John Spring, Miss

Selling Happiness Instead of Furniture

"Happiness" is really what we have to sell to owners of summer homes on the North Shore. It is more than porch and interior decorations. It is the happiness that only a background of artistic and comfortable furnishings can give to summertime. No home is too large—none too small—for our kind of happiness.

An important social event the present week, which terminates this Friday evening, is "The Merry Whirl of 1920," which takes place at the Moorland casino, Bass Rocks. Prominent people from the colonies are taking part in this spectacular extravaganza. It is being held for two Gloucester benefits—the Braewood hospital and the new maternity ward of the Addison Gilbert hospital.

BASS ROCKS.—The all-interesting topic, especially in the Bass Rocks colony is the "Merry Whirl of 1920," being held this week—Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings. A large number of the cottagers and hotel guests are taking part for this big affair at the Moorland casino. Prominent in "The Colonial Wedding," one of the striking features of the Whirl, Booth Tarkington Jameson, nephew of Booth Tarkington, the author, and the original "Penrod" of the Tarkington stories, will assume the part of the bride. Mrs. Ovid Butler Jameson, of Indianapolis, sister of the author, will be the bride's mother. Charles Edwards, the actor, of Kansas, will be the Count de Rochambeau and Mrs. Henry B. Welsh, of New York, who was so striking in last season's "Merry Whirl," will again take part, her role to be as the Countess de Rochambeau. The sextet from "Florodora" will be a pleasing musical feature of the show. Dances, dialogues, tableaux, etc., will comprise a wonderful program, under the direction of Lila Agnew Stewart, of New York.

EASTERN POINT.—The present season has brought more artists to these shores than for many years and at the present time the atmosphere seems to be filled with art. There are numerous exhibitions on. The Gallery-on-the-Moors is keeping to its usual high standard by showing over a hundred subjects by representative artists and pieces of sculpture that are well placed and show the excellence of the work of the geniuses of the chisel. Mulhaupt has an exhibition of his paintings at the studio, near Giles chapel, Rocky Neck ave., till August 31, from 10 a. m. till 6 p. m., Sundays 2 to 5 p. m. An attractive as well as enjoyable social event on Tuesday afternoon was the birthday reception tendered by the artist colony to Miss Jean Nutting Oliver, the Boston painter, on the Hawthorne Inn grounds, near her studio. Artists, sculptors, writers and actors were present to extend their congratulations to Miss Oliver, who has been a member of the East Gloucester artist colony for a great many years.

During the afternoon, Mme. Luise Sarson, the opera singer, of New York, rendered two selections, "Annie Laurie" and "Jean," with violin accompaniment by James W. Thompson, artist, of Boston. Miss Harriet C. Brazier danced very gracefully, in costume, the "Shepherd Dance" and an interpretative dance with violin accompaniment, a waltz by Kreisler, played by Mr. Thompson. Mr. Whitehead, rector of the Church of the Advent (Episcopal), Boston, read a poem, "Them Artistes." A table, prettily decorated with pink gladioli, contained a handsome birthday cake with the name Jean Nutting Oliver inscribed, circled by small, lighted candles.

Among the representative people present were Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Kenyon, Mrs. Gertrude Bourne, of Ipswich;

HAWTHORNE INN—1920

THE radiant summer days are here; The wild rose scents the air; Pond lilies bloom and sea gulls fly— Salt breezes—sunsets rare.

Some friends we hug, some friends we kiss, And all we greet with cheer. A pleasant thing it is, indeed, To meet year after year.

We come from South, from East and West;
We love the Hawthorne's call—
The buoyant air, the shining sea,
"Mine host," who welcomes all.

ROCKPORT. - While cottagers and hotel guests are quite content to remain quiet these days, with an occasional dance at the hotels, still the Rockport Country club is the center of much social life for its members and friends. Last Saturday afternoon, in particular, the club was a royal host to the Old Newbury Golf club, of Newburyport. The spacious Rockport clubhouse at Land's End was aglow with hospitality in every nook and cranny and everyone present was made to feel the hospitality and cordiality extended by the Cape Ann organization. The rain interfered somewhat with the matches at golf, although some enthusiasts were not daunted by the showers in sticking to their golfing. The Rockport team actually blushed when showing its superiority in the matches on the links, but then, the Old Newbury players shouldn't have weakened on this delightful course of the Rockport club. The score was 17 to 6 in favor of Rockport. After golf a sumptuous buffet lunch was served in the main hall of the clubhouse, under the direction of Charles Evans, assisted by Mrs. Harry G. Perkins and Mrs. Lane, the following ladies of the Rockport colony serving: Mrs. Babcock, Mrs. Harry J. SOCIAL ACTIVITIES ALONG THE NORTH SHORE

Barnard Gardens Will Open Saturday—Yachting Week at Marblehead — Manchester Y. C. Regatta Last Saturday

THE BARNARD GARDEN will open tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon from 2-6 as a benefit for the National Civic Federation, and will attract many people to Ipswich. This noted garden on "River Bend Farm," the estate of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Barnard, has been the subject of Breeze many times. Formerly the Barnards opened their garden free of charge so that garden lovers could visit it at stated times. But eventually this was found an unwise thing to do. Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge, of Pride's Crossing, planned the opening of the garden, at the request of many who found other gardens opened in July such a source of pleasure and profit when opened by the Federation. The fee is fifty cents a person.

You will get your money's worth tomorrow afternoon in the Barnard gardens. The great garden plot lies back of the house and extends down to the beautiful Ipswich river. The large rock garden is naturally and charmingly situated on the rocky hillside of the garden. Rare Alpine plants are growing on the sunny, rocky slope. The garden proper is divided into a water garden, rose section and bordered walks. These several walks lead down from the house terrace and have wonderfully interesting wide borders along their sides, borders made up of annuals and perennials arranged so as to afford a succession of bloom.

Fruit trees growing flat and fan-shaped against trelwill see how Ipswich river forms a most impressive and substantial boundary to this garden when you visit it.

After viewing the garden pass by "Windmill Hill Farm," and "Meadow View," and the Ipswich Cable Memorial hospital down to the corner of County rd. and Bay rd. (about a two-minute ride) and stop at "Parting Paths," where the Henry L. Dawes family cordially invite you to a Hampton institute meeting at 4.30 in their home. You will have a musical treat and incidentally see another pretty garden spot.

HAMPTON INSTITUTE meetings are interesting many North Shore people this week. The first of the series of meetings was held last night, another will be held Saturday afternoon, and on Sunday a less formal meeting will be held.

Nahant club was the scene of the first Hampton meeting. It was held at 8.30 Thursday evening. The Hampton quartet sang plantation songs and Columbus Kamba Simango, a native African, and Francis Verigan, an Alaskan Indian, spoke briefly. Patronesses included Mrs. Louis Bacon, Mrs. Dudley B. Fay, Mrs. Charles H. Gibson, Mrs. Thomas Motley, Mrs. F. Harleston Parker, Mrs. Homer B. Richardson, Miss Clara E. Sears, Mrs. Frederick Winslow and Mrs. S. H. Wolcott.

Tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at 4.30 Mrs. Henry L. Dawes, is opening her home in Ipswich (near the hospital and Barnard garden) for a Hampton meeting by the same singers and speakers. Mr. and Mrs. Dawes live at "Parting Paths," the attractive place, corner of Bay rd. and County rd. After visiting the Barnard garden, which is open to the public tomorrow afternoon, why not go to the nearby estate and be entertained by a Hampton institute meeting?

Sunday, at 4.30, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley L. Pickman, of Beverly Cove, are opening their place for another meeting of the Hampton Institute stu-dents. There will be no appeal for contributions. These plantation melodies are always a rare treat.

REGATTA DAY at the Manchester Yacht club last Saturday afternoon "looked like old times," as some one pleasantly remarked. It has already been set down as a coming event for another season, also. The committee on arrangements which made it such a well-planned festive occasion included Commodore Charles K. Cummings, Norton Wigglesworth, E. Sohier Welch, Samuel Eliot, Charles E. Hodges, Jr., and Gordon Abbott, Jr.

The ladies, too, had their share in the day. The patronesses were Mrs. Henry L. Higginson, Mrs. Charles K. Cummings, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, Mrs. Charles Hodges, Miss Margaret Curtis, Mrs. Norton Wigglesworth, Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, Mrs. George Putnam, Mrs. E. Sohier Welch, Mrs. Samuel Eliot and Mrs. Frank Wigglesworth. The attractive little club room was gayly set with a long snowy table in the center. Tea was served all through the late afternoon. Samuel Eliot had charge of the tea, and those who assisted in pouring at different times were Mrs. Frank Wigglesworth, Mrs. E. S. Welch and Mrs. H. S. Grew. Red dahlias on the table, and the silver cups offered as prizes, besides the pretty sports clothes of the ladies made a most charming scene.

Interest ran high when the yachts began coming in about 4 o'clock. They had started at 2 o'clock from Marblehead. Special arrangement had been made with the Corinthian Yacht club and there was a boat race for Manchester 17's and E. Y. C. 17's, the finish being off the clubhouse at four, after which the water sports started.

The balcony of the club as well as around the grounds and on the pier were filled with the interested on-lookers and as the white wings floated in and the little gun was sounded there was much applause.

The following is the summary of the race:

Name Outlaw Mary Norma Constance	E. Y. C. '17 Owner G. Abbott J. H. Harwood R. Foster S. Eliot M. Y. C. '17	Elapsed time 1-58-10 1-58-17 2- 0- 0 2- 0-30

Water sports open to members of the yacht club, their families and friends began when the yacht race was finished. Norton Wigglesworth ran off the events.

The first called was walking the pole, one prize for securing the flag and two for the best costumes. A. L. Putnam, dressed in a "hayseed" suit, made the greatest distance, while Henry B. Sawyer, Jr., in a most realistic clown suit, and George Higginson, as a charming girl bather, carried off prizes for costumes. Other contestants were John M. Cabot in his pajamas; George V. Smith, Greek pirate; George Sturgis as a Pierrot, most attractive in his white and yellow; and Gordon Abbott, Jr., the hit of the day, when he went dashing down the pier in the glory of his pink mosquito netting dress, pink hat and pink hose.

The second event was the tub race for boys under 16 years. After the many ups and downs of the contestants George Higginson won first prize and George Sturgis second, Howard Sturgis and J. O. Post, Jr., being the only others in the race.

Senior swimming race was the third event. A. L. Putnam came in first and George V. Smith, second; other contestants were Gordon Abbott, Jr., and J. M. Cabot.

Junior swimming race: George Higginson, first, and J. L. Post, Jr., second; others, Avery Sawyer, George and Howard Sturgis. The juniors swam 25 yards, while 50 yards was the limit for the seniors.

George V. Smith took first prize in diving and A. L. Putnam, second. Other entries included Gordon Abbott, Jr., J. O. Post, Jr., George Higginson and J. M. Cabot.

The tender race had the following pairs of contestants: Charles A. Welch-John Jeffries; Lloyd Upton-James Otis, K. Walker-McKay Hanson, William Dexter-Henry S. Grew, Jr., R. W. Emmons, 2d-R. S. Humphrey, A. L. Putnam-G. V. Smith. Upton and Otis took first and Dexter and Grew, second place.

The one-end canoe race was entered by J. M. Cabot, A. L. Putnam, G. V. Smith, George and Howard Sturgis, and G. Abbott, Jr., who took first prize, with K. Walker, second.

Putnam-Smith and Abbott-Dexter constituted the lively contestants in the canoe-tilting, the last event of the day, resulting in Abbott and Dexter winning out.

Judges for the day were Commodore Charles K. Cummings, Gordon Abbott and S. Parker Bremer.

The "Fox," Gordon Dexter's handsome launch, with a party on board, came down from Beverly Farms for the events. The "Cintra," with the Sydney E. Hutchinson party, also of the Farms, stayed until everything was over, when it turned homeward and skimmed through the water at a terrific rate. No wonder the little "Cintra" could weather its way by its own power to Miami, Fla., this winter, choosing the inland water-ways for its route.

Yachting and Marblehead have ever been associated when speaking of the North Shore and its many activities. This has been yachting week at Marblehead and social life in that section has centered around the annual midsummer racing. The harbor has been well filled with large, small and medium-sized boats, sloops, schooners and steam yachts. The Eastern Yacht club, Boston Yacht club and the Corinthian Yacht club combined for the racing, and many visiting boats took part in the various events which were run off during the week, while crowds lined the shore to see the fleet of over 100 boats go out by Marblehead rock en route for the starting point in the racing course each day.

Social events hinged about the clubhouses, and band concerts, dinner dances and afternoon teas were featured for the North Shore people and their guests, who have come from all over the country for this midsummer event.

The Webb Foot Crew of the Eastern Yacht club entertained the afterguards of the Vanitie and Resolute at dinner Tuesday evening and a jolly good time was enjoyed. Among those present in the group was "Charlie" Adams, who sailed the Resolute to victory in the international races.

Among those registered at the Eastern Yacht club Tuesday night were J. S. Lawrence, Howard E. Perry, J. P. Loud, Edgar Crocker, C. H. Denney and R. W. Emmons, who stayed over after the Webb Foot Crew dinner.

The Thursday evening band concert was a great success and the Eastern Yacht club was filled with guests. Among those who entertained were Mr. and Mrs. Graydon Stetson, who had as their guests Gov. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge and Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns. Others present included J. Fred Hussey, J. M. Hunnewell, W. S. Nichols, J. F. Doyle, J. P. Monroe, C. M. Barker, R. F. Adams, Paul Fitzpatrick, J. R. Harding, C. F. Manning, W. E. Plummer, and W. N. H. Bates.

THREE entertainments in benefit of the South End Music school, of Boston, will be given in houses of members of the advisory board summering on the Shore. The first will be at the residence of Mrs. S. Fisher Corlies, Magnolia, Wednesday afternoon, August 18, when Mrs. Franklin Townsend, of Washington, will be the soloist. Mrs. Townsend has never been heard on the North Shore, but is so well known in Washington that a song recital given by her will, without question, be a great success. She will have as accompanist Miss Millicent Chapman, of London, Eng., I. R. A. M., A. R. M. (pianoforte). Miss Chapman has rare ability and is in every respect a most finished and delightful artist. Young and talented as she is we feel a great future lies in store for her and Miss Corlies, who is one of our Shore's first patrons of good music, has, as usual, made a wise choice in bringing such an artist to be heard where there are so many lovers of music.

The second entertainment will be at Mrs. Frederick G. Hall's, Eastern Point, Gloucester. Mrs. Hall, with her keen love of music and all it means, is heart and soul with the advisory board. She has planned to do all in her power to make the afternoon of Wednesday, August 25, a very delightful and memorable occasion.

The third entertainent will be a bridge party, Wednesday afternoon, September 1, at Mrs. Godfrey L. Cabot's, Beverly Farms.

CHILDREN'S ISLAND SANITARIUM

A North Shore Institution Upon Which We Look Every Day—on One of the Islands in Salem Bay

General View of Children's Island, where Sanitarium is located

CHILDREN'S ISLAND SANITARIUM is on Lowell island, at the entrance of Marblehead harbor. Every summer over a hundred children from the hot and crowded districts of Boston—children suffering from tubercular joints, from the after effects of infantile paralysis, from anæmia, debility and malnutrition—are sent there by the social service departments of the Boston hospitals.

An urgent appeal is being made for contributions, as the cost of properly nourishing one hundred or more underfied children is great. Contributions may be sent to the treasurer, Augustus Hemenway, Jr., Room 905, 53 State st., Boston, or to Mrs. Roger W. Cutler and Mrs. Bayard Warren, of Pride's Crossing, members of the ladies' committee actively engaged in raising funds. A cordial invitation is extended to those owning boats to land and visit the sanitarium at any time.

The boat belonging to the island will run from Tucker's wharf, Marblehead, every Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock and will gladly carry over passengers who wish to visit the choir service at 3.30.

Bathing is one of the diversions greatly enjoyed by the children

WITH LILIAN OWEN'S MARIONETTES

Held in Such Popular Favor Along North Shore This Summer

ONE of the distinct additions to the North Shore this season is Lilian Owen's Marionettes, which are being shown at various sections of the Shore from week to week. Miss Owen is at Gloucester for the summer—in the Community House on Washington street, at the corner of Main street. Tonight (Friday) at 8.30, at Grace Horne's studio, Magnolia, a special performance will be given of "Jack and the Beanstalk."

"These tiny (the marionettes), ranging from 16 to 20 inches high," says Miss Owen, "brings to the stage possibilities unknown to life-size, life molded actors.

"If you are a child they will make those secret dreams come true. If you confess to being a grown-up they will recapture the imperishable dreams of the long ago."

THE MAGNOLIA SHOPS

NOTES OF INTEREST

By GLADYS H. RICHARDS

THE ladies of the North Shore colony will very soon be deep in the selection of their fall wardrobe. Already the furs, hats, frocks and suits, many of them just received from France, are appearing in a number of the shops.

Knowing that at about this time each year the Grande Maison de Blanc usually has a distinctive and very lovely trousseau display, we shall begin our shopping trip with a visit there. And we are not disappointed! Three windows are filled with a richly beautiful linen display. In one window a superbly lovely bead spread is of filet and pointe de Venice lace, which is a masterpiece of workmanship, skilled with many generations of training. Much of this work is done under a magnifying glass, and each part is worked by super-skilled persons, and finally made into an artistic and perfect whole.

The bed and table linens on display are monogrammed in distinctive and elegantly simple designs. A rare and very beautiful set of table linen is monogrammed in pointe de Venice lace.

In another window the linen is alluringly arranged in a linen chest, and tied with dainty bows of lavender ribbon, and still another has the bath towels, which are also tastefully monogrammed.

In the window at Schmidt & Son's are displayed French sterling pheasants, which would add an original and unique finish to a flat flower table decoration, and which are very new.

Blinking at us among the rare old silver on display are the lovely English Sheffield trays which, we are told, are a part of a large shipment just received. Visiting among the fine old silver of which there is such a charming selection on display, from the elaborately beautiful to the quaintly simple design, has always been a delightful pleasure to the folk of the North Shore colony.

From the allure of fine old silver and lovely linens we turn our attention once more to clothes. Such adorable wraps, gowns, hats and coats—all new and smart and desirable, are at Bonwit Teller's! We have a vague suspicion that their entire stock is changed every week, for each week reveals so many new things, and we never seem to see the same thing twice.

A serge gown that is very distinctive is embroidered in navy blue and henna wool. And the very newest thing is a gown of serge, with trimmings of metallic braid. Simplicity is the key note of this gown, as shown by the modishly straight lines and narrow girdle of the metallic braid. Still another serge gown has the all-over embroidery of gold, suggesting the brocaded effect. Attractive and decidedly "different" is a little gown of navy crepe meteor for afternoon wear. Dainty little puffed-under sleeves add an original note, and the wide girdle embroidered in wool, makes an effective finish.

Here again the bride-to-be is being made happier. This time it is by the dainty "undies" for her trousseau,—sets both of silk and handkerchief linen, richly trimmed with val lace. Exquisitely beautiful is a set of French georgette, with the figured embroidery.

Very popular are the jersey sports suits at Tyson's. They have the straight little slip-on jacket, with high round neck and long sleeves. The skirt is finely pleated. The tout ensemble is decidedly "different" and very "comfy."

A very smart and distinctively lovely slip-on sweater at Farr's is hand made, with "cute" little square pockets, and fancy stitching for trimming. It fits beautifully, and there is no belt. The beautiful silk slip-on for which there has been so many calls, has been made up with the high round neck, always so popular,—a decidedly added charm.

There scarfs, too, are being received à bras ouverts, by the discriminating.

The cool, attractive little shop in the Oceanside hotel, Hill & Bush, is the next on our list. A profusion of gowns, wraps and dainty little blouses are tastefully arranged in display. An exquisite little gown has the apron front and front bodice of sequins in pretty designs on a silk net foundation, over crepe meteor. The back is uniquely simple. Crepe meteor, gracefully draped, hangs right from the shoulders.

A blue hand embroidered gown for afternoon wear, has a jade sash of chiffon. A dance frock of two-toned taffeta, is smartly puffed at the waist line, and has the sectioned overskirt.

A very beautiful wrap is of chiffon and satin, iridescent sequins add a charming air of elegance.

At Collins & Fairbanks, a light tan English Burberry coat, with loose back and raglan sleeve, is very much admired. There are also the little duvetyne sports hats, which are simply a necessity, and for which nothing else will answer.

Of course we wouldn't dream of visiting Collins & Fairbanks without a look at their richly beautiful furs. But, going back for just a moment to their sports goods, they really have everything that one could possibly think of for sports wear.

A very beautiful and smartly comfortable beaver wrap, hangs to the waist line, has the full back and deep collar, and flared sleeve.

Attending Hickson's fall opening is one of the important things planned for this week. We find gorgeously beautiful fur wraps on display, in a variety of styles and skins, as well as the smart little one-, two- and three-animal neck pieces, which are simply a necessity in bringing out the effect of a pretty street frock or suit.

A wrap of ermine, the skins of which are artistically woven together to form a large and perfect spider web in the back, is fascinatingly lovely. The lines carry themselves unbrokenly around the sides and terminate in front, where another web appears when the edges of the wrap are brought together. A suggestion of the design appears in the luxurious collar, and the tout ensemble is adorable.

Another wrap that is winningly attractive is of dark eastern mink, the skins forming a pleasing design. This wrap, like the ermine, has the richly deep collar. The lining is delightfullly lovely,—of American beauty satin, demurely veiled with black chiffon. A row of the little mink tails introduced in the lining at the waist line, add a unique charm.

The expression "wrapped in furs" is literally carried out in the beautiful and comfortable wrap of kolinsky and caracue. Kolinsky forms the deep collar, and this fur is carried down to the hip line, after which the caracue puts in its claim, and completes the air of distinction.

The silver fox and the soft, girlishly becoming blue fox pieces are exquisitely lovely. A very handsome coat is of sage green duvetyn with a deep collar of grey caracue. A distinctive note has been struck in the grey duvetyn dots, which are embroidered on sleeves and sides of the coat, with grey silk

A coat dress of suède brown silk duvetyn, has the wide beaver bandings forming the collar, and extending down to the bottom, where it obligingly turns the corner and continues on its way around the skirt. Dull gold embroidery follows along by the side of the fur. The short sleeves are also banded with fur.

"BOOKS FOR EVERYBODY"

Dr. and Mrs. Mosher will Open Their Marblehead Home for an Exhibit of Antiques for American Library Assoc'n Fund Benefit

MARBLEHEAD has had many mid-summer visitors this week during the opening of the special exhibit in the Lee mansion. Of course all who see the Lee mansion also see the King Hooper mansion and "Country Store" across the street. But a great pleasure is in store for the North Shore on Saturday, August 28, when Dr. and Mrs. Harris P. Mosher, of "The Mooring," 127 Front st., Marblehead, will open their house and garden for an exhibit of antiques, also a tea, on that day as a benefit for the "Books for Everybody Fund," of the American Library association.

Now what will you see at the Mosher home?

First, let us say that it is just across the harbor, opposite the Corinthian Yacht club on the Neck, and the garden and piazzas on the water side of the house as well as on the rocks will be the best "reserved seats" possible to see the day's doings on the water over that way.

The house and garden literally hang on the rocks, hence the name "The Mooring." A pretty house of pure English architecture, part stucco and part wood, surrounded with a narrow but attractive garden in which a sundial and a pool for lilies are features, and a high brick wall with brown trimmings matching the brown blinds on the house are the distinctive points about the outside. The high wall runs along the front of the place and a gateway admits to the little garden leading up to the house. Old-fashioned flowers abound. A cluster of charming blue agapanthus lilies have been brought from the English home of Mrs. Mosher's grandmother and are thriving well in their rocky home. The garden around the house has been practically made by Dr. and Mrs. Mosher themselves.

Mrs. Mosher is an English woman and a collector of antiques and other things of interest. Old china, silver, furniture, costumes and autographs are among the various things that will be shown. The autographs include Lincoln's, Washington's, the Duke of Wellington's, and many others of note.

But the whole house, since it was built in 1913, has been furnished with the rarest and most interesting things that Mrs. Mosher could find. Her home was near Manchester, England, and many of the things have descended to her from English relatives, and others she has found in Marblehead and its vicinity.

A rose-wood table from England; a communion table from an old church in Chelsea where John Harvard preached; her grandfather's clock from England, a mahogany affair over 100 years old that shows the moon and weather phases; old English chests; a black walnut "pier" table; a butler's secretary; highboys; a Marie Antoinette dressing table having a special place for the wig; mahogany four-posters; and old needle work shawls and coverlets are some of the things you'll see at the Mosher home. A collection of pictures brought from China about 200 years ago are of interest; also the Sheffield plate and old silver. Some of the china used in the White House during Lincoln's time, also lanterns carried in the Lincoln political parades are seen. Two old silver candelabra, sold to help put some boys through Harvard, have an honored place in the dining-

The Moshers purchased an old house in Haverhill a few years ago and its treasures now furnish one room almost completely. This is known as the "white room," since the white paneling covering the walls came from the old house. Among the interesting things in the room is a rocker big enough for two, known as a "courting" rocker. It is from Daniel Webster's home and is now standing before the fireplace, also furnished with an old crane and fixtures.

The Mosher house will be open clear to the attic, really one of the most interesting parts of the place, and one where both Dr. and Mrs. Mosher spend much time working on various hobbies. A collection of French war medals are seen up here, besides old furniture.

The tea and ices will be served by young ladies from various libraries in this section of the state. dressed in old-time costumes fitting in well with the antiques. Mrs. Mosher is bearing all expenses herself and everything that is made will go to the library fund. Help it along by going and seeing the exhibit for only fifty cents, paying a nominal price for your tea, besides viewing the wonderful panorama of the yachts in the harbor while you wander around the place. Hours are 10 to 12 a. m. and 2 to 6 p. m. It is given under the patronage of the trustees of the Marblehead public library. Any donations above the fifty-cent admission fee will be thankfully received and go towards the good work. Mrs. Mosher hopes to raise $500, and that will mean 1000 people present.
"Books for Everybody," is the new national movement of the American Library association.

In a sentence the program is a plan to promote voluntary self-education through the use of libraries. It points to the time when books will be freely accessible to every man, woman and child in the United States. City dwellers are inclined to believe that libraries are available to Americans everywhere, and yet today more than sixty million Americans are without adequate library facilities.

This movement is constructive, but the association will not attempt to tell the people of America how to think or what to read. It will urge the general circulation of the truth through the medium of good books. Coöperating with the existing library agencies, it will urge increased support for all libraries, strive for a better citizenship, work for the extenson of the county library plan, aid in the establishment of more business and technical libraries, place libraries on vessels of the American Merchant Marine, maintain a clearing house of library information, and conduct a sustained program that will make the library a more powerful factor in the life of every community.

GLOUCESTER FISHERMEN'S INSTITUTE

One of North Shore's Worthy Charities - Plans Under Way for Enlarging Building, Thus Enlarging Scope of Work

(Contributed)

GLOUCESTER FISHERMAN'S INSTITUTE had a very humble beginning, but like every institution that has rendered a very necessary service, it has grown. In fact, for a number of years the work has been handicapped by an inadequate building and equipment. With a constituency numbering thousands of fishermen, following an occupation that deprives them of many of the comforts and advantages of life ashore, the Institute has rendered a notable service. The very need of these men has been so urgent that the building has been acceptable, but all connected with the work have felt the loss of opportunities to render a much more effective

The fishermen depend wholly upon the Institute for the kind of service it renders. It does not duplicate the work of any other institution, because these men would not go anywhere else; the Institute is their center. Last winter, on a bitterly cold day, the chaplin met a fisherman hurrying to the inviting warmth of the Institute building, who said, "I don't know what we fellows would do without this place."

Today the Institute is doing more for the men than ever before. Besides providing recreation and the conveniences that make for cleanliness and comfort, a series of Sunday evening entertainments is given. Last winter twenty-six "Pleasant Sunday Evenings" were given with an attendance of 1871 men, an average of 72. Good music, illustrated lectures and addresses made for pleasure and instruction. Through January and February the weather was bitterly cold and sometimes stormy, but there was always a good attendance at the "Pleasant Sunday Evenings" at the Institute. With improved conditions in the building the social and educational programs will be extended. value of such entertainments cannot be over-emphasized when we consider the conditions of the fishermen's life.

While the building is not large and under the present conditions cannot accommodate the many men who frequent it, by a small addition and the rearrangement of rooms a building adequate to the needs of the men will be obtained. Often the trouble with a building is not its size, but its arrangement; when this is remedied, space that was wasted is utilized and the building made commodious. Moreover, by a rearrangement the men can be distributed so that they will not overcrowd one part of the building. The alterations in the Institute building will make for this distribution, for a number of activities can be carried on at the same time.

At present the recreation room on the main floor is overcrowded at times, while there is room on the first floor rear that is going to waste. The first floor rear in its present condition is dark, poorly ventilated and unattractive, but under improved conditions it will be bright, well ventilated and inviting. This floor is level with the street in the rear so that with the new conditions a flood of light will be obtained that will brighten the large pool-room accommodating five tables. The baths on this floor, which at present are in an annex, will be placed inside the main building next to the heater room where they can be made comfortable twelve months in the year.

On the first floor front there will be a large assembly room which will serve as a lobby most of the time, where the men can congregate and lounge, and which can be used for entertainments at any time. At present, because the pool tables are on this floor, this room can be used for entertainments only on Sunday. Under the new conditions lectures, socials, etc., can be put on any day of the week without interfering with the recreation of the men in the pool-room. Off the assembly room in the new addition in the rear will be a reading room where the men can read or write undisturbed. Folding doors will separate the reading from the assembly room. In both of these rooms there will be open fireplaces, adding cheer and comfort. A moving picture booth and stage in the assembly room will give an equipment that is very essential to the work.

On the same floor will be a room which can be used as an office and reception room, besides a general office with lunch counter. A roller curtain will separate the assembly room from the counter and office, leaving a passage so that men can be served at the counter or pass down stairs to the pool-room while an entertainment is on in the assembly

On the second floor front is the dormitory, which at present has ten rooms with shower bath, supply room, etc. Under the new conditions there will be thirteen rooms with added closet room. These additional rooms will be greatly appreciated by the men, many of whom at present cannot be accommodated.

It can be seen from this description that the building when enlarged and altered will be well equipped, and that a much more effective service can be rendered. A program handicapped by the present conditions can be carried on in the future, giving the men opportunities that they will accept with pleasure.

The chief reason for making the alterations in the present building, besides its adaptability, is its location. No site equal to the present could be obtained in Gloucester.

The directors, after careful consideration, decided that in justice to the work they could not allow it to continue handicapped by the present condition of the building. While efforts have been made to create an interest in a new building, something has always intervened, and to raise money for such a structure at the present time seemed like imposing too heavy a burden upon the community with three other drives on this summer. After consulting an architect the possibilities of the present building were revealed and in view of the urgent need it was decided to make the enlargement and alterations.

It is possible to make the desired improvements owing to a gift of $15,000 willed by the late George A. Upton, of Magnolia, who specified that it should be used for that purpose. It will probably cost $25,000 to make the enlargement and alterations, leaving $10,000 to be raised. It means the assumption of a debt of $10,000, which it is hoped will be met in time by all who believe in this work for the fishermen. Owing to the number of drives for other worthy causes carried on in Gloucester this year, it is not deemed advisable to carry on a campaign to raise money. However, it is felt that many will be interested in this new venture and in view of its necessity will aid this cause.

Surely the imperative need of a proper building, modest yet adequate, will appeal to the hearts and minds of all who realize the need of our fishermen.

A Brook Garden, One of the Attractive Features of "Willowbrook"

MRS. JOSEPH H. TYLER and her son, Charles H. Tyler, of "Willowbrook," Beverly Cove, have an interesting "brook garden." Verily all gardens on the Shore are different! The brook running through the place has been taken advantage of to plant a garden both in it and along its banks. This makes a pretty sight and a most unusual one for interest and novelty.

With iris in the brook for the main flowers mostly there are other plantings in it of forget-me-nots, marsh marigold's and flowers specially adapted to water, while along its banks are phlox, now in brilliant array.

A lily pond near the brook and through which it runs after being taken underground for some distance, is also fed by an artesian well. Another pond near the house is made in oblong shape, with cement boundaries, has group plantings, and is fed by springs. Near it a little vine-covered foot-bridge crosses the brook.

Lilies have not done so well this year, the gardener says, on account of the dry weather. Strange as it seems with roots submerged in water all the time, yet, if the water lowers by drought, he says lilies do not do so well as when there is plenty of rain.

Besides the big vegetable garden, a small flower garden, arbors and seats, and many potted plants throughout the place, and a large planting of rhododendrons, the long winding "brook garden" is still the feature and adds to the variety of gardens that could be numbered upon the Shore.

GLIMPSES HERE AND THERE OF

NORTH SHORE ESTATES

Front Entrance to the Isaac T. Mann residence at Coolidge Point, Manchester.

The view on front cover shows opposite side of house.

MR. AND MRS. ISAAC T. MANN, of Coolidge Point, Manchester, had extensive alterations made upon their newly purchased home during the past winter by Roberts & Hoare, of Manchester. The enlargement of the hall and diningroom, new paneling and new floors, new or enlarged fireplaces, the addition of a sunroom to be used for a breakfast room, and a stone stairway leading from the piazza and breakfast room down to the garden, are the principal new features that constitute the work begun in the winter.

The grounds with their attractive little rose garden and formal garden have not been changed. From the outside the long brown-shingled house has the same appearance, with the exception of the stone steps descending from the terrace and piazza on one end.

But upon entering the hall, the effect is seen to be very beautiful and English looking. The floors of the lower story are black-waxed, making a most striking and interesting feature. The paneling is very effective in the hall, living-room and dining-room. The hall and dining-room were enlarged by utilizing veranda space that was not needed in that section of the house. The change made a hall and dining-room of excellent proportions. The living-room has a much enlarged fireplace, with an attractively built-in "inglenook."

The lower floor is being furnished by old pieces of English furniture purchased by Mrs. Mann when on a recent trip to Europe. Slowly it is arriving and a chest here and there, mirrors, tables and chairs and other pieces are being put into the rooms and halls. When it is all across and established in its destined home the Mann place will be one of the most interesting and richly furnished houses with English antiques on the Shore.

A handsomely polished black railing is noticed on the stairway. The many upper chambers are cool and airy, and all have fine water views. Each one has a private bath.

Color schemes are effectively carried out throughout the house. The living-room is in blue and rose, going well with the black floors and oak paneling, here carried half way up the wall, which is brown in color. The dining-room is done in blue and black. The new breakfast room, opening off from a small den, is gay in yellow and blue. A tiled floor, not yet laid, will be used in this room.

The upper floor has some charming color schemes. Rose and green with green tiles in the fireplace, make one of the largest rooms a pretty study. Then there are guest rooms done in yellow, and one in a lovely blue, while the bachelors' suite is a most attractive set of rooms for William T. Mann's numerous guests.

The young daughter, Miss Alice W. Mann, has a room done in blue and black. Her friend, Miss Elizabeth Hickey, who spends the summers with her, has a room in yellow.

By cutting out trees here and there more attractive vistas have been made of the fine stretch of sea off Coolidge Point.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN R. McGinley's home on the tip of Smith's Point, Manchester, is now nearly completed in the way of new additions and improvements made this spring and summer. A service wing 80 x 70, a breakfast room and terrace have been built. The stone and cement terraces and sun-parlor on the side hanging over the great rocks beneath this part of the house are a magnificent piece of work, doing much credit to Connolly Bros., of Beverly Farms. The other additions and alterations have been in the hands of Roberts & Hoare, of Manchester.

The breakfast room is a charming room done in green. Through its white curtained windows the garden back of the house and a long stretch of water view are seen. A grass terrace is a new addition on the back of the house, lying between the new stone terrace and breakfast room. The main dining-room has large French windows opening on to this grass terrace.

It is hard to tell which really is or should be the back of the McGinley place. On three sides the water-view is ideal while on the fourth is the only land approach to the house. Now, however, with new terraces on two sides and the service wing changed to another side they have, perhaps, the most choice terrace views of any place on the Shore. The McGinley home from its unique situation out on the rocky point has a wide sweep and an atmosphere that can only be compared to being on a boat. The swish of the waves comes up, seemingly, beneath the floors of the terraces.

A rose garden will be the next new feature of the place. It will be planted beneath the grass terrace and the rock garden and pool. The first island off the point is also a part of the estate.

Sky, sea, rocks and the coaxed vegetation all combine to make a place much desired and loved by the family.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS B. GANNETT, of "Waldyn," Blossom lane, Manchester, have a home built in recent years along somewhat striking and unusual lines. The home is mellowing with time into a beautiful garden retreat behind the high terra cotta walls that give the place its air of seclusion and add so much to the attractiveness of "Waldyn."

The big stucco house with its green blinds stands almost in the center of the place. A handsome terrace is on the water side and from this terrace extends the long grass stretch used for croquet and around which are borders of flowers. The terrace is attractively arranged with evergreens. The outlook from the terrace over the acre of smooth lawn space on towards the water is the most charming view imaginable. Roses clamber recklessly over the walls that enclose the lawn and are offset by the borders of mixed garden flowers and clumps of pines here and there that follow the walls.

Lying at one side of the house like a little outer room is the lily pool and its pretty surroundings. Carrying out the idea of walls and seclusion this garden-room is separated from the front lawn and garden back of it by walls with arched entrances. Roses hug the walls here, also shrubbery and other flowers.

From the pool garden a long walk, the evergreen garden walk, bordered with rhododendrons and mountain laurel, leads back to the vegetable gardens and playhouse belonging to the children.

Walls make a courtyard between the house and garage. In this the driveway sweeps around the lawn space.

Clumps of pines dot this courtyard as the only ornaments. "Waldyn" is different from other Shore places (we know that all differ) in the way its house, grounds and garage seem to be united in a harmonious whole by its handsome walls.

In the playhouse is where Thomas B., Jr., John Draper and Robert T. reign supreme. Tommy, Jack and Bobby are the usual names that these sturdy youngsters are known by. Tommy and Jack are helping out the gardener this year by having a garden of their own. Tommy's garden is coming along unusually well and ought to respond to his daily labors in it. If Tommy puts the same energy into his garden hoeing as he does into his baseball with Bunny Woods there ought not to be a weed in his patch.

Mrs. N. W. Rice and daughter, Miss Annie Rice, of Burgess Point, Beverly Cove, have an interesting little formal garden near the house in an opening made some fourteen years ago among the fine trees that fill the point. Although the little spot has been written about before, it is always of interest to enter it under the rose arches at either end and walk around its many little geometrically shaped beds of old-fashioned flowers. Tiny grass paths separate the beds and a bird bath centres the place. A low hedge is used for an enclosure.

Among the flowers are seen some white roses seldom seen nowadays, mourning bride, African marigolds in both orange and yellow, and almost all the ones that used to be such favorites, some of which have retained their popularity to the present day with garden lovers.

MRS. CRANMORE N. WALLCE, of Neptune st., Beverly Cove, has one of the most beautiful and noticeable places in that section. The artistic looking stucco house, with its bright red tile roof and showy flowers, makes a picture admired by all who pass. In rose time the verandas running the length of the front side of the house are literally lined and matted with roses.

Very noticeable now are two tall geraniums at the front door, over five feet tall, with great fire-balls of bloom on them. The greenhouse doorway also has the same kind blossoming on either side. One fully ten feet tall stands by the big white flag pole, looking like a vine running up the pole. It, too, is covered with a myriad of red flowers.

"Waldyn," the summer home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett and family, at Blossom lane, Manchester

Attractive trees of several varieties are scattered through the grounds. Little groups of tall pines here and there at one side make interesting park-like spots. Climbing hydrangeas on several of the big trees are among the unusual features of the place, as well as being unusual any place on the Shore. When these vines are in blossom the trees from top to bottom are a rare sight. Planted from 12 to 20 years ago, some before the late Mr. Wallace purchased the place, they have made a luxuriant growth in the meantime.

The gardener's cottage by the roadside is one of the features of the place with its very English look and garden setting. The greenhouse and garage stand not far from the main house. A border garden edging the hill is a charming place to walk through on the narrow cement walk that runs between the rows of flowers.

While flowers are around the house in profusion and scattered here and there in beds on the lawn, it is in the border garden that the old-fashioned ones hold sway. On the inner sides of the border various kinds are found and on the outer side, running in irregular scallops along the grassy edge of the hill, another variety is seen. In this way the border is an interesting place to wander through either in the middle or on the outside. Petunias are everywhere used effectively in the border and elsewhere. Mrs. Wallace calls them a most "satisfying" flower. This border is planted so that a succession of bloom is obtained from early spring until late autumn.

A sundial stands near the border with the motto:

Let others tell of storms and showers I'll only mark your sunny hours.

Below the border garden lies the vegetable garden, a steep hill with a long flight of cement steps leading down to it. The thrifty vegetables make a pretty sight below. Besides the ordinary table vegetables much celery is seen, Chinese cabbage, Brussels sprouts, peppers, sweet corn, and the like, with early and late plantings of many kinds. A berry garden is also nearby.

The seven or eight acres belonging to the Wallace place are kept green and thriving through their own water system.

A Visit to Havelock Pierce Studio, at Manchester

By LILLIAN McCANN

THE exhibition of the new dry-point plastic camera pictures now being held at the Havelock Pierce studio, at Manchester, contains some truly wonderful portraits. Among the international celebrities may be mentioned Chief Justice White of the Supreme Court, Theodore Roosevelt, Cardinal Gibbons and Cardinal Mercier, Enrico Caruso, the King and Queen of the Belgians, the English Prince of Wales, and our own Governor Calvin Coolidge; Col. M. B. Thompson of New York, the late Hennen Jennings of Washington, and Col. Wm. A. Slater, also of Washington.

Mrs. Joseph Leiter's portrait represents her in cameo

Mrs. Joseph Leiter's portraît represents her in cameo effect and is most pleasing. Mrs. J. Kearsley Mitchell, 3d, is represented in a light airy costume in which the lights and shades are delightfully mingled.

Mrs. Albert H. Carroll makes a striking study in her rich mole skin wrap. Its warmth seems to radiate through the picture, making this one of the most wonderful studies seen. It is a Romney at his best.

Walter J. Hill, son of the late J. M. Hill, railroad magnate, is here represented like a fine black and white etching most interesting and effective. Mr. and Mrs. John R. McGinley, are very dignified and striking likenesses, as are those of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Culbertson.

A strong and impressive portrait is that of Dean Pierce, of Brookline, whose daughters, Mrs. Thomas Barbour, Mrs. James L. Huntington and Mrs. Richard Hale, have their homes on the North Shore.

Miss Frances Hoar and Miss Eunice Hopkinson, of Brookline, are here represented as beautiful and interesting girlish figures.

Mrs. Francis Garvan, of Washington and New York, pictures a lady of great charm.

Mme. Newberry, of Detroit, shows an older lady done in black and white medium, a truly grand dame.

Young Jay Gould in naval uniform is a striking figure.

Mrs. John B. Pitney and her little son is a charming study of a tender mother gazing at her little child.

Mr. Pierce's child portraiture is justly famous. The active, smiling faces of the youngsters shown impart the impression of the joy of living. Among the noteworthy ones may be mentioned Jean Moore, Allen Sheldon, Rhoda Newberry, John and Alice Edmands, Vincent McLean, and the young son of Frederick Ayer.

Space forbids further details at this time, but all the portraits are most artistic and fascinating. The artist is too well known as an international photographer to need introduction to the people of the North Shore, his studio at Manchester being one of the show places. Visitors calling at this studio will be sure of receiving the best in art, together with dignified and coureous treatment.

After all there are no pictures like the Henry Havelock Pierce pictures—they are justly famous.

A Glimpse Into Grace Horne's Gallery at Magnolia

By GLADYS H. RICHARDS

IN walking along Lexington Avenue, Magnolia, I saw the sign "The Grace Horne Gallery" so many, many times that subconsciously I became familiar with it, and it invariably suggested a long wall covered with vague outlines of pictures—which was all I could see from outside. A few days ago someone asked me if I had yet visited the Grace Horne Gallery, and I shamefacedly admitted I had not, silently determining to do so at the very first opportunity, for it is said to be one of the largest exhibitions of paintings and sculpture on the North Shore.

Lexington Avenue has one more acquisition to be proud of, for the gallery is a decided triumph for our "miniature Fifth Avenue."

A surprise greeted me when I entered, for I had really not dreamed that the place was so large. However, I found the pictures immensely interesting, though I do not pretend to know a great deal about paintings. I love them for their beauty of suggestion and color; and the subtle charm with which the artist captures his dreams, and presents them to us.

Walter L. Palmer's "The Hidden Path," is very lovely. In the foreground there is the suggestion of footsteps, almost completely hidden by snow. Trees, heavy laden with snow, border the path, while in the background the outline of a house appears. It is the type of picture that captures and holds one's imagination.

Hobart Nichols' "Gloucester Homestead" expresses in a very beautiful way our North Shore autumn, and Gloucester's quaintness. A rambling old house, with its queer little old fence, and golden leaves fallen to the ground from a tree in the foreground, tells its story of Gloucester's rustic charm.

Chauncey F. Ryder has captured the spirit of Spring in "The Valley in Spring." A winding, sparkling brook seems veritably to sing of Spring, while the fresh coloring of the trees and grass, and blue sky with its fluffy white clouds, assure you that spring is the most beautiful season of the year.

Marion Boyd Allen has deftly caught the boyishly and sweetly serious expression on the child's face in "The Shipbuilder." His round face, pouting lips and wide open expressive eyes, make one love him at sight.

Very cleverly has Guillermo Bolin presented the story in "The Sorrow of Pierrot." Pierrot in his white costume stands aloof in the foreground, his hands stuck deeply in his pockets, and on his painted face a rather downcast expression. Gloomily he is reflecting on the fickleness of the girl he loves, who appears in the background seated with Pierrot's more bizarre rival, apparently oblivious of the former's appearance on the scene and allowing the rival to monopolize her attention. His ridiculous costume makes his sorrow the more pathetic, of course.

Francois Verheyden, who fought in Belgium during the war, and whose pictures took New York by storm last year, has a number of water colors at the Gallery. It was Mrs. Dudley L. Pickman, of Boston and Beverly Cove, who "discovered" this artist. His pictures of France are being much admired by North Shore visitors.

Other well known artists whose pictures I noticed at the gallery are: Felecie Waldo Howell, Martha Walter, Charles H. Woodbury, William M. Paxon, and many, many

A bronze head of Leonard Craske by Robert P. Baker, is attracting a large share of admiration. Leonard Craske is the actor, who so capably handled the part of "The Poet" in George Bernard Shaw's play, "Candida."

The Gallery-on-the-Moors, East Gloucester

THE exhibition of paintings and sculpture at the Gallery-onthe-Moors, E. Gloucester, will continue through Aug. 23, including Sundays. TWELVE PLUS ONE

By NATALIE HAYS HAMMOND

THE company swept through the tall, oaken doors, into the library. The tapestried figures on the wall brooded gloomily in the candlelight; and a close, musty dampness hung about the bare, uncarpeted floors.

Outside, the moon swung sick, and pale, from a cloudblown sky; and the leafless branches of the trees knocked against the leaden window panes.

The host stood before the fireplace, poking at the embers. The ladies sat stiffly erect in their flowered-satin hoops, in a semi-circle, around the hearth. The gentlemen smoked in the shadows, and only their silver shoe-buckles, and the jeweled lights of their pipes, shone in the gloom.

The Lady Esther Roxbury, arched her finely penciled brows. She talked in an easy undertone behind her plumed fan, to the host. He bent over with a smile, to listen to her words, and tapped his gold snuff-box with nervous fingers.

But in spite of the polished coquetry, conversation languished, and the prim row of ladies sat motionless, like hollyhocks along an old garden wall. The dim figures of the gentlemen were like the black blocks of a pyramid at night.

"This time last year," said the host, "I was at Dooms-b'ry Castle. They say that at nightfall, the peasants, returning from the fields have often seen a solitary phantom wandering along the battlements. In truth, it is a strange old place,-and, though I have never been accused of cowardice, the hours of darkness dragged dismally. The night, to begin with, was weird, and a blue-black bird sat on the tower and croaked at the mist-covered moon. Tonight, a year ago, I wished myself dead, so deep was my depression. But I forget,—Lady Esther likes not such tales. will take cheer in our coffee-cups, and forget. Shall we not, Lady Esther?

He bent for the bell-cord, but Lady Esther's plumed-fan fell across his wrist.

"No,—no, not that! You must not ring,—really, you must not!"

He looked at her in surprise.

"Don't you see,-can't you understand? If you ring, someone will bring the coffee, and—and—that someone will be the thirteenth!"

"Oh, dear, dear Lady, no harm can come to such a goodly company!" The feather fan dropped limply on the floor, and the host pulled the cord. The bell rang once, and it rang twice. On the hard wood floor, steps resounded. Someone knocked, and the host felt his way through the shadows to the door.

"You may leave the coffee, there," he said. And turning to Lady Esther,—"This number, thirteen, is not unlucky. It is but twelve plus one! Surely you are not worrying about the old superstition that Death 'walks to the beat of thirteen drums.' Such ideas are totally unworthy of you, Madame. If Death did choose that rhythm for his march, what harm? Outside he roams in the Woodlands, but never has he come here. I scorn such cringeing fear!"

Lady Esther had half risen, and she grew pale, as the host drew the bolt and unlocked the door. The draft from the chimney sent the flames licking across the tiled hearth. The little red tips of the pipes, flared for a moment in the

The door squeaked open. The host stepped into the darkness. There was a splitting crash, a low, grinding thud,—and silence!

The dampness from the un-carpeted floor crept over the company. They re-lit the candles with a brand from the fire, and, grouping together, crept to the door.

"Where is he?" asked one.

"I do not see him. The fire has blinded me."
"Lady Esther was right. Something has happened. There is no good portent in thirteen."

"The silence frightens me. I wish that he had not "Look! There, by the foot of the stairs,-do you see it?. Oh, God!"

The ring of light thrown by the candles shone full on the form of a man, on the hard-wood floor. His arm was thrown over his face, and from under his sleeve a thin stream of blood trickled. It was the host. Around him were scattered pieces of broken china.

"He tripped over the tray."

"A year ago tonight, he wished that he were dead." "Death has come in, from the Woodlands. All is not well, with thirteen."

OPAL WHITELEY—CHILD PRODIGY IN LITERATURE

Spending Summer on North Shore, Quietly Engaged in Studying and Writing—A Glimpse at This Wonderful Young Girl

By LILLIAN McCANN

OPAL WHITELEY is spending the summer on the North Shore. Since June she has been quietly engaged in studying and writing at "Willow Tree Poultry Farm," the Wenham estate of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pratt McKean, Jr.

Perhaps there may be some on the Shore who do not recall, instantly, the connection this young writer has with the North Shore. Since leaving the west she has spent about a year in Boston and its vicinity. Her début in the literary world in the most unique manner possible between the classic covers of the time-honored Atlantic Monthly is a delightful story in itself. The editor of the Atlantic, Ellery Sedgwick, has his summer home at "Long Hill," North Beverly, not far from the Wenham Neck region. Mrs. Sedgwick (Mabel Cabot), a cousin of Mrs. McKean, has taken much interest in Miss Whiteley and has formed the class of children that are being taught nature study by her.

The journal written by Miss Whiteley began in the March number of the Atlantic. Sketches from it are continuing now in the magazine, but the complete journal in book form is due to come out in two weeks. In it Mr. Sedgwick has told as much as he knows of the life of the young writer, in a short preface.

Before that book is on the market, however, the season will be practically over and many Shore folk scattered far and wide, so, with Mr. Sedgwick's permission, we are going to tell briefly a few facts about the Atlantic's beautiful child prodigy in literature.

Opal Whitelely was born about twenty-one years ago where, is not known. When about five years of age she lost her parents. She remembers her mother taking long walks with her and telling her to listen to what the flowers, trees and birds were saying. Her mother impressed five words upon her memory distinctly. They were: What, Where, When, How, Why. She remembers that after a long walk her mother would have her print what she had seen and heard in the fields and woods. Opal had no children to play with. She remembers a woman who taught her and a girl who fed her, and then her father. He was evidently a naturalist, Mr. Sedgwick infers. She remembers his homecoming from the distant lands and how he would play with her and tell of the wild animals of those lands, and take long walks with her. So we see the little Opal had her first years in a strong atmosphere of love and refinement.

Then she remembers being in a boat when something happened and they were all in the water. The mother, she was told afterwards, had gone to heaven. Soon after that she was told that her father, too, had gone to heaven in the far-off land, where he then was. Opal does not remember distinctly the things that followed, except that the kind woman who taught her and cared for her still did it for a time and then told her she was going to take her to her grandparents on her paternal side. They started but something happened on the way and the little Opal found herself alone among strangers of whom she was afraid. She remembers the times when she was with these people who made her keep very still and did not let her indulge in her favorite pastime of taking long walks. Then they took a long journey. These people put the little girl with Mrs. Whiteley, the wife of an Oregon lumberman. Opal seems to think that Mrs. Whiteley, too, was a little afraid of the people who had had charge of her. The child was taken by Mrs. Whiteley as her own child in place of one she had lost, naming her Opal after the lost child.

Now when Opal was only in her sixth year she began to write her diary. From French expressions and scientific terms that crept into that diary of the lonely little stranger in the lumberman's camp, Mr. Sedgwick infers that her father was a naturalist by profession or inclination, and that either he or her mother was French by birth or education.

Two books had a great influence upon Opal's life and their whereabouts now is another mystery of interest con-

When she went to live in the lumberman's camp she had a small box with her. A drawer in the bottom contained two little copybooks and the photographs of her pa-Her mother and father had written things in these books for their little girl to learn, as Mr. Sedgwick says, "both of the world about her and of that older world of legend and history, with which the diarist shows such capricious and entertaining familiarity." Opal thinks that the people did not know about the books in the drawer for they tossed the box away after taking out everything in the upper part. She picked up the box, and, because she was more quiet while hugging the box with its precious contents, they let her keep it, thinking it was only an empty box. She kept this box hid in the woods near the camp. She studied these books daily, even more than her school books. They were her source of information and inspiration to go farther and deeper into the mysteries of life. She selected names for her many pets from them. When Opal was about twelve years old these books were taken away from the box hidden in the woods and she has never seen them since. She does not know why they were taken from her. It is said there is ground for believing that the books have not been Another tragic thing happened to Opal when past twelve years of age. A foster-sister, in a fit of childish temper, found the hiding place of Opal's dairy and tore it into a thousand pieces. Poor Opal gathered up her work of six or more years and sadly stored them in a secret box where they lay, in California, until unearthed at the request of Mr. Sedgwick. Mrs. Whiteley had died and Opal's home was broken up. She had been living in California until she crossed the continent over a year ago and we find her in the office of the Atlantic.

She came to Mr. Sedgwick to talk over a publication of some matter with him. He learned about Opal's life, bit by bit, and became so interested that he asked her to telegraph for the box of scraps then stored in California. They came and she began putting the pieces together like a picture-puzzle. The paper she had used was wrapping-paper paper bags, and the like. Both sides were used for the printing, done in colored chalks, and in characters nearly an inch high. There was no punctuation and all letters were capitals. Imagine the task set before this young girl by the Atlantic!

Mr. Sedgwick watched her work closely, and supervised the methods used to bring to life the "understanding heart" buried in these scraps of paper that looked like inscriptions dug up by archaeologists. When she had fitted scraps together the contents would be typed and arranged in a card system, then whole episodes typed exactly as in the original would be put together from the cards. She worked for five months on this from eight to twelve hours a day. The manuscript she thus pieced together consists of more than 70,000 words, all written before her eighth birthday. A part of the diary tells of her later years. Decorations in her childish hand are around many of the scraps. This journal was her confidant and source of joy. In it she printed her thoughts and doings in the lumber-camp

Well for Opal that she had had the early training of the "Angel Mother" in her first five years. Opal would, no doubt, have been lonelier still in the camp if she had not been taught to see the what, where, when, how and why of things in nature and to record what she had seen. mother had told her wonderful works of people and had had the little girl repeat these stories to her. Could there be better pedagogy than that? So when the child was placed in the lumberman's camp she says she told these stories of people and their works to the beloved trees and brooks and flowers. How quaintly she says in that journal when relating an incident of her life there: "Sometimes I do have thinks this world is a different world to live in. I do have lonesome feels.'

Miss Whiteley has a nature class of Shore children this summer who go walking with her once a week over the beautiful and sightly "Long Hill," that comprises the Sedg-

This must seem very different from Miss Whiteley's extremely western home places. The old Appleton farm and, in fact, four farms are united in the 130 acres purchased by the Sedgwicks before the war. In time they are going to build a summer residence on the very top of the Now they are living in a house nearly 200 years old, moved to its present location and remodeled a few years ago. In quiet, simple dignity the old, long, yellow house stands far back from the road in the midst of its fields and vegetable and berry gardens. A slightly raised grassy elevation surrounded with a low hedge is the terrace fronting the larger portion of the house. No walk mars the approach to the front door, across this grass terrace. The lower wing of the house has screened and open verandas covered with grape vines mostly. An old pump is still standing near the Everything about the place is ideally simple and farmlike and home-like, the house seeming to fit the grounds and the grounds the house.

Now, of course, there are always doubting Thomases all over the world, and Mr. Sedgwick has received many letters asking him if he did not alter or remodel Opal's journal into the form it has taken since March in the Atlantic. Some have written him that they believe the story of her parentage is not true and that she must be the real Whiteley child. 'Notwithstanding all this natural criticism, Mr. Sedgwick says the "Story of Opal" would not be expected to be received without some incredulity, but he points out in many ways how she could not have come into such a rich heritage of facts and quaint charm if there had been nothing back of her but the lumberman's camp life. A Californian wrote him: "Who Opal's parents were, I don't pretend to know, but this I do know—that grapes are not gathered from thorns, or figs from thistles."

So with the real Opal right here in our midst studying and writing and going on walks with Shore children, there can be no one who doubts the genuineness of this journal, that is not precocious, but, according to Mr. Sedgwick, "beautifully natural and interpretive of the Spirit of Child-

NATIONAL IDEALISM and enthusiasm for aiding others is not dead in America, nor does it sleep. America was altruistic in spirit and in heart long before the war broke out. The months sped before America reluctantly, but finally with enthusiasm, entered the war. The altruistic spirit was not born then; it was made evident by the exigency which had arisen. The history of America shows that she has never failed when a clean-cut moral issue has been raised. It took time to arouse the colonists to a revolt against the injustices of the mother country. Many years sped before the slumbering resentment of the people arose to such a task as the Civil War compelled; once the clean-cut issue came to the bar of justice. America made her decision aright, if it did require fifty or more years of agitation and a civil war, to settle the question. America loved peace and abhorred war. So when the European war clouds burst, America turned naturally to the paths of peace and abhorred the call of war for war's own sake; but once the issue came before the American people, the decision was made against comfort and for war because of the moral obligations involved.

The reaction against the stress of the war was natural, but America does not sleep. The moral idealism of the nation is not dead. The enthusiasm and roll of drums and the tread of martial feet gave a thrill in war times that the monotony of peace cannot give. The war campaign compelled unity and concentration of activity which ceased when the war ended, yet America still has the lofty spirit of altruism and is consecrated to aid others along the pathway of life. The slow moving American people may appear to be reluctant in their mood, but wait! When an occasion arises for a moral judgment, the leaven which works silently and surely will be shown in righteous action. America may be slow in her movements, but they are irrepressible. America may not appear to have the spirit that the idealism of the war showed, but it is there and a sharp issue will reveal it.

THE PURPOSE OF THE VARIOUS TOWNS and cities on the North Shore is apparent everywhere, for efforts are being made by every community to maintain the roads, sidewalks and all other general improvements. It is recognized now that well-maintained towns, despite a threatened increase of taxes for improvements at first, inevitably ends in attracting taxpayers; and automatically the tax expense is diminished. No longer are towns and cities willing to continue a short-sighted policy that saves money in expenditures to maintain low tax rates to discover that the result is detrimental to a community. Blessed as the Shore is, with a wonderful seacoast and an unrivaled woodland attraction, it is not a good policy to waste the advantages of nature by a prodigal neglect of public works. The stimulation which the entrance of summer residents have made in every community on the Shore is felt. The general work of the authorities vested with the power of the communities to do special work for the towns is augmented in many places by an Improvement society supported by the voluntary contributions and services of the summer and permanent residents. These have been able to make definite village or community improvements that could not be maintained directly by the town organization and yet contribute much to the development of a civic spirit. Everywhere on the North Shore the old spirit of mulcting the summer residents while the season is on has passed because the permanent population has a vision of a permanent industry that must be honorably maintained. The result is marked, and now instead of a large itinerant summer population, arriving and departing from the North Shore, there is an increasing permanent population that comes every year. The unity of all for the general improvement of the towns or cities on the North Shore means much now, and will mean more in the future.

DID YOU EVER CONSIDER what the residence of a physician or the establishment of a hospital means to a community? Does one ever know when the service of one or both may be demanded? Is there a day that passes when physicians and hospital corps of workers are not needed for the work in hand? Physicians are helpful and needed community workers. They are at the service of the public night and day, subject to the call of everyone, and making sacrifices that command admiration. The monetary returns of these faithful men and the long hours do not attract them; the true rewards are those which a practice presents in opportunities to aid humanity. The community owes them a living, and a good living, but they are content only in making a life. A trained man should have a thorough equipment. The community recognizes the primary needs of a manufacturer to have a factory, a teacher to have a reasonably well-equipped schoolroom, a minister to have an appointed church; the physician should have at his disposal an up-to-date and adequate hospital equipment to assist him in the severe task of fighting the enemies of the human body and in aligning the forces of nature to combat the evil. Every physician that has the backing of an efficient hospital can increase his usefulness to any community many fold with a good hospital to aid him. The towns of Hamilton and Manchester and the city of Beverly have realized this in the maintenance of the Beverly Hospital which serves their communities. This in a small measure accounts for the enthusiasm shown in supporting the campaign which is now being made for funds. The hospital in Beverly is a great help to every physician in the district and the work should not be hampered by the need of funds.

THE PLYMOUTH AND GLOUCESTER anniversaries will send students to the history volumes for hours of pleasure, reading the annals of other years.

Investments Are Elusive! It requires a steady mind and discerning brain to make good judgments concerning opportunities for earning money. A daring man makes a plunge and wins and then his successful venture tempts him to neglect the spirit of caution, and a second or even a third plunge has been made with disastrous results. Another makes a cautious venture, loses and then begins to make investments instead of ventures and seeks to save the principle by increasing the interest each year by a small percentage rather than endanger the safety of the principle by a large and abnormal expectation in interest. What one may do as a daring venture with a small fund when one's funds for living are safeguarded, may be different from what one should do with hard-earned money that needs to be guarded with care. Get-rich schemes are morally wrong in many cases, not only because inordinate expectations are aroused, but because it breaks down in the long run that steady and wholesome spirit within man that develops the character of the individual while the funds which he has are increased. It is still a true maxim that it does not profit a man to "gain the whole world and lose his own soul." There are opportunities for large gains by risks that are legitimate business ventures. There are opportunities for unusual gains, yet in the long run the average man will win quickest and gain most in money and in character by slow and steady increments added to his wealth by industry or by conservative investments than by unsubstantial ventures in perilous risks that neither develop character nor permanently increase wealth.

WHILE AMERICA DEBATES the League of Nations it goes quietly about its work endeavoring to disentangle the knots of international politics.

THE ESTABLISHMENT OF MUNICIPAL LIBRARIES has resulted in making the North Shore town or city library an educational institution of great value to the community. The first libraries established along our coast began as voluntary organizations. These have grown rapidly and were taken over by the municipalities as public libraries. In some places, as in Manchester, the books are housed in a beautiful Memorial building. In other places the communities have erected good buildings. These libraries are serving the permanent and summer populations. The use of the stack rooms and the books for home reading has always been appreciated by visitors. The purchase of new volumes of fiction has always been a problem because of the funds required to purchase them. Purchasing committees have appropriations that have to be justly apportioned for the purchase of books of permanent value, the building of a good reference library and the proper care of the volumes already acquired. Every library practices economy. A promising plan has been put in operation in the Beverly Farms library which ought to prove successful and help solve the problem of providing funds for new fiction. New volumes of fiction have been purchased and are loaned to readers and a small charge made for the volume. When the volume is paid for it becomes the property of the library without making inroads upon the funds appropriated. The plan is an excellent one because it provides new books, places a stimulus upon readers to return the volumes promptly and presents a good plan to increase the library and to conserve the library funds. Such progressive library policies are appreciated by the people who use the libraries.

THE PRIMARIES THIS YEAR for the selection of nominees for the two parties in Massachusetts in September will be interesting to the many candidates who are aspiring to win the favor of the electorate. The Republican nomination for Governor automatically will go to Channing H. Cox, of Boston, who has served so efficiently on Beacon Hill as Lieutenant Governor. His election while not assured seems probable in view of the overwhelming vote which he and Mr. Coolidge obtained last year, together with the to-be-expected impetus that all Republican candidates may look to in view of the national elections. The present secretary of state aspires to be Lieutenant Governor and his announced candidacy has been known for a long while to those who have been cognizant of the quiet but effective publicity campaign which he has been carrying on for over a year. He will be opposed by Charles L. Burrell, Joseph E. Warner, and Alvan T. Fuller. The vote will be so divided, because of the varied political policies of the candidates and their own local influence, it will be diffcult for the most astute prophet to make a good guess as to who the winner will be. Alonzo B. Cook made a daring and surprising attempt to win the nomination as the State Auditor and was successful and no opponent has been able to defeat him. He has an opponent this year, but the Auditor's long term of service is of such undoubted value that his election appears probable if not certain. The treasurer has been criticized for his poor judgment in maintaining an office which, it has been thought, depended for its success in some degree, upon his connections with his political berth. The criticisms of the arrangement have been caustic, but no other candidate appears in the field and he is unopposed for the nomination, which practically means election this year. The Republicans will nominate J. Weston Allen as the Attorney-General. The slate is not as strong as it might be in men of large abilities, but they are men of integrity and experience and the State will be well served in the highest offices in the gift of the people.

THE LOVE PATH

By ALEX G. TUPPER

DOWN by the road where elms Arch over a garden gate And a path leads up to a small white door With its knocker of brass And a latch well worn, I loved a maiden fair. And the grass is green at the path Where I would wait · For her in the dusk of eve, And through the picket fence, Where a narrow strip was torn, Still grows the bluebell through the grass, Leaning through with eyes so blue As if to watch the lovers pass Down by the road where elms Arch over a garden gate.

And the moonlight lingers softly still Along the narrow way
Where oft mine eyes have watched
The shadows dark betray
The presence of the boughs above;
Where stirring leaves have whispered
Something I interpreted as love—
The atmosphere was perfumed with it,
The jeweled sky was plainly writ

In lines along the Milky Way.
And roses' fragrance came so strong
Upon the summer wind,
It choked my senses, took my speech
Each time I tried to say
"I love you, Phyllis!" Then I'd reach
With hand so tremblingly
For hers—and yet, content I'd find.

The years have passed, Down by the road where elms Arch over a garden gate; Her voice is hushed, I cannot feel her hand, But in the moonlight, still Her spirit gently creeps; The bluebells sweetly chime The memories and longings as I wait To join her in the Spirit-Land. We both again shall walk the narrow path Up to the small, white door To dwell in peace all time, Where sweet in spirit God e'er keeps His loved ones, when on earth Their way is ever dear in faith, And love shall know its worth.

Breezy Briefs

- The prices of several brands of cigars took a jump this week. Radical reformers may not be obliged to campaign against smoking, as prohibitive prices will accomplish the result the reformers desire.
- "Everybody should take at least two weeks for recreation and change of scene." Certainly—and so labor through the balance of the year that the boss will miss you when you are away.
- A Parisian gown, recently worn in Chicago, is described as "making Eve's first frock look like a raincoat." Social welfare leaders condemn it as "too much, even, for Chicago."
- It is estimated that the peanut crop will be 6,000,000 bushels larger than last year. This should prove cheerful news to the circus elephants.
- The War department is giving 173,911 alleged draft dodgers another chance to clear their records within the next week or two. Legal proceedings against them will be instituted at the expiration of the time limit.
- The demand for manufactured grape products far exceeds the supply, it is said. What of the reports which stated that prohibition would spell the ruin of the grape growing industry?
- "Cannonball" Baker has arrived in Los Angeles in an auto which he drove the 3376 miles from New York city in 6 days, 17 hours, and 16 minutes, breaking his own transcontinental record of 7 days, 11 hours and 52 minutes. We doubt if he enjoyed the scenery along the way.
- Paper suits for men, said to be in vogue in Germany, have certain disadvantages. What happens to the suit when it rains, or a smoker carelessly drops a lighted match on his trousers? The possibilities of advertising on paper suits would almost put the stationary billboards out of business.
- A prominent banker has figured that about half the total currency of the United States is being carried around in the pockets of the people. Perhaps it is safer there than in many of the "get-rich-quick" schemes which are so numerous today!

Golden Thoughts

Pluck wins! It always wins! though days be slow And nights be dark 'twixt days that come and go. Still pluck will win; its average is sure; He gains the prize who will the most endure; Who faces issues; he who never shirks; Who waits and watches, and who always works.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 2,-478 commercial ships went thru the Panama Canal, paying more than $8,800,000 in tolls and other charges. The expense for maintenance and operation will not exceed $6,650,000. Thus it appears that the canal is making money; however, in figuring expenses no allowance has been made for depreciation of equipment, or other matters which should be considered in an estimate of this kind.

Vacationists will draw a long breath of relief at the announcement by the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington that return ticket coupons may be recognized by the railroad if purchased before the increase in passenger fares becomes operative, Aug. 26. Many vacationists who have figured not only the price of going on a vacation, but also that of returning, have been worried about the cost of the return trip.

During the first six months of 1920 there were 123 homicides in New York, according to the report of the medical examiner. It is stated that only one conviction of murder in the first degree has been reached this year.

At the meeting of the United States Fat Men's club held last week in Salem there was abundant evidence that the H. C. of L. has not affected the avoirdupois of the members.

Prudent housewives are now canning vegetables which friend husband has raised in the back yard by "the sweat of his brow." The vegetables will taste good next winter when the mercury is down and the prices are up.

Making Crime a Luxury

"Many motor speeders arrested in your town, Uncle Si?"

"No. There used ter be, but we settled them fellers, all right. Hain't been hardly an arrest in 6 months."

"How did you manage it?"
"Wal, we jest fixed the speed limit at 75 miles an hour, an' darned few of 'em kin make it, b'gosh!"

- Summer hotels are now furnishing airplanes for the accommodation of their guests. Surely, this is keeping abreast of the times:
- New England is one of the best places in the country for a get-rich-quick concern to operate. If you doubt this statement, ask Ponzi, "the financial wizard."
- Once again there is talk of labor leaders "delivering the labor vote."

 This will be about as easy to do as for landlords to resist raising the rents of houses occupied by railroad men who are to have a share in the increased wages.
- San Francisco Chronicle: "Gov. Cox is 'wet' in New York and 'dry' in Kansas. The result will inevitably be that New York will believe him to be 'dry' and Kansas will consider him 'wet." Consequently he will lose the votes of both. If the telegraph, the telephone, and the mails did not exist, Cox might get away with it, but not in these days of publicity."
- Alice Brady, actress of the "fillums," advises girls to keep out of the motion picture game unless they "have money enough to carry themselves along for months" without depending on their wages. Press agents are responsible for many of the reports of fabulous prices paid movie stars of the present era.
- Many newspapers were shrewd enough to suspect that Gov. Cox would accept the Democratic nomination when it was officially offered to him.
- A Northampton farmer observed his 98th birthday anniversary one day last week by working several hours in the hay field. He calls it "taking things easy" when he only works seven to nine hours a day.
- To stimulate interest in emigration to France, a noted French physician has stated that there are 2,000,000 women in his country who desire husbands, but cannot get them easily in their own country.

LIBRARY NOTES

New Books in Manchester Public Library

One of the new books is "Sarah and Her Daughter," by Bertha Pearl. In this book the Ghetto region of New York is vividly portrayed. You get both humor and pathos, and the story is well told.

"Hannah Bye" is a story of Quaker life. It is a good study in character, and shows the influence of the stern tenets of their faith on the different characters in the story.

There is one novelist who should be better known—Leonard Merrick. He always writes a good story. "When Love Flies Out o' the Window" is one of his best. It has an introduction by W. Robertson Nicoll.

"The Girl on the Hilltop," by Kenyon Gambier, is a good story to read, containing a mixture of love, adventure and mystery that will hold your attention to the end. One man and three women are the principal characters in the book. In "Vanishing Men" you have this reversed, the four chiefactors being one woman and three men; a real bright story.

There are many good things in the August magazines. "The World's Work" is a very meaty number. In "March of Events" you get a real good summary of current events. A fine illustrated article is "The 250th Anniversary of the Hudson Bay Company," by Rutherford H. Platt, Jr. "The Meaning of What Happened at Chicago," by Arthur Page, is well worth reading.

In "The North American Review"
"The Issues at Stake," by David Jayne Hill—one of the world's greatest authorities on international law—is a thought provoking article. Others worth reading are "Oxford and Wom-

OLYMPIA THEATRE, LYNN For highly ludicrous situations, brought about with an adroitness and naturalness extraordinary in comedy bordering upon farce, "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," to be presented at the Olympia theatre, Lynn, the first three days of next week, certainly exceeds in entertainment value any picture seen in a considerable period of time.

MARK STRAND THEATRE, LYNN

"The World and His Wife," one of the really big productions of the year, will be the feature attraction at the Mark Strand, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Olive Thomas' new tri-umph, "Darling Mine," will be shown Thursday, Friday and Saturday, also House Peters in "Silk Husbands and Calico Wives."

In order to acquaint the public with the general telephone situation, and some of the reasons for delay in completing new installations—chief among which is the difficulty of getting the numerous kinds of necessary material—we have prepared a series of announcements of which this is the second.

Reserve Telephone Equipment Exhausted

We used to engineer our plant—switchboards, cables, circuits, and all necessary parts thereof—to anticipate by several vears the growth of population or manufacturing in any particular place or region. Consequently, we were always able to meet promptly demands for service, no matter how large or unexpected.

Hence, during the war period we were able to give service to a rapidly increasing list of subscribers, although we had little priority consideration as a necessary industry and were compelled by government restriction to abandon our normal programme of advance construction.

When the war ended, however, these reserve facilities had been almost whollv pre-empted by the growing demand. Our usual reserve of central offices, switch-boards, power plants, conduits, cables, manholes, pole lines no longer existed. We required rubber, paper, copper wire, lumber, silk, clav, glass, porcelain, paraffin, and many other things not ordinarily associated in the public mind with telephone service, in order to restore our reserves.

Every business man will realize the difficulty experienced in getting some, if not all, of these things. We had to get all, or devise some efficient substitute for those which could not be had.

We have installed more new telephones thus far this year than in any previous similar period of telephone history; and we could have done still more but for the exhaustion of our reserve equipment caused by general conditions of production and transportation. These are showing signs of improvement, however.

Our morale is good. Our people are earnestly desirous of giving good service and of extending it as fast as possible. Although there are many persons to whom we cannot at once give telephone service because of conditions wholly outside our organization, we are determined to meet their desires as soon as it is humanly possible to do so.

ENJOY DAY'S OUTING

Manchester Boys Go to Marble-HEAD AND HAVE SPORTS

The boys of the Manchester playground teams under the direction of E. C. Coffin, instructor, enjoyed a day's outing at Marblehead Monday. Assembling at the playground at 8.30 o'clock, the boys to the number of 31 marched to the Manchester pier, where they embarked in the 40-foot launch, Kelpie, of the Marblehead Transporta-

The first event on the program after the arrival in Marblehead was a swim, followed by luncheon which the boys took with them.

The 14-16 year baseball team had Smith and Gillis for battery. The line-up included R. Smith, Cameron, Saulnier, Rudden, Gillis, Cooney, Peters, Calman, Singleton. Umpire, R. Graves, of Marblehead. This team was leading the Marbleheads 4 to 3, but lost the game in the 9th.

The 12-14 year team had Holloran and W. Foster as battery. Line-up: Holloran, Phillips, T. Foster, L. Wilcox, W. Foster, Goldthwaite, G. Greenburg, Keithley, A. Bell, C. Burgess. Umpire, E. Phillips, of Manchester. Manchester played loose ball and was trimmed 12 to 2. Cronin, centerfielder for Marblehead, slammed out a home run and two three-baggers, which accounted for many of the runs made by his team.

The relay races resulted in a win for the older Manchester boys and a defeat for the younger Manchester lads.

Another swim at Crocker park followed the sports events, after which the party returned to Manchester at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, having had a most enjoyable day's outing. Instructor Coffin is deserving of much praise for the interest he took in arranging and carrying out the plans for the day's program.

In addition to the boys on the baseball teams, the following also made the trip: G. Bell, S. Greenburg, J. Cronin, C. Lethbridge, W. Lethbridge, E. Phillips, H. Phillips, Hurley, C. Luther, White, Keithley, Barnett.

MANCHESTER BOY SCOUTS PLANNING FOR PLEASANT OUTING

The Manchester Boy Scouts will soon go to Lake Province, near South Eppingham, N. H., for their vacation trip. G. E. Willmonton, of Manchester, owns an attractive camp site there and he generously allows the boys free use of the land for their excursion.

It has been two or three years since the Scouts made the pigrimage to this beautiful spot in New Hampshire. Dr. Frank A. Willis, Scout Master, Allen P. Dennis, assistant Scout Master, and Granville Crombie, cook, will visit the camp within a few days to ascertain the condition of the grounds and camp equipment.

Rev. H. E. Levoy will spend the week with the boys. A large number of Scouts have signified their intention of making the trip and are eagerly looking forward to the event.

MANCHESTER MEN VICTIMS OF STABBING

Free-for-All Fight at Hamilton—Authorities Should Investigate Roadhouse Conditions

Eight young men, six of them from Manchester, participated in a free-forall fight early Sunday morning just over the line-in Hamilton. Four of them received several cuts and one of the party, Randolph Knight, is in the Beverly hospital, seriously wounded in the abdomen.

According to the story which the young men tell, they had been attending a dance in Magnolia. The party included Edwin Cook, Thomas Peters, Alfred Needham, John Gray, Randolph Knight and "Jack" Wade, of Manchester, Alton Ingraham, of Boston, who was visiting Mr. Knight, and Amory Kimball, 24, of Cincinnati, chauffeur for L. M. Prince, who is spending the summer at Smith's Point, Manchester.

After the dance in Magnolia, Kimball is said to have invited the party to ride to Manchester with him, and on the way someone suggested a trip to Lake-Croft Inn, Hamilton. Continuing on to Lake-Croft the young men remained until about 2.15 a. m., when Kimball made the discovery that the key to his auto had been lost.

This started an argument that resulted in a free-for-all fight, during which, it is alleged, Kimball was on the defensive against the other seven, and wielded a small pocket knife. It was during the melee that young Knight received the injuries in the abdomen and, after first aid had been administered, he was rushed to the hospital in Beverly. Gray, and Cook, who were also cut up some, were cared for by Dr. G. W. Blaisdell, of Manchester, when they had been brought to the police station.

The affair naturally caused considerable of a stir in the early morning hours of Sunday. In fact it has been the one topic of conversation all the week in local circles, as this is one of the most disgraceful affairs yet to stir the town, in connection with the existance of this road-house in Hamilton.

Kimball, the chauffeur, was found sleeping peacefully, apparently, when the squad of officers called at his abode on Smith's Point about six o'clock Sunday. As the affair happened in Hamilton, Kimball was turned over to Chief Poole of that town. Kimball was placed under arrest on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. He was later admitted to bail, and the case was before the court on Monday morning. The court continued the case to Aug. 23.

This deplorable matter reveals abominable conditions which should be brought to the attention of the Federal authorities. Such roadhouses are a disgrace to the law-abiding communities which they pollute. It is said that booze is freely sold and that immoral conditions exist which are well nigh intolerable.

One resort, nearer Manchester than Hamilton, is notorious. During the war its reputation was far from clean, and there are many citizens who assert that the proper authorities should take steps necessary to have it closed. The people have the right to demand that any public, or semi-public roadhouse which is violating the laws of decency and propriety, shall be prevented from continuing in its nefarious business.

It is said that at a certain roadhouse not ten minutes ride from Central sq., Manchester, whiskey can be secured in any quantity desired for $15 a quart. Gin, brandy, cocktails and other drinks are to be had if one has the price, it is said.

Complaint to the police of the town in which the roadhouse is located, has failed to secure the desired action. It is true that raids have been made, but apparently they were ineffectual, as it is alleged that the proprietor continued to flaunt the law, and young men and women frequented the place which is a blot on the North Shore.

Federal prohibition officers should institute an investigation. A real clean-up should be made of "hell-holes" which are surrounding the young men and women of the vicinity with conditions which tend to undermine their character and honor, and in some instances lead to violence and almost to murder. The matter should be searchingly investigated and the offenders given the full penalty of the law.

It is the intention of the law-abiding citizens to have the North Shore communities clean and pure, safe by night and day for women and children alike. Can such a condition exist while the authorities, knowingly or unknowingly, allow dens of vice to continue their damning influences? The vast majority of the people are honest in their endeavors to keep the North Shore free from vice and evil;-shall we allow any one place to overrule and set wickedness in control on the throne? Many leading citizens demand, and they are just in their demand, that the Federal authorities do their utmost in effectually stamping out all dens of vice wherever they exist. Let us have a North Shore of which we can all be proud!

The inquiries of friends as to the cause of his disfigurement were met with grim silence, but now the secret is out. Mr. Parkinson, who is an excellent swimmer, undertook to teach several of the young ladies this rather difficult art, and, in demonstrating, he took a "nose" dive, it appears, with the result that he came rather violently in contact with the bottom.

SUGGEST THE WIDENING OF WEST ST.
With a new building staked out for the Samuel Knight Sons Coal Co., of Manchester, owners of the former Linehan property on West st. at Beverly Farms, and with the stakes showing a building close to the street line, suggestions for the widening of the street on the southerly side, to relieve the congestion and to lessen traffic danger, are again being brought to the front.

The widening suggested is between Central square and the railroad crossing. The travelled way is very narrow and in some places is less than 25 feet. On one end is located the West st. engine house, while at the lower end is the Beverly Farms station of the B. & M. railroad. The street is used by motorists who travel over the Shore road and by the thousands who go to West Beach.

The houses below the stores are set far enough back from the street line so that the widening would merely mean the taking off enough land in front of these properties for sidewalk uses. The Campbell properties are both devoted to business purposes and there is land enough in the rear so that they could be moved back without disturbing the general appearance of the buildings.

The highway is controlled and maintained by the state, but with the need shown for such an improvement man Beverly Farms residents believe that the county and city would coöperate i making the widening and assuming the contingent expenses. The widening would make it safer for the fire department in answering calls. In on hour last Sunday nearly 743 motor vehicles passed through this street. The matter will probably be brought u soon in the city council for action.

PRICES-

Up or Down?

High prices for livestock increase the producer's income. Low prices decrease it and even result in losses. Similarly, high prices for meat increase consumer's expenses.

But Swift & Company as a middleman does not benefit by high or low prices. Our income depends not on a high level of prices or a low level, but rather on the margin between the livestock price and the meat and by-products price.

The company's only concern, in whether prices should be high or low, is that they should be high enough to satisfy producers and low enough to please consumers; but over the movement of these prices Swift & Company has no control.

Swift & Company is compelled by competition to pay high enough prices for livestock to secure an adequate supply. We must sell meat at a price low enough to make it move. We endeavor, also, between the two prices, to secure a margin large enough to pay all expenses and yield a fair profit.

Our profit for 1919 averaged less than two cents on each dollar of sales, or 6 3-5 percent on money invested.

Two prizes were awarded for the prettiest costumes, as the judges decided that the Hawaiian dancing girl's costume and that of the sweetest little lady of the '60's with ankle ties, pantalets, poke bonnet, a patch and pretty gray hair were equally attractive. The prize for the funniest costume was awarded the Gold Dust Twins and they were certainly the real thing, while the prize for the most original

KEEP YOUR DOLLARS AT WORK

The practice of carrying large sums of money in one's pockets is called an economic crime by a writer in a financial magazine. It is pointed out that one of the best ways to increase production and reduce prices is to empty one's pockets weekly and to place the money in bank or invest it so that it may be an active working factor.

This is good advice. With wages larger than ever, more people carry substantial amounts in their pockets than they did heretofore. The more one carries the more he is likely to spend. The greater the amount of money hidden in the china closet, the less there will be for use in productive enterprise. Individual holdings of tive enterprise.—Cleveland Plain D'l'r.

SOCIETY NOTES

MR. AND MRS. J. PIERPONT MORGAN, of New York, were among the passengers sailing for Europe last Saturday when Hugh Gibson, United States minister to Poland, returned to his post. Mr. and Mrs. Warren B. Robbins, of Smith's Point, Manchester, are sailing tomorrow. Mr. Robbins, acting chief of the division of the Near East affairs, will act as counsellor of the legation as long as his services are needed. They are called over because of the serious situation.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Parkhurst, of "The Gables," Smith's Point, Manchester, have the latter's aunt, Miss Mary E. Glidden, of Boston, with them for a few weeks. Miss Glidden came to Manchester Wednesday night from a trip covering over 11,000 miles taken with a touring party of 17 under the direction of Raymond and Whitcomb, tourists. The party left June 9 and have toured California, the Hawaiian islands and visited the volcanic regions around Honolulu. The latter part of the trip was really remarkable and took considerable courage for any one. Miss Glidden, although in her seventies, thoroughly enjoyed it.

Mrs. T. Handasyd Cabot and her two daughters, returned to their summer home in New Hampshire Thursday from a short visit with the Austin D. White family in Beverly Farms.

William Tucker Lindsay, who always makes his North Shore home with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Tucker, in West Manchester, has been traveling this summer with Lord and Lady Lindsay, his uncle and aunt, through Belgium and the Argonne sections. He is preparing for Oxford and will remain in England to finish his education.

Mr. and Mrs. Julian P. Fairchild, who returned to Long Island some time ago from a visit with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ezra C. Fitch, of "Riverhouse," Norton's Neck, West Manchester, are now touring the White Mountains and Vermont. Mr. Fairchild's sister, Mrs. Edward Everett Read and daughters, Miss Constance and Miss Florence, of New York, have been visiting in the Fitch home the past week.

SOCIETY NOTES

Mrs. Austin D. White, of Beverly Farms, has Mme. Naardyn Lyska, of Poland, with her. Mme. Lyska is the renowned singer who gave the "hour with music" Wednesday afternoon at the Eastern Yacht club, Marblehead Neck. She was accompanied by Robert Hughes, organist at the Cathedral in Boston, and music master at St. George's school at Newport.

Mme. Lyska is an interesting personality. She has spent much of her life in France and has traveled extensively in Europe, and during the past four years since she has been in America. Mme. Lyska has made a collection of old Persian, East Indian and Egyptian songs besides the "labor" songs of every country. She sings in nine different languages. Before coming to America she had sung in many European countries in opera and has worked with Massanet. Her portrait done by Margaret Pumpelly Smyth has been shown in Boston and elsewhere. At the conclusion of her visit at the White home, Mme. Lyska is going to visit Mrs. T. H. Cabot at Dublin, N. H.

So successful was the recital at Marblehead Wednesday and so insistent are the demands of her many friends along the Shore, another recital will be given either at Beverly Farms or Manchester either next week or the week after, we have been informed, so that those who could not get to Marblehead Wednesday may have an opportunity to hear Madame Lyska.

General Lassiter, U. S. Å., is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Russell S. Codman, Smith's Point, Manchester.

Miss Genevieve Sullivan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Sullivan, of Beach st., Manchester, gave a bridge and tea at her home a week ago Thursday. The young lady in whose honor it was given is Miss Doris McArdle, of Belmont, a prospective bride. There were 30 present to enjoy the first social event in the attractively remodelled house of the Sullivans.

Mrs. William R. Nelson, of Magnolia, is entertaining Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Reed and R. M. Goodlett, of Kansas City. Thursday Mrs. Nelson gave a luncheon in their honor at her beautiful Magnolia home. Next Monday Mrs. Nelson is giving a dinner party at her house.

Mrs. MacLennan, of Magnolia, who has just done a House of Color, has received samples of the latest importations of wall paper and will be pleased to show them by appointment. Telephone Magnolia 476-W. adv.

A Wedding of interest to the summer colony of the North Shore, New York and the middle west, occurred Wednesday morning at St. Joseph's mission chapel at Magnolia, when Miss Dorothy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William T. Donovan, of Toledo, became the bride of Anthony Brady Farrell, of Albany. Both are summer residents of Bass Rocks, the bride's family summer home for the last six years. Mr. Farrell is the son of the late James C. Farrell, the newspaper and oil magnate of Albany, who eight years ago purchased the J. Sloat Fassett mansion at Bass Rocks. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at Del Monte's at 10.30. Three tables were set, at the center being the bride and groom and attendants, at the small table five little folk, and at the largest table, presided over by father and mother of the bride, twenty-five guests were seated. It was one of the smartest functions at Del Monte's this season.

MRS. EZRA C. FITCH, of "Riverhouse," Norton's Neck, West Manchester, is leaving the last of September for a visit in England with her son-in-law and daughter, Capt. Frank Northen, O. B. E., and Mrs. Northen (May Fitch). Mrs. Fitch will spend the autumn in England.

We regret to report that Mrs. John G. Groves, of Kansas City, is seriously ill at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John G. Forrest, Pine st., Manchester. Mr. and Mrs. Groves and daughter, Miss Sally Doggett, came on as usual to spend the summer at the Oceanside, but Mrs. Groves has been too ill to be removed from the home of her sister, Mrs. Forrest.

The Lancashire Handicap Golf Tournament is one of the particular sporting-society events of the North Shore season for the male members of the colony and some outside friends of Dr. J. H. Lancashire. The tournament will be held on Wednesday of next week—Aug. 25—at the Essex County club, Manchester, and will be followed by the customary luncheon at "Graftonwood," the Lancashire summer home at Manchester. This is the 11th annual tournament. In case of rain the luncheon will be given, but the tournament will be postponed until the following day.

Miss Phyllis Allyn returned August 1 from her western trip and is now with her maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Macdonald in their Magnolia cottage. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Allyn, were out from Boston last week to help Miss Phyllis celebrate her birthday. Next week she will go to her paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Allyn, in Magnolia, for the remainder of the season.

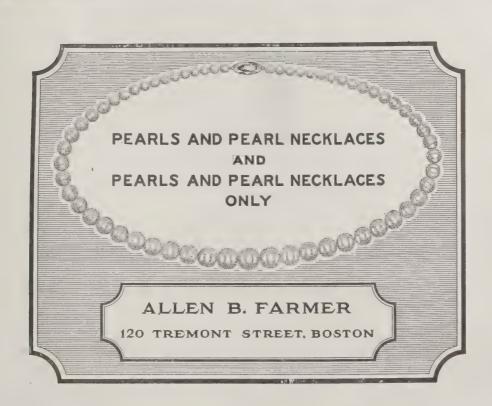

ESSEX COUNTY CLUB, Manchester, will have its last dinner dance this season on Friday evening, Sept. 3. Table d'hôte dinner will be served at 7.30, followed at 9 o'clock by dancing. Music will be furnished by Herbert Lowe's best orchestra. Tables for the dinner may be reserved by applying at the office.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Graeme Haughton, of Pride's Crossing, left Thursday for a week's auto trip through Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Leland and family left the Brownland cottages in Manchester Thursday for a trip to New Hampshire before returning to their home in Boston.

Women's Educational and Industrial Union cake may be had fresh from day to day at the Page & Shaw Tea Room, Pride's Crossing.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS DUDLEY CABOT (Virginia Wellington) are leaving Beverly Farms next Monday for their home in Spencer, W. Va. They will be accompanied by the latter's mother and sister, Mrs. Louise B. Wellington and Miss Linda Wellington, of Weston. Miss Linda was maid of honor at the recent wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Cabot. The Cabots, while on their honeymoon trip to the Canadian Rockies, climbed many mountains, some of which Miss Peck, notorious climber, had not attempted. They are now with the Godfrey L. Cabots, parents of Mr. Cabot, at the Farms.

Mrs. Mary G. Burton, of Pasadena, Calif., is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Austin D. White, at Beverly Farms.

Mme. Lyska, of Poland, gave a charming concert at the Eastern Yacht club, Marblehead Neck, on Wednesday afternoon. Her Russian songs of tragic scenes depicting the prisoners going on their long exile to Siberia were very touchingly given. Another opportunity to hear this wonderfully gifted singer is being planned for the Shore. Seldom has a singer of so much dramatic ability and such thoroughness in interpreting the "labor" songs of a country come to the Shore. Mme. Lyska is the guest of Mrs. Austin D. White, of Beverly Farms.

"The Sea Wolf," all-star cast, at the Larcom theatre, Beverly, Aug. 30 and 31.

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Parker H. Kemble, the Col. Wm. R. Lee house on Washington st., one of the historic houses of Marblehead, will be opened to the public on Tuesday, August 24th, from 11 to 12.30, and from 2 to 7 p. m.; admission twenty-five cents. Tea tickets (fifty cents) may be obtained from Mrs. Kemble, or from Mrs. R. T. Paine, 2d, Magnolia.

This house was built about 1740. The handsome Bull-finch front was added later by Col. Lee. The beautiful woodwork and brilliantly colored wall paper were brought by Col. Lee from England. Lafayette and Washington were both entertained here.

The house will be opened for the benefit of the committee on the civic and patriotic education of non-English speaking women of the Women's Municipal league, of Boston.

Tourists often stop these summer days before the driving park of Judge Wm. H. Moore in Pride's Crossing. The park with its neatly kept green, shady lawns and tan-bark track always makes an attractive appearance. Auto parties frequently stop when they see Mr. Moore out driving around the track. This summer he has spent considerable time in training some of his young horses preparatory for the coming shows of the winter. Setan-Setan is a favorite two-year-old, whose dam is Champion Lady Setan. Florio is another two-year-old, and Primrose and Mezzappa and Saxon are other young colts that Mr. Moore is breaking in this summer.

Mrs. Durward Grinstead (Gladys Safford) is now on from Washington visiting her mother, Mrs. James D. Safford, Norton's Neck, West Manchester.

The beautiful old-time house adjoins the church property and will make ideal quarters. It will be remodeled, making a large room made for gatherings, but the character of the house will not be changed in the least.

"AUCASSIN AND NICOLETTE," a beautiful old play with children for actors, will be given in the riding school on the S. V. R. Crosby estate, West Manchester, Friday afternoon, September 10, and Saturday afternoon and evening, September 11. It is a benefit for the American academy at Rome. Miss Edith King and Miss Dorothy Coit, of New York, are on the Shore training children and getting everything in readiness for this beautiful play. They are now with Mrs. Charles Hopkinson, of Manchester, one of the committee planning the affair. More details will be given next week.

One of the gayest social events of the season was the masque ball at Del Monte's, Magnolia, on Wednesday night, to which a select gathering of North Shore folk were invited. The dining room and portico were prettily decorated, and some of the costumes worn by the young folk were very beautiful. The older people were content to wear the conventional evening gown, but all were masked. An addition was made to the orchestra, and the music was even better than usual.

Among those who entertained at the ball were Mrs. Phillips, Oceanside, party of 14; Mrs. D. B. Hussey, Oceanside, 11; Mrs. E. A. Perry, Magnolia, 11; Mrs. Brown, Gloucester, 8; Miss Brainard, Oceanside, 12; Mrs. Gordon, Swampscott, 6; Mrs. Barnard, Bass Rocks, 4; Mr. Hannessey, Lynn, 4; Mr. Schoolman, Boston, 6. There were about a hundred guests in all.

ESSEX COUNTY CLUB, at Manchester, was the scene of some brilliant golf the last few days of last week when the annual four ball best ball tournament drew out a number of players from other clubs. H. H. Houghton and W. R. Shrigley of Tedesco won the finals on Saturday by defeating B. W. Estabrook of The Country Club and C. M. Amory of Essex County 4 and 2. The morning round of the 36-hole final found the teams all even on the 18th, Houghton and Shrigley using their four stroke handicap to good advantage. The afternoon golfing was brilliant team work on the part of the winning pair. Each one alternated for a half or a win on almost every hole. Estabrook was forced to carry the load on his shoulder for his side as Amory was decidedly off color. Both teams played streaky golf in the forenoon, but the final match was brilliant. The summary Championship final-H. H. Houghton and W. R. Shrigley of Tedesco defeated B. W. Estabrook of The Country Club and C. M. Amory of Essex County, 4 and 2.

Beaten 16 championship flight—('lark Hodder and Ted Learnard of Commonwealth defeated H. B. Ingalls and J. H. Hyde of Tedesco, 1 up.

The ladies hope that everyone will take the opportunity to see this old house, built in 1740. The Kembles have it furnished as in the period of its erection and have kept it up admirably well.

Col. Lee added a handsome Bulfinch front at a later period. The beautiful woodwork and colored wall paper were brought from England by Col. Lee. Lafayette and Washington were entertained here. The first Masonic meeting in Essex county was held in this house. The Masonic emblem is carved in the newel post of the staircase.

Hours are 11-12.30 and $\hat{2}$ -7.

P. Bryant Baker, the noted English sculptor, gave a tea last Saturday in his studio on Fuller st., Magnolia. The bust of Mrs. Katherine Shields, of New York, was shown for the first time to many of his New York friends summering in Gloucester. Miss Heloise Redfield, well-known miniature painter, was among those present.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Heard, of Magnolia, are spending the week-end and next week at Bar Harbor, Me.

THE GARDNER LIGHT-FOUR

An unusual achievement in motoring was made recently, in the car pictured above, a Gardner light four cylinder touring car. Driven by C. C. Vaughn, the car left St. Louis on Wednesday, July 7, at 2 P. M., and arrived in Boston on Tuesday, July 13, at 5 P. M. The only mishap that occurred in the run of 1283 miles was a puncture from a tack. The average running time was 26 miles an hour, and the gasoline consumption was 18½ miles to the gallon.

The Gardner motor has 4 cylinders, $3\frac{1}{2}$ -inch bore and 5-inch stroke. The car has a wheel base of 112 inches, and weighs 2200 pounds. It retails for \$1235

The Gardner Company, which manufactures this car, is directed by Russell E. Gardner and his two sons, R. E. Gardner, Jr., and Fred W. Gardner. These men formerly assembled and distributed 40,000 Chevrolet cars, from 1915 to 1918, when they sold out to General Motors Company. In 1919 they repurchased the Chevrolet plant at St. Louis, and in January, 1920, they began turning out the Gardner car. They are now turning out 1000 cars a month, and their schedule for 1921 calls for 18,000 cars.

The Company was recently financed by Hornblower & Weeks, Boston and New York, and Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co., of St. Louis. The Company has 155,000 shares, of no par value, of which 50,000 shares were recently offered to the public at $27 a share. It is planned to begin dividends at $3, which would yield over 11% on the investment.

In the past three years, the hospital has run behind at the rate of $8,000 a year. While conditions were abnormal and the deficit is not expected to be so great hereafter, it shows what the hospital is up against.
- The hospital, in its efforts to give service often without cost to the patient, is forced to face the old H. C. of L. You know what that means.

HAMILTON.—Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Lynde Cochrane, (Vivian Wessell), of Hamilton, have Richard D. Sears, Jr., with them for a visit. Mr. Sears is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard D. Sears, of Boston, who purchased the Cochrane place at Pride's Crossing, and who are now spending the midsummer at Dark Harbor, Me. The Cochrane place in Hamilton has a most realistic Dutch garden on it, planned by the late Alexander Cochrane. This is, no doubt, the only Dutch garden on the Shore and it is one with many charming characteristics of Holland that yearly make a fine showing.

Another little daughter of the A. Lynde Cochrane's, Lucy Douglas Cochrane, who arrived February 19, has not previously been recorded in the Breeze. The older daughter is Nancy Lynde Cochrane, both being babies, who will grow up in this Dutch garden spot.

The recent Hamilton and Wenham church fair netted $900 for the new Episcopal church to be built on land adjoining "Sunnyfields," the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Dodge, donors of the ground for the church site. Mrs. Charles F. Ayer, of Hamilton, is president of the ladies' guild that gave the fair.

Miss Eleanor Seavey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Seavey (Mabel Foster), of "Foxcroft," Hamilton, is one of the charming young "buds" of the Shore for the coming winter in Boston. The Seaveys live at Chestnut Hill. Miss Seavey recently gave a large picnic party for about 25 young folk at Wingaersheek Beach, Gloucester.

WENHAM.—Mrs. Alanson L. Daniels, of "Old Farm," gave a luncheon last Saturday at the Wenham tea house for her house guest, Miss Esther Baker, a débutante of the winter from Brookline. She, with her sister, Miss Elizabeth Baker, attended the garden party for Miss DeBlois on Friday in Ipswich.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., (Julia Appleton), the latter the daughter of the Randolph M. Appletons, are in South America this summer where Mr. Bird went on a business trip. Their baby daughter, born in March and named Diana, is staying at the Westwood home. The paternal grandmother, Mrs. Charles S. Bird, of Walpole, is deeply interested in the cause of the Republican party just now. Randolph Appleton and his younger daughter, Miss Sibyl, are in Ipswich, as usual, with Mrs. D. E. Appleton.

PSWICH streets presented an interesting sight last week when three French cannons, of 1916, in good working order, were unloaded from the train after a long voyage from overseas en route to the estate of Mr. and Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Jr. Here they will be placed upon some of the beautiful hills of "Castle Hill" to stand for ages to come as mementos of the World War. Mr. Crane has been abroad several weeks and will return in September.

Miss Consuelo Bates gave a tea last Sunday afternoon for about 35 young people at her home on Ipswich river, Labor-in-Vain rd., Ipswich. The cottage occupied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Armistead Baylor, is known as "Red Ledge." Wide lawns and a charming river view make this a delightful place.

Mrs. Grace Davidson and her two daughters and son, of Chicago, are to be permanent summer residents in Ipswich. This spring they purchased the Norwood homestead at Norwood's Mills, moved it across the road and have been making general improvements. It is a beautiful location on the Ipswich river.

Miss Alice Heard opened her place in Ipswich Wednesday for the annual garden party of the United Benevolent society of the First and South Congregational churches. Tea was served at 5 o'clock, and a Pilgrim pageant given in the evening. Miss Heard has one of the fine old-time houses surrounded with a big, shaded lawn so noticeable along the main streets of Ipswich.

Frank A. Bourne, of Ipswich, has interested himself very much in the preservation of the old African Methodist Episcopal church, Charles st., Boston. Prominent Beacon Hill residents have taken up the matter also, believing that the city could ill afford to lose a building associated with the names of John Boyle O'Reilly, William Lloyd Garrison and Wendell Phillips, besides numerous others of note.

DANCE NIGHTS at the Oceanside are always looked forward to with a delightful anticipation of pleasure by the hotel clientele. Many of the young set from various sections of the Shore were in evidence Saturday night, as usual, entertaining their friends at dinner, and remaining for the dancing.

Miss Edna Huling, of Cleveland, who is spending the season here with her mother, Mrs. E. B. Huling, was among the dancers Saturday night. She was prettily gowned in black tulle, with a deft touch of iridescent sequins as trimmings. Irregular draperies of black tulle hanging from the waist line added a daintily-smart finish.

Miss Hope Johnson looked charming in a gown of jade chiffon over satin.

Among the most beautiful gowns was the one of black velvet worn by Mrs. W. E. Williamson. An exquisite bit of color was added by the French blue, which lined the flying side back panels, and was repeated in the beaded ornaments holding the panels at the waist line. The Williamsons entertained Dr. and Mrs. Hobart E. Warren of Beverly Farms at dinner on Saturday night.

Very becoming was the lovely gown of silver grey satin worn by Mrs. E. M. Johnson.

Mrs. E. A. Perry, who is spending the summer at Magnolia with her mother, Mrs. Claude Kilpatrick, was also among the dancers. She wore a very pretty gown of American beauty chiffon.

Paying a brief visit to the North Shore Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Kimball, Miss Kimball, Miss Noble and Chase Kimball are at the Oceanside for the duration of their stay. The Kimballs are from Waterbury, Conn.

Miss Betty Huling, of Cleveland, O., joined her mother and sister, Mrs. E. B. Huling and Miss Edna Huling, at the Oceanside this week, for the balance of the season.

HUNDREDS OF GOOD SUGGESTIONS

To perplexed members of prize committees, we can think of no better suggestion than a visit to our Magnolia shop; it is really a small edition of "THE GIFT SHOP OF FIFTH AVE.." for it contains lamps, Sheffield ware, china sets, table decorations, crystal, and hundreds of novelties, as unusual for their distinction as for their variety. And always, without exception, the same reasonable prices of our New York shop prevail.

ALONG THE CAPE ANN AND GLOUCESTER SHORE

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

CAPE ANN.—The general report comes from the hotel resorts "everything taken." In many places cots are provided for the overflow of guests. The extended period of hot weather caused an extra rush of vacationists to this section of the North Shore. The coming Murray Pilgrimage celebration of the 150th anniversary of the founding of Universalism will undoubtedly fill every accommodation in the city, for thousands of people will be here for this notable event. A pageant on Friday and Saturday evenings, August 27 and 28, will be held at Stage Fort Park, under the direction of Charles H. Hillman, a survivor of and for four and one-half years with the "Princess Pats." There will be 300 people in this pageant. Music will be furnished by the Salem Cadet band, Jean Missud, leader. The park, with its lovely natural setting near the memorial tablet boulder, will be an ideal spot for the pageant. There will be a seating capacity for 6000 people. Seats have now been placed on sale. This pageant is to be presented to show episodes in the life of and to honor the illustrious character of the Rev. John Murray, and his brilliant achievement of establishing the faith of Universalism in the world. A chorus of voices will have a part.

The memorial services for the lost Gloucester fishermen, held at Stage Fort Park, under the direction of the Gloucester Fishermen's Institute, brought out a large number of the summer people last Sunday afternoon to this unique, but beautiful event. At the park an impressive address was made by Rev. Dr. John Clarence Lee. The scattering of flowers upon the waters of the harbor from Blynman bridge, towards the city side of the park, was witnessed by hundreds of people on foot and in automobiles. A band played sacred hymns, while children sang an ode to the lost fishermen. It was very impressive to see the beautiful flowers borne out to sea by the tide, coloring the blue in loving regard for those brave men who gave up their lives in the industry for which Gloucester is so famous.

Summer residents, ladies and gentlemen, who are college graduates, are invited to the open August meeting of the Gloucester College Women's club, to be held on Saturday, August 21, at the home of Miss Miriam Choate, Spring st., Essex. Guests will bring along picnic lunch and there will be a spread at 5.30 o'clock. An interesting program will follow with music, etc. The old Choate house is a historical place. It was in a room in this house that Mary Lyon talked over plans for Mt. Holyoke college. Parties going in automobiles will inquire at Essex postoffice for directions to the house.' A bus leaves Center st., Gloucester, around 5 o'clock.

In Janet's Garden, this week, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Sedden, of St. Louis, entertained a party of western friends. Among others noticed were Miss Sally Dobson, of Boston; Miss Van Volkenburg and Miss Adman, of New York; Albert Sterner, the artist; the Misses Anthony, of Providence; Mrs. Walter Scott, of East Orange, and Mrs. Laurence Allen, of Buffalo.

Arthur Bodansky, conductor of the New York Symphony orchestra, in company with his wife, has been occupying "Windover" cottage on Niles Beach boulevard, Eastern Point, this month. Mr. Bodansky will leave early in September to conduct the rehearsals of that organization. Mrs. Bodansky will remain here during the month of September.

Selling Happiness Instead of Furniture

"Happiness" is really what we have to sell to owners of summer homes on the North Shore. It is more than porch and interior decorations. It is the happiness that only a background of artistic and comfortable furnishings can give to summertime. No home is too large—none too small—for our kind of happiness.

EASTERN POINT.—A pageant masque, "The Holy Grail," from the mural decorations by Sir Edwin A. Abby, R. A., in the Boston public library, will be presented under the direction of Daniel O. Brewster, of Boston, at the Hawthorne Inn casino, on the evenings of August 30, 31 and Sept. 1, in aid of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Memorial Park fund of Gloucester and the Gloucester District Nursing association. Mrs. George Worden will be chairman of patronesses and committees. This medieval religious play will have beautiful costumes, new stage lighting, a vested choir, the latter to sing the processional, and a most interesting and spectacular show is promised. Mr. Brewster, who is an art instructor in the Boston Normal Art school has had experience along this line of work and the public will be given a performance worth while.

Mrs. A. Wilder Pollard gave a dinner at her Eastern Point summer home recently in honor of the family of John Mitchell, of Manchester. The engagement of Mr. Mitchell and Miss Katherine Pollard, daughter of Mrs. Pollard, has been announced, and the wedding will probably take place in the autumn. Lt. Mitchell, during the war, was in the aviation service and he was with Quentin Roosevelt, when the latter was shot down.

Miss Caroline Sinkler is entertaining Mrs. Nicholas Roosevelt (Emily Sinkler), at her Eastern Point summer home. Other house guests of Miss Sinkler are Mr. and Mrs. Dunbar Lockwood, of Boston, whose wedding took place in the south a short time ago. Mrs. Lockwood was Miss Carrie Sinkler and Mr. Lockwood's sister is Mrs. Archie Roosevelt.

The second group of plays scheduled for the coming week, August 24, 25, 26 and 27, at the Playhouse-on-the-Moors, Ledge rd., promises to attract large audiences. The titles of the plays are "Why the Chimes Rang," "Torches" and "A Constant Lover." The former is taken from an old Christmas legend and it will be attractive in detail, music to be introduced, with children and a vested choir. Crosby, a professional, a guest of Merrill Hall. "A Constant Lover" will be played by two people only, Mrs. Edward D. Parsons and Leslie Buswell. There is much humor in the latter play, with a picturesque setting. Costumes will be very interesting in all the plays and lighting effects and scenery will complete the essentials for high-class stage productions. Seats for the performances have been placed on sale at the Playhouse, on Ledge rd., East Gloucester.

An interesting exhibition of paintings by Oscar Anderson is being held at the Gloucester artists' studio, 77 Rocky Neck ave., Rocky Neck, every afternoon. A large number of interesting subjects, a majority of small canvasses, skilfully handled, technically, and with warm and atmospheric color, reveal Gloucester life in the wharf and harbor scenes, the sea and a number of landscapes. There is much poetic feeling in Mr. Anderson's work. The public is invited.

ROCKPORT.—Social life at the Rockport Country club is being very much enjoyed. The August calendar is unusually attractive. The dinner dance held last week was a very enjoyable occasion and on Wednesday afternoon of this week a whist party was held for ladies. Refreshments were served. On Wednesday evening of next week it will be Home Talent Night and a pleasing program is being arranged. On the following Saturday there will be the club dance. On Labor Day, Sept. 6, there will be a dance and special features. This Saturday night the club dance will be held and costumes will be black and white, with masks.

William H. Jordan and daughter, Miss Grace Jordan, of Springfield, are guests at Granite Shore Inn, Rockport.

August 25 has been chosen as the day for the lawn sale and clam bake of the Pigeon Cove Village Improvement society.

The season is at its height all along the Rockport shore. All cottages have been taken for the remainder of the season and the hotels are crowded with guests. Hotel Edward, at Pigeon Cove, has a large number of guests and the afternoon teas and luncheons, as well as the dinners with French cuisine, for which this hostelry is famous, are being held daily. A motor trip down the North Shore to the Edward is popular with tourists.

The Edward, Pigeon Cove.—Among the recent arrivals are included: N. F. Hall, Cambridge; Mr. and Mrs. G. B. Woodburn, Miss Margaret Woodburn, Franklin, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Root, Kansas City, Mo.; Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Kelley, Chicago, Ill.; Mrs. G. E. Alden, Wellesley; Mrs. Thomas E. Baird, Jr., Miss Elizabeth Baird, Mrs. Walter C. Janney, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Miss Grace Ripley, of New York, gave a most interesting exhibition of her wonderful gowns and other artistic creations at the Barnacle all last week. ANNISQUAM.—Sojourners have filled in every cranny for the remainder of August, at least, in the Annisquam region. This attractive village has never failed to lure the tourist for a summer vacation, so that the hotels, Wonasquam Lodge, Outlook, Brynmere and By-Water Inn have been filled to capacity.

Things socially at the Annisquam Yacht club have been pleasant. Teas and dances have taken place regularly and on this Saturday evening, August 21, a masked ball is to be held at the clubhouse and the younger element, especially, is looking forward to a good time. The matrons of the dance last week were Mrs. E. C. Huntress and Mrs. Wm. H. Pear.

Mrs. Robert Windsor, of Weston, entertained a party of fourteen friends at luncheon at the Barnacle Tea House.

Mrs. Gay, of Brookline and Annisquam, entertained a party of Concord friends, recently, at the Barnacle, Annisquam.

The first tennis tournament on the Annisquam Yacht club courts came to a close last week. The men's singles were won by Jack Hooper, who defeated Francis Hill in the finals; the finals in the men's doubles were won by Jack Hooper and Francis Hill, who beat Sam Guiler and Brooks Stevens. In the ladies' singles, Miss Pauline Ames defeated Miss Beatrice Bayne. In the junior doubles, Sam Guiler and Brooks Stevens beat Jack Rogers and Malcolm Steer. In the junior singles, Sam Guiler won over Brooks Stevens. Play in the August tournament will begin next week in the same classifications as the tourney just closed.

BASS ROCKS.—The attractive new studio of Louise Upton Brumback, the artist, of Kansas City, which has been building for several weeks on the Brumback property on the hill, was opened to the public this week and a most interesting collection of paintings is being shown. The studio, 18 by 31 feet in dimension, is located on a picturesque site overlooking a wonderful view of the harbor and landscape. The interior is finished in gray tone and on the fine wall space about 25 paintings are well hung, representing much of Mrs. Brumback's late work, although several have been entered in many of the current exhibitions. The subjects include: "Lilacs," the purple shades being well handled; "Mr. Chandler's Garden," a happy sum-of New York, has become a most successful event, the colony is talking over the many lovely parts of the show. The performance took place at the Moorland casino, Bass Rocks, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of last week, for the benefit of the new maternity ward of the Addison Gilbert hospital and Braewood hospital. About $1500 has been realized. The performance consisted of three parts, "Cinderella's Ball," "An Oriental Story," with an entre act "Legend of the Idol's Eye," and the "Merry Whirl Carnival," with a finale tableau vivant—"A Colonial Wedding." In the latter charming scene Booth Tarkington Jameson, of Indianapolis, a nephew of Booth Tarkington, the author, the original of his Penrod stories, and Mrs. Ovid Butler Jameson, sister of Tarkington, had parts. The boys and girls of the colony performed admirably in "Cinderella's Ball." The scenery, costumes, dances and effects made up one of the most delightful entertainments held in this locality. The committees were as follows: Executive chairman, Mrs. Henry Bradshaw Welsh; treasurer, Mrs. Robert Pogue; assistant treasurer, Mrs. William Allen Dyer; patroness committee, Mrs. Henry Souther; music, Mrs. John McFeeley; committee for maternity ward, Mrs. Richard C.

NORTH SHORE ESTATES

MR. AND MRS. JAMES J. PHELAN, of Brookline, and Smith's Point, Manchester, have now completed, practically, a "house beautiful" for their permanent summer The contractors literally made a new house out of the old one formerly belonging to the J. Warren Merrill estate, and later to the late John M. Graham.

Situated on a high point of land in the very heart of Smith's Point, this handsome house is now one of the North Shore's show places. The grounds have not been changed in the least. Only a great fountain basin has been made for the water feature that will center the terrace on the water side of the house, which is the front. This fountain and a chestnut tree are the hub around which the driveway

A beautiful and harmonious house of stucco has been made. White trimmings and light green blinds, iron balconies at various windows, and most attractive looking windows everywhere are points of character noted. Casement windows opening outward are used on the first floor. These give a quaint charm—a delightful English home look to the house and make ideal windows for admitting breezes as well as affording pretty schemes of casement draperies. Green boxes of blossoming plants at many points and green pots hanging from the ends of the green painted iron balconies help to carry out a color scheme on the outside of white, cream, green and red (blossoms).

The house contains 33 rooms, of which 19 are bedrooms, 11 baths and many large closets, really miniature rooms. Oak is used for the floors.

Brett, Gray & Hartwell, of Boston, were the interior decorators. Through them Mrs. Phelan has selected many rare pieces of furniture in New York shops that fit in with their general scheme of furnishing.

The large central hall is done in soft gray, blue, rose and cream. A picture of a desert scene in deep blue and a painted flower-canvas design over the great mantel emphasize the colors brought out in the hall. A blue Chinese rug is used and among the special pieces of furniture is an old painted commode.

French doors lead to the right of the hall into a library done in cerise. A corner grate, a big window with a deep seat, draperies of Chinese material, and Italian chairs upholstered in needle-point tapestry are special points of interest in this room. Seeming to dominate the room, however, is the piece of old tapestry hanging over a table on the wall opposite the big window.

Again French doors lead from the library to the large and cheerful sun-room, partly stuccoed with a green lattice wall covering and red tiled floor. A fountain in the end wall and stands for ivy make this a cool retreat. The many windows have most unusual and appropriate draperies. Gauze has been embroidered in wool flowers and birds, and edged with green fringe. These curtains designed and ordered by Mrs. Phelan are most unique in a sun-room. Pillows to match, and green wicker furniture done in green chintz with flower and bird designs are used. A very old table with iron legs is seen here.

The living-room occupies the end on the left of the hall. A plain elephant-colored rug and panelled walls painted green are the background for various old pieces of furniture and some exquisitely executed modern copies. An inlaid Victrola cabinet is most unusual. Window draperies are of English crewel.

French doors lead from the back of the hall to the dining-room. Sheridan mahogany furniture, two painted serving tables and a screen, a sideboard and a blue Chinese rug are used. Horeshair is used for chair seats. Cream casement window curtains, striped blue taffeta curtains and a painted cornice complete this room. Noted on the tables and sideboard tops are old altar cloths.

The breakfast room with its tile floor and latticed stucco walls opens off the dining-room. Furniture painted in orange, two console tables and the casement windows are very attractive here. The chairs are of an old-time pattern with rush bottoms.

The second floor as well as the third has every room carried out in a pretty and pleasing detail.

Mr. and Mrs. Phelan's room is done in green panelling and lavender and green artistically combine to make a charming scheme. Lavender linen curtains edged with silk and taffeta binding are at the long windows. Antique walnut day beds, an antique chest of drawers, two green painted dressing tables, a painted desk, and painted lighting fixtures are specially noted. Painted urns on the mantel are used for lights.

Dressing rooms and great closets open off this room; also a porch on the water side. Triple mirrors are used on all dressing tables throughout the house.

The little daughters, Priscilla and Virginia, aged five and three, occupy the room adjoining their parents'. furniture painted in rose with touches of blue, and white muslin curtains dotted in pink make a dainty room.

The baby's room is next. In it the year-old Patricia sleeps amid blue and white, true baby colors. Old furniture has been painted and decorated. White curtains dotted in blue are used.

The playroom is next, making a suite of three rooms for the children. It is to be furnished in pieces representing various animals from Chamberlin's in New York.

A French guest room done in rose furnishings is a novelty on the second floor. A French bed carved with garlands of roses over which is a canopy of pink taffeta, a taffeta silk dressing table and corresponding furnishings make this a little room of much charm.

The other guest room on this floor is done in peacock blue and peach-colored painted furniture. Peach-colored chintz with a peacock silk cornice are effectively used at the windows. Chairs and bed covering are of the same material. Circle beds are used.

The third floor contains the rooms for the older Phelan children and three guest rooms besides.

Miss Katharine has a dainty room in pink and cream with a dresser containing a special triplicate mirror.

Miss Caroline's room is done in blue and gray with glazed chintz hangings.

James J. Phelan, Jr., has an airy room in cream with glazed chintz over the French doors opening on to the balcony overlooking the fountain below.

A guest room for boys is done in dark mahogany with black and rose draperies and bed coverings.

A four-poster of mahogany occupies another guest room done in green and rose chintz. The bed spread is one of the knotted ones from the southern mountain women

The other guest room contains two painted beds covered with rose spreads, and the hangings are of plain rose.

MRS. JAMES D. SAFFORD, of Norton's Point, Manchester, has a charming little "apple tree house" at the top of the rocks back of her house on the water side. A rustic seat under the old tree affords a delightful place to sit and look out over the sea, or down below at the little rock garden of flowers and vegetables. The steps leading down from the rustic shelter house to the garden are matted with vines.

Mrs. Safford's house is on the site of an old fort. Her garden is yearly becoming more and more a substantial fixture on the rocks. Pockets have been filled in with plenty of soil and the plants seem to thrive on their sunny exposure high upon the rocky point. Plenty of trees also surround the place, between which some rare vistas are discerned.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY L. DAWES, of "Parting Paths," Ipswich, have a charming garden and terrace on the river side of their house.

A long veranda is on this side, then the soft, grassy terrace from which steps lead down to another terrace. This one is centered with a sundial and has a perennial flower border around it. One end is flanked with a pergola covered thickly with grape vines, while the opposite end has a delightful "green garden" section. The sundial bears the motto:

All the seasons run their race In this quiet resting place.

Steps descending beneath a rose-arch made in a long rose-hedge lead to the rose garden below. Beyond the rose garden, out in the general grounds, is a little summer-house standing in direct line with the terrace steps.

At one side of the garden spot is a large orchard and beyond this flows the beautiful Ipswich river. Glimpses of its waters gleaming through the trees add much to the joy of the place.

Mr. and Mrs. Dawes live in Pittsfield, and frequently rent the Ipswich home. Their house made a delightful meeting place for the Hampton meeting last week.

LAST WORD IN HOUSEBOAT CONSTRUCTION

Allison V. Armour's Boat Almost Ready for the Water—Will be Launched at Manchester this Month

By LILLIAN McCANN

ALLISON VINCENT ARMOUR'S houseboat, which has been under construction at Calderwood's boatyard in Manchester since last autumn, is now about ready for launching.

Mr. Armour's boat is considered one of the most modern and thoroughly equipped boats yet constructed. It stands now in all the glory of its potentiality ready to leap into life and being at the command of its dumb automatic forces touched by the hands that "know how."

The engine room occupies the centre of the boat. This

The engine room occupies the centre of the boat. This "heart" of the boat is not only of interest to engineers and mechanics, but contains a general interest for all who wish to know what science is doing these days in the way of inventions and labor-saving devices on a large scale—a scale that can be so uniquely applied to a houseboat. The engine room is really the most modern and most complete one ever installed upon a boat.

It is to be white enamelled with a blue-gray baseboard and the engines and machinery will be painted a light motor gray. Three clutch reversing engines are in the centre of the room. They consume either fuel oil or kerosene. Conveniently placed along one side is a section of tanks containing fuel oil, while two smaller tanks on the opposite side contain fuel oil and kerosene, making in all 1200 gallons carried.

Now the minor equipments in the engine room are what make it so wonderfully interesting. A power-driven bilge pump is installed to pump out water accumulating in the bilge of the boat. A set of manifold valves near this pump are so arranged that water may be pumped from any quarter of the boat by connecting the pump with the valve controlling that quarter.

A compressed air motor is used to store air in two tanks for starting purposes, also for the whistle on the deck. It is run by heavy oil or kerosene.

Another mechanism to avoid the waste of water (always a problem on boats) is a hot water circulating pump. By starting it early in the morning the water is circulated all through the pipes and when a hot water faucet is turned hot water immediately flows out.

Water is pumped from the sea by a Kewanee salt water pump into a tank to be distributed under pressure automatically to all bath rooms. A fresh water pump also works automatically in taking water from the tanks below for distribution throughout the boat. An emergency pump is also installed, pumping either salt water or fresh.

Some of these pumps are placed where they might be sprayed from a window, so to avoid this a neat little work bench is placed over them beneath the window. The same idea is carried out on the opposite side of the room where a work-bench running the length of the room tops the oil tanks. Not a foot of space is wasted throughout the place, or for that matter, on the whole boat.

Two lubricating oil tanks, and a Winton generator set (the only gasoline engine on the boat) and a neat looking switch board set out from the wall so that one can get behind it to adjust wires easily complete the room with the exception of one interesting piece of mechanism which has much to do with the comfort of everybody on the boat.

This is the Clothel system of refrigeration. Besides circulating through the pantry ice box and keeping the desired temperature, it also forms ice for table use in a box in the engine room. Very comfortably arranged will this box be as a settee for the engineer, carrying out the scheme of everything serving two purposes. Cork insulation is used to protect the pipes of the refrigerator system from any heat in the room.

All mufflers and smoke pipes are concealed very neatly by the dummy smoke stack on the deck.

Leaving the engine room and going forward the crew's quarters are found. From the engine room towards the stern are located the guest quarters, dining-room, mess room for the crew, galley and pantry.

The crew's quarters are most complete and show thoughtful points for comfort in every detail. White enamel makes an interior calling for perfect cleanliness. Hot and cold water, with stationary wash bowl, is in every room. A radiator will make for comfort on cold days and nights, while a port window of good size will admit plenty of breezes.

The captain and chief engineer have rooms fitted out with built-in berths, a set of drawers beneath, a closet and a desk.

A shower bath for the crew, an officers' washroom, linen closets, and a lounging room, complete this section. The lounging room will contain settees and a table and be made as comfortable as possible. In it is a bungalow pipe boiler used for heating water used throughout the boat. A cleverly made door, which looks like a window, will admit the crew into the boat in this lounging room.

An interesting mechanical device in this section of the boat is the motor by which the anchors are hoisted, merely by pushing a button. The chains are wound up and neatly put away in a box-like arrangement.

Going aft from the engine room is found the completely furnished galley, the mess room with its electric dishwasher, the pantry and main dining-room and guest rooms, four in all with three baths, and a trunk room.

On the upper deck are located Mr. Armour's suite of rooms and the main saloon. The interior finish of these rooms will be painted wood as in a simple summer bunga-

THE MOONBEAM FAIRIES

By NATALIE E. HUTCHINSON

(Contributed to "Junior Breeze" Section of North Shore Breeze by one of the Junior North Shore Girls)

BETTY lay listlessly watching the moonbeams flickering on the floor of her room; she had been watching the moonbeams an awfully long time, she thought. Now she was getting sleepy. She was just dropping off to sleep when suddenly the room seemed to light up. She opened her eyes, and what do you think she saw? The room was filled with fairies—little fairies, big fairies, fairies of all different sizes. They had on yellow suits and little yellow caps with big white feathers in them. But there was one fairy that seemed bigger and brighter than the others; he wore a gold crown set with jewels. As he came toward her, Betty noticed that all the other fairies bowed down before him.

"How now," said the King," why do you stare at us so? We have come to take you for a visit to the Moonbeam Country, where I am King; we shall start right away if you Betty looked at him with a puzzled expression. "But how are we going to get there?" she asked.

"Fly, of course, you goose," exclaimed the King. Then he sobered a little, "but you can't fly," he said sadly. "I guess we'll have to give it up, boys.

"Oh, no, no, your Majesty," cried one of the fairies, "you forget our magic boat."

"But we haven't got it with us," said the King, "unless you brought it with you."

"He did, he did," cried all the fairies in chorus, "he told us he did."

"Bring it forth," said the King, "we will start immediately."

The fairy brought forth the boat and, pronouncing a magic word that looked like this—PKMXZQL—immediately started the boat growing larger. Pronouncing another word like this—ZLNSPQ—the boat stopped growing. Then stepping in, they sailed up the longest moonbeam and soon were in the Moonbeam Country.

Now, the Moonbeam Country is exactly between the sky and earth, but with the mortal eve no one can see it, so of course the Fairy King had to rub Betty's eyes with some magic ointment so she could see. They got off the boat in the King's Garden, where nothing but yellow flowers grow. These flowers are called moon flowers and they live for one thousand years. Every thousand years the moon cries and all the tears fall on the Moonbeam Country, which makes the flowers. These flowers will die the exact moment the thousand years expire. Now it happened that the moment Betty and the fairies arrived, the thousand years were up and all the flowers died. A few minutes after the moon came from behind a cloud and began to cry. As well as his tears the moon dropped a necklace of moon tears. The King, picking it up, handed it to Betty.

"Oh, thank you," she cried, clasping it around her neck,

"it is lovely."
"Every hundred years," said the King, "we Moonbeam Fairies are allowed to take a child to visit us. Now it happened that this was the year the moon cries so, seeing we had a visitor, he dropped the necklace."
"How kind of him," Betty put in.

"These beads," continued the King, "are magic; whenever you are hungry or thirsty or want to be an animal or a bird or fish, you just take one of the beads and drop it in water or fire, saying:

> 'Moon tears, moon tears, Do not wait a thousand years. If I put you in water or fire Bring me now my heart's desire.'

and immediately you will become what you wish. Come with me to my palace," went on the King, "we will have something to eat, as I know little girls are not like us and cannot live on people's good wishes."

The King's palace was made of amber, the door was made of one big diamond and all the windows were made of The palace had one hundred and fifty rooms in it; the roof had a big skylight made of big pearl shells that opened and shut when the King wished it.

The King led Betty to the dining room where they had a good meal. When they had finished, the King took Betty to the garden again. Just then the clock struck twelve. "It is midnight," said the King, "you have to go home, close your eyes.'

Betty closed her eyes and felt herself being gently wafted through the air. When she opened her eyes, she was back in her own little bed. The bright morning sun was streaming in the windows, there was no sign of fairies anywhere, and Annie, her nurse, was knocking on the door.

"It must have been a dream," thought Betty, "I wish it was real.

Just then Annie, her nurse, came in and exclaimed— "What beautiful beads, Miss Betty, where did you get them?"

Then Betty related her adventures, adding at the end, "I am so glad it was real."

THE END

BETWEEN TWO MOONS

By Florence E. Whittier

A QUIET night—bright moonlight, A brook or else a pond, A summer breeze—background of trees, 'Neath which two lovers fond Pledge their true love. And now above A big cloud hides the moon. Their lips in bliss meet in a kiss: All nature is in tune,-

For as they sigh, the clouds pass by, The moon comes out again.

The stars appear the night to cheer, And bright is lover's lane. Now as they raise their eyes to gaze Up at the moon on high, The lovers see moonbeams silv'ry Reaching to earth from sky.

Into the brook the lovers look: Reflected from above Another moon, also in tune, Reflects their pledge of love.

In order to acquaint the public with the general telephone situation, and some of the reasons for delay in completing new installations—chief among which is the difficulty of getting the numerous kinds of necessary material—we have prepared a series of announcements of which this is the third.

New Telephone Equipment Scarce

We appreciate, and with deep sympathy, the feelings of a subscriber who has bought or leased a house in some section where, for the time being, we are without facilities, and who says to our commercial representative: "Why, you have poles and wires on the street and the house itself is wired. All you need to do is to connect us up."

We wish the solution were as simple as all that. There may be poles and wires, but every wire already assigned. There may be a cable, but not a spare circuit in the cable. There may be a spare circuit, but not another inch of available switch-board at the central office with which to connect that circuit. We have had new sections of switchboard delayed weeks in their operation because of the absence of such little accessories as ringing keys or relays.

The reason for this scarcity of telephone equipment is very simple. We couldn't maintain our usual ratio of advance construction during the war, because the government needed for war purposes the very things we needed for telephone purposes. Consequently our margin of reserve facilities was gradually absorbed by the demand.

We are short of copper wire, silk, rubber, clay, beeswax, glass, thread, porcelain, paper, paraffin, antimony, tin, shellac and other materials entering into the construction of telephone equipment because the whole world is short of these things or of material fabricated from them. Our engineers are searching the markets of the world for these things while other experts are endeavoring to develop satisfactory substitutes.

We are making progress in both directions, but it is necessarily slow because never has there been such a demand for service as at the present time. Incidentally, there has never, in a similar period, been such a fulfilment of demand.

We want to make clear to those awaiting telephone service that we realize the handicap under which they are laboring and are keenly desirous of removing it as soon as possible. We want them to understand, also, that building a telephone plant is not a matter of some poles and wire, but literally of hundreds of different kinds of material, raw or fabricated. Nevertheless the spirit of our people is not to set up this difficulty as an alibi, but rather as a challenge to their inventive genius and resourcefulness.

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES ALONG THE NORTH SHORE

Coming Out Party of Miss DeBlois—Meetings in Interest of Hampton Institute—Musicales and "Garden Day"

THE SOCIAL SEASON along the North Shore was at its height the past week.

On Friday, August 13, what might have been considered two unlucky combinations in day and date, Miss Elizabeth DeBlois made her formal début in Ipswich. The same afternoon Mrs. Hall McAllister gave her last musicale at Mrs. Bayard Warren's, Pride's Crossing.

Mrs. Bayard Warren's, Pride's Crossing.

Saturday was "garden day" at the George E. Barnard place in Ipswich. A Hampton Institute meeting also took place in Ipswich that day, at the Henry L. Dawes' place.

Sunday a less formal Hampton meeting was held at the Dudley L. Pickman home in Beverly Cove.

Monday the "Bee" club of hospital workers gave a play for the benefit of Children's hospital in Boston, at the Barrett Wendell, Jr., place in Beverly Farms.

Tuesday, Miss Virginia Wainwright gave her last musical discourse for the season at Mrs. Bayard Warren's, Pride's Crossing.

Wednesday afternoon, Mme. Naardyn Lyska, of Poland, gave a concert at the Eastern Yacht club, Marblehead Neck. Also on Wednesday occurred the song recital by Mrs. Franklin Townsend, at Mrs. S. Fisher Corlies' home, Magnolia.

Thursday, Mlle. Germaine Cossini gave her last French reading at Mrs. Henry F. Sears', Beverly Cove.

Tomorrow (Saturday) the reception at Mr. and Mrs. Godfrey Lowell Cabot's, Beverly Farms, will be a fore-runner of another pleasant week.

Friday's Activities

IPSWICH had the first function given for the 1920-'21 débutantes, of Boston, last Friday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. George Lewis DeBlois, of Marlboro st., presented their daughter, Miss Elizabeth DeBlois, at a garden party at "Brookfield," their beautiful country home. This was formerly the home of the late John F. Brooks, of Salem and Boston, grandfather of Miss DeBlois. It was also her birthplace, and the party on Friday occurred on her birthday. The day was almost ideal and the garden and lawn were fully appreciated by the many friends who gathered for the happy occasion.

Miss DeBlois was in white, her dress being of white embroidered muslin, with an Irish lace collar and white sash. Her white straw hat was trimmed with roses and lace, partly shading the face.

Mrs. DeBlois wore pale gray chiffon over flesh-colored satin and a brown hat. She carried an antique ivory fan.

Young girls who poured included the Misses Lois Arnold, Mary Cram, Eleanor Dodge, Jane Grew, Barbara Farnham, Katherine Hughes, Eleanor Parker, Rose Parker and Eleanor Seavey, assisted by Miss Isabel Boardman, Miss Katherine Dodge and Miss Rosamond Johnson, three of last year's "buds."

Among others present were Miss Marcia Davis, Miss Ellen Sprague, Miss Eleanor G. Spooner and Miss Frances Brooks, of Portsmouth, a sister of Mrs. DeBlois.

The old-fashioned garden with its charming hedges, sundial and grass walks and the long shady arbor at one side, besides the big lawn space by the home were fully utilized by the young folk.

On Saturday Mrs. DeBlois gave a tea for eight young folk at the Wenham tea house.

Mrs. Hall McAllister's last concert of the three most excellent ones put on this year on the North Shore was well patronized by the music lovers of the Shore last Friday afternoon when the music room and library in Mr. and Mrs.

Bayard Warren's Pride's Crossing home was filled with an enthusiastic audience. Mme. Ruano Bogislav, a mezzo-so-prano singer of rare intelligence and charm, presented a novel program, while George Smith, an extremely young pianist, played that instrument as it is seldom heard. His first concert last season brought him great praise from the critics and delighted a large audience. Mr. Smith has been heard frequently in Boston by musicians who consider his playing mature and individual for one so young. Few pianists can do so many different things equally well and this fact he well demonstrated last Friday. His selections were Chopin's "Fantasie F minor" and from Debussy, R. N. Delt and Gabrilowitsch.

Mme. Bogislav is a well known stage singer of extraordinary interest and possesses a handsome and striking personality. Her deep brunette beauty was offset with a rich yellow dress trimmed in red and blue appliqué, with which she wore a long deep blue sash and blue beads. Admirably she sings classic songs, but she specializes in gypsy music, singing these rare folk songs in the Slavic languages of the original. Before she sang a number Mme. Bogislav gave the translation in English, reciting it with a charm and gusto that were much appreciated. She, as well as the brilliant pianist, received much applause. Russian, Hungarian, Serbian, Czecho-Slovac, Roumanian and Italian songs were on her list. Mrs. Nevil Ford, daughter of Mrs. McAllister, accompanied these songs. Mrs. Ford wore cream net with a touch of green.

Mrs. McAllister is surely to be congratulated for bringing three such rare and popular musical treats to the Shore this season.

Saturday

"GARDEN DAY" on the North Shore last Saturday afternoon was in Ipswich. The beautiful garden of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Barnard, of "River Bend Farm" was opened to the public as a benefit for the National Civic Federation. Before Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge left for the New Hampshire home she arranged the opening of this garden, asked for by the many who attended the garden openings in July. These have been real treats enjoyed by hundreds of people this summer for the small admission fee of fifty cents. Requests have come in to see more gardens.

Mrs. Roger S. Warner, of Argilla road, and Miss Sibyl Appleton, of "Appleton Farms," had charge of the gate receipts

Among those present were: Mrs. Richard T. Crane, Jr., and guests, Mr. and Mrs. Lester Leland, and Mrs. J. A. Lowell Blake. There was a large attendance of people from all sections of the North Shore.

MR. AND MRS. HENRY L. DAWES opened "Parting Paths," their attractive home in Ipswich for a Hampton Institute meeting last Saturday afternoon. The hall, living-room and veranda were well-filled by guests who came to enjoy the beautiful plantation melodies always heard at these meetings.

The Ipswich meeting had been looked after specially by Mrs. J. Dellinger Barney, of Argilla road, Mrs. Dudley L. Pickman, of Beverly Cove, and Miss Harriot S. Curtis, of Manchester. Mrs. W. B. Everett, assistant treasurer of the Hampton committee of this locality, came from Watertown for the day. Mrs. Everett spends much of the winter season at Hampton and in that way became interested in the institution there. The friends gained in Ipswich were new and the seventy-odd will aid much in spreading the spirit of Hampton.

Rev. Dr. Wm. G. Thayer, headmaster of St. Mark's school at Southboro, and an Ipswich summer resident, presided.

Sunday

MR. AND MRS. DUDLEY L. PICKMAN, of Beverly Cove, had a delightful Hampton meeting out under the trees at their beautiful place Sunday afternoon. Dr. James E. Gregg, principal of Hampton Institute, presided. Old plantation melodies of an intensely religious nature were given by the students. Columbus Kamba Simango, a native African, told the story of his early life in Africa, his conversion to Christianity, his desire to learn to read and write, which at last led him to Hampton, thence to Columbia University, after which he intends going back to work among his own people.

Dr. Gregg gave a simple, earnest talk on the race problem in this country. He dwelt especially on the fact that lynchings had been over half reduced this past year, and that the better class of the South was much opposed to such things at all times. By having a Christian-like fraternal feeling towards all, an equal opportunity for all, and a spirit that puts yourself in the other man's place, he believes that many of the problems that confront the white man in dealing with the Negro and Indian can be solved satisfactorily.

Hampton has been working along these lines for over fifty years. He spoke of the various subjects taughtteaching, farming, extension work, trades, social work, business, etc.

"A Hampton graduate does not follow a vocation merely to earn a living. Each one is sent out imbued with the desire to help his neighbor and his whole community to a higher plane of living. He interests himself in the churches, in the Sunday schools, in the social activities, in the various clubs of his people. Hampton graduates are not only sane and able leaders, but they have a reputation for gaining the respect of their white neighbors and of living at peace with them.'

After the meeting the Pickmans invited the guests to have tea in the garden.

Among those present were the Misses Curtis, the Misses Rantoul, Mrs. Charles Hopkinson, Mrs. Franklin Haven, Mrs. R. Paul Snelling, Dr. and Mrs. John C. Warren, Mr. and Mrs. Russell S. Codman and their house-guest. Gen. Lassiter, U. S. A., Mrs. Charles W. Amory, Mr. and Mrs. Washington B. Thomas, Mrs. Lucius M. Sargent and Miss Elizabeth N. Swift. About 80 attended the meeting.

At the Nahant meeting Thursday night of last week, Hon. Henry Cabot Lodge was asked to preside. He declined, however, owing to his many coming political duties, but sent a cordial note expressing his sincere sympathy with the Hampton work. This gathering was also well attended. Its patronesses included Mrs. Louis Bacon, Mrs. Dudley B. Fay, Mrs. Charles H. Gibson, Mrs. Thomas Motley, Mrs. F. Harleston Parker, Mrs. Homer B. Richardson, Miss Clara E. Sears, Mrs. Frederick Winslow and Mrs. S. H. Wolcott.

Monday

THE BEE CLUB, youngest of the Boston Children's hospital clubs of children on the Shore, gave a pretty little play Monday afternoon on the field at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Jr., Beverly Farms. They presented "Nick Bluster's Trick" from "Children's Plays" by Eleanor L. and Ada M. Skinner. A charming little setting was made by the natural evergreen hedge for a background and pots of hydrangea and other flowers placed around in front.

The play is supposed to take place in the spring in Sweet Brier Dell. The Queen of Spring was Elsie Brewer. She wore airy white and green and had a gold crown. Nick Bluster, wrapped in a heavy tan-colored cape and wearing a tan hat, was a merry Nick, taken by Lily Polk. Jack Frost was a saucy fellow in silver and white whose part was well taken by Anna Dennett.

The Queen of Spring has some dainty handmaidens whose dancing and skipping around was a pretty sight. Barbara Wendell, in thin, gauzy yellow trimmed in gold braid was Merry Sunshine. Susie Brewer was Evening Dew in white with pink ribbons and a pink wreath. Edith Koshland, in blue with blue ribbons holding her hair Greek fashion, was South Breeze, while her little sister, Ruth, dressed in pink with pink ribbons, was Morning Mist. Mary Flagg, in gray satin with silver lace trimmings and a wreath of blue and pink flowers, represented Silver Show-in the play, sold lemonade and cake at its conclusion. She was assisted by Charlotte Lyman and Margaret and Luisita Leland, of the Brownland cottages, Manchester.

Mrs. Robert W. Means sold tickets, children under ten paying 10c, and over, 25c. Mothers and fathers and children and nurses were out in goodly numbers. Games were started on the lawn, but could not be continued long on account of the rain.

Among those present were the Bicycle club of nine members, Alice and Anne Means, Miss Hope Iselin, Mary, Lydia, Richard and Phyllis Lovering, Miss Evelyn Cummings, John Wilkins, Jr., Madelyn and Eleanor Phillips, Jack, Frank, Jr., James and the other little Polks. Some of the grown-ups, other than parents of the children, were Mrs. Gordon Abbott, Mrs. F. L. Higginson and Mrs. Henry L. Mason.

The parents interested in the Bee club include Mr. and Mrs. Barrett Wendell, Jr., Major and Mrs. Carl P. Dennett, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Brewer, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Koshland, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. K. Cummings and Dr. and Mrs. Elisha Flagg.

The play was an original idea of the busy "bees" making up the club—all children in it ranging in age from 8 to 10 years. These children also are making nice articles for

Tuesday

MRS. BAYARD WARREN, of Pride's Crossing, opened her house on Tuesday afternoon for the last of Miss Virginia Wainwright's musical discourses for the summer. The subject was "The Music of Denmark, Iceland and the Faroe Islands." Mrs. Ruth Ivy Greenhalge, an accomplished violinist, and Miss Mildred Jones Keefe, pianist, played the illustrations. Both musicians wore white, while Miss Wainwright was attired in white and green linen and wore a tan hat trimmed in green. Miss Mary Clune, of Brookline, took up tickets.

Miss Wainwright told the history of music and talked of the composers in the countries under discussion. Some of the numbers had never been given before in this country and some had never been given on the Shore before. Miss Wainwright has no limit in making research into a country's musical history and drawing out all that is instructive as well as interesting.

Folk songs, ballads, the Danish national hymn and general selections comprised the musical numbers.

Wednesday

MRS. BERNARD C. WELD invited all the children and older ones making up the various hospital clubs on the Shore, working for the benefit of the Boston Children's hospital, to see the movies at her house in Beverly Farms, Wednesday afternoon. Younger children met at 3 o'clock, and older ones at four.

Pictures shown represented Barnum & Bailey's circus at the hospital in Boston. This gave the hospital units an idea of what was going on in the hospital and was interesting without being depressing. Such pictures will, no doubt, encourage the formation of more units.

MRS. FRANKLIN TOWNSEND, of Washington, gave one of her typically pleasing and interesting song recitals this Wednesday at "Att-Lea House," the Magnolia home of Mrs. S. Fisher Corlies and daughter, Miss Margaret L. Corlies. A large audience of music lovers gave Mrs. Townsend and her accompanist, Miss Millicent Chapman, I. R. A. M., A. R. C. M. (pianoforte), London, England, a warm welcome.

Their program was informally announced as the numbers were given, opening with the Aria, Samson et Dalila, from which "Printemps qui commencè" was taken. Other selections included "At the Ball," by Tschaikowsky; "Dissonance," by Borodine; "Novembre," by Trémissor; "Psychè," by Paladithe; "Pappillon," by Xaurdran; "Jean," by Burleigh; Colored songs from Carpenter; "Sylvia," by Speaks; "At the Well," by Hageman, and old Irish songs and the beautiful "Paradise," from Lucretia Borgia, for closing numbers.

Miss Corlies' house has often been the scene of North Shore musicales, and her friends know they will always find a treat in store for them. Mrs. Townsend has been heard often in Washington and New York. She is now at Rye Beach, N. H., for a few weeks with her young baby. Miss Chapman is a brilliant young pianist that was heard early in the season at the graduating exercises of the Beverly hospital training school, when she accompanied Mrs. John L. Saltonstall, violinist, of Beverly Cove. Her playing is always much appreciated and calls for considerable applause.

Some Coming Events—Children's Hospital Benefits and Other Activities to Interest All

MR. AND MRS. RICHARD T. CRANE, JR., of Ipswich, are opening their beautiful Italian garden for a children's dancing exhibition on Saturday afternoon, September 4, at 4 o'clock, a benefit for the Ipswich Cable Memorial hospital. Solo dancing and group dancing will be given under the direction of Miss Consuelo Bates, of Ipswich. Miss Bates has been drilling the children of the summer colony all season in weekly meets in the Crane casino. These ballet dances accompanied by the Ipswich band will draw a large crowd to "Castle Hill" that day. Tickets are now selling rapidly at $1. The seating capacity of the garden is 400, so, if you want a good seat, get in touch with Miss Bates, daughter of Mrs. Armistead Baylor, of Ipswich.

PSWICH children have been busy all summer working for the Boston Children's hospital. Three clubs composed of 30 children in all are now preparing for a party and fair to close the season's work on Saturday afternoon, August 28, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roger S. Warner, Argilla rd., Ipswich, the affair taking place from 3 to 6 o'clock.

A program of old French and English folk songs will be given under the direction of Mrs. Langdon Warner, of Essex, and her little nine-year-old daughter, Lorraine, will give a Russian dance, in Russian costume, on the lawn. Mrs. Warner has been training the children in chorus work all summer.

The sale of articles made by the children will be of interest to everybody. Mrs. J. Dellinger Barney, of Argilla rd., has met with the girls weekly to oversee the work in sewing and painting they have been doing at the home of Mrs. John E. Rousmaniere. The boys have met at the Arthur A. Shurtleff house, where Mrs. Shurtleff has been in charge of a carpentry class. They will have very original wooden toys, boats, etc., to sell. Ices, tea and cake will be served.

R. AND MRS. HARRIS P. MOSHER, of 127 Front st., "The Mooring," Marblehead, are opening their house and garden for an antique exhibition on Saturday, August 28, 10-12 a. m., and 2-6 p. m. China, silver, old furniture, costumes and noted autographs will be seen. Tea and ices will be sold. Price of admission is fifty cents.

Under the patronage of the trustees of the Marblehead public library this exhibition will prove a drawing card for all those who wish to help the "Books for Everybody Fund," of the American Library association. See last week's Breeze for article on the Mosher exhibit.

The following excerpts about the library work may be of interest:

"'Good Books Make Good Citizens'—this is the firm conviction of the American librarians who are back of the 'Books for Everybody' movement.

"To be a good citizen one needs to be grounded in the ideals of American democracy and well informed on current and political affairs. That requires a continuing education which will apply not only to new Americans, but to all Americans. Libraries can provide this continuing education.

"There are approximately 15,000,000 new Americans in the United States and more than 6,000,000 of this number cannot read or speak the language of America. Millions of American-born do not come in contact with good books.

"Many national efforts have been made in the last few months to solve the social and industrial problems that are agitating the country, but none of them has taken into consideration that powerful agency for self-education—the library. Many libraries have demonstrated the effectiveness of this important work.

"It has been determined that nearly half of the patrons of public libraries are children. A very large proportion of these little readers are the sons and daughters of new Americans from many lands. These children take back to their homes the language of America and books, made easy to read, breathing the spirit of the country. Any program designed to create a better citizenship or a finer culture should begin with the children.

"While millions of American youngsters have the freedom of literature, other millions in those parts of the country where libraries are rare or practically unknown have never even heard of the books that made your childhood a joyful memory. Think of childhood without Andersen's Tales, Treasure Island, Huckleberry Finn, or any of the host of other books dear to the heart of the boy and the girl. The library is by far the most important agency for universal self-education ever devised."

Through the courtesy of Mrs. Parker H. Kemble, of Marblehead, the William R. Lee mansion in Marblehead will be opened to the public on Tuesday, Aug. 24, from 11 to 7 o'clock, for the benefit of the committee on the civic and patriotic education of non-English speaking women of the Women's Municipal league, of Boston, Mrs. R. T. Paine, 2d, of Coolidge Point, Manchester, chairman. Tea will be served from 4 until 7 o'clock.

The league is managing the little "Sweet Brier" teahouse on Revere Beach boulevard this season.

THE MAGNOLIA SHOPS NOTES OF INTEREST

By Gladys H. Richards

FOR the lady of the North Shore colony, shopping, even in this hot weather, is a delightful pleasure, for the Magnolia Shops, cool and attractive, are summoning from Paris and New York the ultra smart apparel for her approval and selection. Richly handsome furs, smart suits and hats, and beautiful frocks and gowns are already on display in many of the stores,

A lovely little theatre gown at E. T. Slattery's has a bodice of old blue brouche chiffon, with square low neck. The skirt is black crepe meteor with the new loop panels forming a smart finish.

Very handsome is the matron's gown of black crepe meteor, with straight lines, and crystal beaded in square panels adding a distinctive touch. A deep brown afternoon gown of crepe meteor is very smart. It has the modishly high round collar and kimono sleeves, which are one of fashion's whims for fall wear. The neck and sleeves are banded with rose taupe duvetyne, and the wide girdle is also of duvetyne. An embroidered design on the skirt front is of duvetyne tibbon loops caught at the top with gold thread. The tout ensemble is distinctively simple.

A girlish little suit is made of colblat chamostyne, with scotch moleskin forming collar and the wide band around the bottom of the coat.

"Comfy" and practical as well as very handsome is the coat of black fortuna, with its loose lines and deep collar of Australian opossum. It has a beautiful lining of black and white figured silk.

Among their new French hats is one of black silk beaver, with soft crown and a draped ribbon band forming unique loops at the back.

To our inquiry at Lamson & Hubbard's as to when they are going to let us see their nice new furs, we are told that there is to be a large "opening" the last of August. In the meantime we are very much "taken" with a beautiful coat of an exquisite shade of brown, which is very becoming. The cape hanging to the waist line in front obligingly carries itself around to the back where it forms a blouse effect. The wide scarf collar has narrow stripes of orange. A narrow belt ties loosely in front.

A visit to Ruby's usually discloses dainty surprises in French gowns, but we are scarcely prepared for the exquisite tulle gown of blue violet. The round side panels are outlined with bewildering little rufflles, and floating bits of tulle add their piquant charm. The simple bodice, the floating tulle, and its adorable ruffles pronounce this gown "French" in the tiniest happy detail.

In our search for fall sports and semi-sports hats we visit Collins & Fairbanks, and are soon lost in the maze of selection. Adorably girlish is the hat of soft tan leather. The rolled front is of chamois daintily embroidered in jade worsted. A modish tan veil with its tiny edging of jade wool, lends an added charm to the hat. A very distinctive sailor hat is of tan duvetyne, with all-over embroidery of dull gold and tan silk. Our enthusiastic admiration is given over to the exquisite little peach blossom pan velvet hat for semi-sports wear.

And Dame Fashion has issued a proclamation that the various shades of copper shall be "the thing" in hats for fall wear. Some very smart hats in those shades are on display at Madame Lemaud's shop, as well as a variety of other becoming models. We have already said that the Lemaud shop is especially kind to the matron, and that is again brought to our mind by the charming display of matron's fall hats. Of course, the jeune fille is considered also, and there are attractive hats for her as well, but primarily it is the matron who must be pleased.

Their little gift novelties and toys are attracting the admiration of many North Shore people.

At Cammeyer's the beaded sandals in bronze and black, so difficult to find this season, are being received á bras ouverts. These come in four-strap as well as the ten-strap styles. The smart walking oxfords are also claiming their share of admiration.

BREEZE FASHION SUGGESTIONS

Delightful and inevitable is the lace dinner gown of large dotted net over a pink slip in pastel tones.

There is always a warm corner in the heart of every lover of jewels, for jade. This season it is finding especial favor, and we are greatly delighted with the wonderful display of jade jewelry at Hodgson, Kennard's. Lingering over each lovely piece, we are fascinated by their rich deep shade, for the Oriental yellow on which they are displayed in the show cases brings out their fine color to best advantage. The necklaces are enchantingly beautiful, while the carved and pierced ornaments are exquisite works of art. There is an allure about the antique carvings on teak wood stands, for cabinet pieces, which visitors to this attractive shop are finding irresistible.

Superbly handsome is the 50-inch guard chain at Dreicer's, in which diamonds flash their gleaming demand for admiration from bezel settings. The chain consists of 194 58-k diamonds. We are properly grateful to the lovely pearl necklace displayed in one of the windows, which coaxed us in. The necklace is of beautifully graduated fine pink pearls. In the other window there is a fascinating bracelet of emeralds and diamonds, which are exquisitely mounted, forming a unique design.

Heading our shopping list for next week is a visit to L. P. Hollander's, who are having their first showing of the new French things—wraps, gowns and suits—for fall and winter wear. The opening will be held on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week.

Children's week at the Grande Maison de Blanc is another thing of importance on our shopping list for the coming week. North Shore folk look forward to the opening of fall and winter apparel for the little tots, held each year in this lovely little "French Shop for American Children."

WITH OPAL WHITELEY AND HER NATURE CLASS

Lillian McCann Gives Impressions of a Visit to Class Conducted by This Wonderful Young Woman

OPAL WHITELEY and Blackbird, Rose, Water-Lily, Pansy, Bluebird, Violet, Bobolink, Song-Sparrow, Oriole, Hummingbird and others met for their weekly nature class Wednesday afternoon at "Long Hill," the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ellery Sedgwick in North Beverly, near Wenham Neck

About a dozen little children are having a series of ten lessons this summer with Miss Whiteley, the writer, whose journal began in the March number of the Atlantic Monthly. This wonderful journal, written when she was a mere child beginning at the age of six, is soon to appear in book form complete, only sketches from it having appeared in the Atlantic

Miss Whiteley's pupils take class names, choosing the name of some bird or flower. When she addresses them she calls them by these names, for instance, "Song-Sparrow, why does a bunny have such long hind legs and long ears?"

Little Charlie Sturgis is Song-Sparrow.

Each child came to the class with a big black loose-leaf note book. Some brought specimens of animal life they had discovered during the week. Miss Whiteley brought the prize of all. Breathlessly the class gathered around her while she untied the string on a long pasteboard box into which she had made air holes for its inmate. On opening it she exclaimed, "It's gone! It's gone!" Nothing was in the box but grass. The fine big hoptoad that she and Lee and Marian McKean, two little newcomers to the class, had so carefully brought from the home of the little girls had, somehow, raised the lid of the box and escaped and must have been riding back home with the chauffeur at the moment Miss Whiteley thought she would surprise her class with him.

Distribution of pictures of animals fitting in with the day's lesson was then in order. These were pasted in the note books. A spirited review of the previous lesson with a few points touching on lessons previous to that was followed by announcing the subject of the day, mammals being the new division taken up. A definition was given and then developed by questioning and general talk with the class. Miss Whiteley had them repeat the sentence, "A mammal is an animal that nurses from its mother," several times. They thought of many such animials. Bobolink and Song-Sparrow, being first to mention calves, lambs, horses, etc.

Then came the one mammal in particular for the lesson -the wild rabbit. It was easy to pass from the picture to the life of this little mammal, because nearly every child had a pet rabbit to tell of.

Miss Whiteley gave them a little rhyme, not original, but one she selected as typical.

"The bunnies are a feeble folk Whose weakness is their strength. To shun a gun, a bun will run To almost any length."

In note books were written these questions:

- How does the color of bunny's coat help him?
- How does bunny clean his feet? How does bunny clean his face?
- How does bunny clean his ear?
- 5. Why does bunny have such long hind legs and long
 - What does bunny like to eat in summertime?
- What does bunny feed on when very cold days are
 - 8. Bunny's ears.
 - (a) What is the meaning when one ear is forward and one backward?

(b) When bunny's ears are standing straight up?

(c) When bunny is running or resting, what posi-

9. Have you watched a bunny taking in a stem of grass?

10. What do friendly bunnies do when they meet?11. What kind of a home does the rabbit make for baby rabbits? (a) How does she make it warm for baby rabbits?

(b) What does she do when she leaves them for a little time?

(c) Can baby rabbits see when just born?

(d) How old are they before they can run well? 12. How are bunny's feet protected that they may not freeze in snow? 13. When a bunny wants to make a sound of defiance how does it make it?

14. When in great danger, how does a bunny protect itself?

15. Who are some of bunny's enemies?

And Miss Whiteley drew out correct answers to every one of these questions which the older children wrote in their books and the little ones listened to while helping out in the discussion.

Perhaps (a) under 8 is typical of Miss Whiteley's observation in every detail. She said she had asked a scientist if her answer was right and he had said it probably was the correct one. She thinks when a rabbit is listening with one ear pointed forward and one backward, it is trying to locate the sound.

A little story of when Miss Whiteley was a little girl was thrown in now and then. Moles were mentioned by someone who thought perhaps one could be brought to class. She told of trying to dig one up when she wanted to take one to school, how her finger was bitten because the little mole down in the hole thought she was an enemy coming after him.

An interesting point was brought out about bats being mammals. She told the children that twin bats are born every August; that the mother bat holds her babies, one under each wing, and nurses them and flies around with them wrapped carefully in her wings. She told of her own pet bats of her childhood days, and how she had seen them doing it with their babies. For the minute it seemed as if we were reading a page in the Atlantic so much did it sound like the little Opal's journal.

After the lesson, held in the Sedgwick living-room owing to the dampness of the grass, a short walk was taken up the hill while the children talked informally of what they had seen in the bird or flower line at home or on their walk. Some had noticed birds of peculiar color and Miss Whiteley had to decide off-hand just what that particular bird might Points were given to the children for their note books which seemed of general interest and show with what thoroughness Miss Whiteley prepares for her work and how she leads her pupils to observe. In watching mammals they must notice the size, shape of nose, the mouth, eyes, ears, tail, legs, feet, clothes, how they live, where, their homes when their children come, how they care for the young, and what they eat.

Surely Miss Whiteley ought to make sets of books for children's nature classes all over the country! Her system of classifying from the animal kingdom down to the minor groups was admirably grasped by the little folk, and, with Miss Whiteley's outlines and suggestions in the plant, animal and mineral kingdoms it seems that other little folk who cannot come under her personal enthusiasm could get much of it, however, from little text books that Miss Whiteley might prepare.

Verily when we looked at this vivacious little brunette girl, Miss Whiteley seems like such a child herself with marks of strong leadership and determination about her, we thought here is a little girl from God's beautiful land of nature that ought to tell all the teachers and little folk of the country her way of studying nature.

Such pretty books as the children are making! There are the written notes Miss Whiteley gives to each to insert in the books; their own notes and jottings; their pictures and the ones they color, all making a neat appearance and an attractive collection of flower and animal pictures and lessons.

In Margaret Cummings' book we noticed on one page: "We must be sure to ask if we are thoughtful: What? When? Why? How? Where?" These are the points brought out by Opal Whiteley's own mother, and they are the ones which the little girl treasured all her life and which have brought her the wonderful knowledge and success she has in teaching and writing on nature subjects.

NEW pictures are being added to the Henry Havelock Pierce gallery of celebrities in Manchester.

Among those seen is a fine portrait of Admiral Bowles in black and white. In contrast is one of Admiral Bell, of Civil war fame, taken from an old daguerreotype, in which the hero is represented in uniform.

Mrs. Edward De Morey, of Detroit, is one of the numerous pretty women in various attitudes of busy idleness. One gets a very real impression of the fashions of the passing hour by studying the pictures in the exhibition.

Mrs. William Livingood, of Minneapolis, is shown in a dainty wrap looking like one of Angelica Kauffman's famous beauties.

The two children of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Chapman, of Detroit, with their magic charm and bright buoyancy of happy childhood, suggests an engraving by Bartolozzi.

Mrs. Rob't Rumsey, of New York, is seen in a charming portrait attractively pictured with the artistic sense of nature and actuality.

Young Wetmore Warren, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Warren, of Detroit, is seen in soft tints and delicate character suggesting a Van Dyke.

Mrs. W. S. Garnett, of Washington, descending the stair in wedding array supreme in all feminine attractiveness, is a pleasing portrait.

Mrs. John Newberry and child are very delightful in charm and quality.

One very interesting picture is that of Theodore Roosevelt and General Leonard Wood at Plattsburg in the first training camp. They are in earnest conversation so characteristic of both.

Bishop Ireland, of St. Paul, Minn., shows an exceedingly strong personality.

John Duncan, Nehemiah Beach and Edgar Allen Poe are wonderful copies of old daguerreotypes which look like steel engravings.

The master of old-time photography, M. Brady, of New York, made a picture of Abraham Lincoln and some army officers at Antietam. This picture is seen reproduced in a marvelous way.

Mr. Pierce is a pioneer with the courage of his imagination and invention, cultivating in the popular mnd a new sense of human interest and winning favor for this art.

AFTERGLOW

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

WATCH her after setting sun,
Gently steal across the sky,
Dancing, dancing, veils all falling,
Leaving tints where'er they lie;
Thus, she pauses near the cloud drifts
Where the darker shadows run—
Purple streams through wooded dell;
And brighter still her raiment seems,
Till off again—just for a moment resting—
Her dancing tells a story well
To him, who thinks and dreams
And sings in sweetest verse—

She hears and in her moments jesting, Softly she will fall to earth.
Ah, space is open wide to her—
This fairy dancer of the eve!
I watch the picture as she dances—
Watch the kisses she would leave
Upon the wooded hill where stir
The winds that weirdly harp a song
Through countless pine boughs sweet,

All while she circles, prances, Dances, dances, leaving shadows 'long—I watch her, with her noiseless feet!

She whirls into the meadow still Where crickets feel her presence nigh; They sprightly chirp in orchestra And gaily all the rushes fill—An atmosphere of festal night, While happy sits the firefly Illumining countless spears of grass Flashing out his lantern's light.

Welcome, fairy queen of night! Welcome o'er the tired world! Shades of color softly blending, Circle 'round us with thy love! In thy beauty God is sending Soft a blanket—fair unfurled For the tired soul below—Welcome, Fairy Afterglow!

RENEWED INTEREST IN YACHTING

Small Boat Racing Coming Back Into Its Own Again, says Expert

> By George S. Hudson In Boston Sunday Herald

THE midsummer series which drew to a close Saturday at Marblehead demonstrated that small boat racing is coming back in a gratifying manner after a period when many things conspired against the sport. About as many boats as in former seasons crossed the starting line for each event and enthusiasm reminded one of days when the boys would rather sail than eat.

Yachting is a real North Shore Sport—the real life

The Eastern Yacht club proved its interest in affairs of the Y. R. U. of M. by giving two regattas in which union classes were provided for and the Boston Yacht club came to the fore with a regatta that included about every type of craft enrolled in recognized organizations between Manomet and the Londoner.

Judging from persistent comment among skippers and crews this is to be the last season, for a time at least, when prizes will consist of medals and bunting—a war measure decided upon by the executive committee of the union at a time when clubs were in poor financial condition with membeship severely reduced by the call to arms. So far as can be ascertained, the 20 or more clubs affiliated with the union now stand ready to offer cash prizes for next year, and it is time that the step was taken, too.

Prizes need not be large, but they should be uniform; say, $8 for first, $5 for second, $3 for third. It isn't so much the size as it is the fact of standing to win something that will help keep a boat in commission and in racing trim. A suit of sails has advanced $100 in price for boats of moderate size, storage charges have jumped one-third, and material such as cordage and paint costs 100 per cent more than before the war.

Not many years ago a successful boat could win enough cash to meet running expenses, but that is not possible now even with much larger prizes than customary. Members of the executive committee of the union agree that yachting will be benefited by cash prizes and regatta committees also express themselves as of the same mind. Clubs happily are gaining in membership and resources. Next year, no doubt, will make it easily possible for individual clubs to appropriate a sum sufficient for cash prizes on occasion of open regattas.

If a man take no thought about what is distant, he will find sorrow near at hand.—Confucius.

THE accompanying picture shows the "Rogue," formerly owned by Charles E. Adams, of the Corinthian Yacht club, with its new Marconi rig. The picture was taken in Manchester harbor just after the boat had been changed over at Calderwood's. In fact, the "Rogue" is well known in local waters, as she was built at Calderwood's, in Manchester, in 1917, for Mr. Adams, from designs of John G. Alden. In her three years' racing at Marblehead she stood at the head of her class. Early this year she was sold by Mr. Adams to a syndicate of Indian Harbor yachtsmen, headed by Richard D. Monks. She was brought to Manchester some weeks ago and re-rigged from plans of Mr. Alden.

Some men are born great, some have greatness thrust upon them, and—some live in Ohio.

HAVE THE AMERICAN PEOPLE been taught a great principle during the war,—the great art and pleasure of giving? Up to the war period the philanthropic enterprises of the land suffered because of the inertia of the great mass of people, who while content to reap the gains which a community yielded, had not had the new vision of personal responsibility to the community from which the wealth had been gathered. Then came the war, with the great campaigns for saving and giving. The savings campaigns were incomparable in their success to the giving campaigns. People who had never given money away for worthy objects learned for the first time the pleasure that new interests gave and the joy there was in being aligned with a great cause and the spirit of happiness linked, in the task of seeing before death, how funds could be spent for the good of communities. In the past the charitable industries and enterprises have been supported by a group of high-minded and far-seeing men and women. They learned the joy of sharing while they lived and of seeing their money at work. The war came and a host of people who had never been converted by the new spirit of benevolence discovered a new pleasure in life. The campaigns show it all. Where does the money come from? Whether it be a church request, a college drive, a community hospital campaign, a Y. M. C. A. forward movement or a concerted community movement for some great charitable work,—the money is forthcoming! The reason is not difficult to discover. People have learned the new values of money. They know what it means to give, to gain; and to hold, to lose. The public realizes that everyone owes a debt to maintain the works of practical philanthropy and take pleasure in transferring war enthusiasm to the works of mercy of the peace days. The drives have come to stay, because people wish to give generously and simultaneously.

GOOD ROADS AND WELL CARED for automobile highways are an asset to any town or city. It is a shrewd municipal board that takes pride in caring for the thoroughfares of their municipality.

THE PRESENT INCUMBENT of the office of state treasurer has again shown his inability for the position of trust which he holds and which he aspires to win again. first election was not fairly won, for the voters believed that they were voting for his predecessor, who had a similar name. The state treasurer is not accused of dishonesty, but of indiscretion in the work of his department. The criticisms which were made of his conduct of an advertising agency in addition to his holding the office of state treasurer were caustic enough in view of the fact that his position placed him in such a relation to his prospective customers that he could favor them if he chose and there was an impulse created to call for his assistance as a publicity agent that speaks but poorly of the ethical instincts of the operator. criticisms were justified long before the closing of the Hanover Trust Company, which has been involved in the downfall of a Boston financial operator. The fate of this company and the fact that state funds had been placed there by the present state treasurer and that the state treasurer has been the publicity agent for the bank does not please the people of Massachusetts. The relationship subjects a man to unfair criticism. The high office of state treasurer is a trust which is reposed in him, and every effort should be made to avoid the appearance of evil. The present state treasurer should have severed his connections with any publicity company seeking bank advertising, or resigned his office. He should not have subjected himself to personal criticism because of his ethical indiscretion and should not have subjected the office of the state treasury to reproach. There are two opponents to the nominee at the coming primaries and his defeat will be directly due to his own misjudgment. The governor has acted wisely and justly in the ban he has placed upon such operations.

THE ERA OF HIGH PRICES is passing. Reports are coming from all over the nation, which indicate that in the sales of manufacturing articles there has been a distinct reduction in the prices. These reductions, however, will not affect the retail seller and purchasers for some months. The reports show in what direction the market is moving. Nearly two years have passed since the signing of the armistice and every opportunity has been afforded manufacturing enterprises to increase production. The indications now are that there is a surplus in many lines. The manufacturers of woolen cloth have stopped production and their workers in the mills have been laid off, for an indefinite period. In the tire industry there are thousands of workmen taking enforced vacations and new tires are placed on the market as "blemished" tires to turn the production of the industry into cash. The shoe industry also has been affected and in order to make sales, manufacturers have been obliged to organize retail sales departments in large centres to move goods on hand. The report is now current that there is no longer a shortage of gasoline or oil and that many of the wells have been closed with cement fillers. It is said that gasoline may be on sale for from ten to fourteen cents per gallon. Goods of other descriptions are being sold at slight reductions. The reductions are not large, but these show the way in which the wind is blowing. Sugar is getting ready for a fall. The consumers have waited patiently and with dogged persistance have maintained an unorganized boycott upon high prices by secret determinations to buy as carefully as possible. The accumulated effect of this spirit has been felt at last. The days of the extreme prices have passed, and while the low prices of other years will never return again, the level of prices in the future will be lower.

THE WARM DAYS and generous showers warmed the cockles of the gardener's heart.

THE PONZI BUBBLE has burst, another get-rich-quick scheme has proven to be a fraud, and the initiator of the plan awaits the decision of the court of justice. The success which attends the questionable "investments" that are promoted by skilful operators is significant. One reason why they have had such a large number of prospective customers is the number of Liberty Bond holders. The Liberty Bond campaigns compelled a great many people to systematically pay for bonds, and when the war was over there were not many people who did not own bonds. The price of the bonds began to drop, the interest returns were not large, and the operator had his opportunity, for these bond holders became a field of operation. Ponzi operated on the straight interest return plan, but others sought investors in mines for copper and wells for oil. Deliberate efforts were made to exchange Liberty Bonds for the speculative issues. Whereas in the old days funds were unavailable or stored in a savings bank, the operation of obtaining funds was not a simple one, but under the new conditions a skilful salesman planned for cash or Liberty Bonds and the bonds were usually forthcoming. The large incomes being received by workmen who had funds with which to speculate added another reason and so the past year has seen more such wild cat operators than has been known in the New England district, at least, within the decade. It only illustrates the susceptibility of the public to schemes that enrich no one but the operators. The significant lesson is that investors should seek safety first and leave speculation to keen-minded men who have given up their own time to watch their investment and to give ability to make the investment pay. There are daring investments that sometimes yield rich rewards, but the average man with limited income will be far better off by investing in cooperative or savings banks.

The Returning Soldiers in caskets of oak tell the war story tragically.

THE COMMITTEE IN CHARGE of the campaign which has been inaugurated to increase the fund of the Beverly hospital has decided upon the dates for soliciting subscriptions. On Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 6th, the work will be begun and men who have been organized into teams will begin their personal calls upon the people in the North Shore The decision of the campaign directors has been made and the solicitors will receive pledges for future payments. The pledge plan is an excellent one and should bring to the hospital not only a large sum of money at this time, but a list of regular contributors who may be counted upon permanently to assist in the financial support of the institution. The hospital serves a wide field efficiently and should receive funds from along the entire shore from Ipswich to Gloucester and from Gloucester to Salem. The immediate field of the hospital is Beverly, Manchester, Hamilton and Wenham, and these places which have received so much benefit from the hospital will not be backward in the support of the campaign to raise funds for its continuance. The higher prices have severely affected institutions, and the income from invested funds does not have the purchasing value that it once had. The hospital is growing; the last report stated that every bed was in use and a waiting list had been established to accommodate those who are seeking hospital treatment. The alacrity with which the men of Beverly and the towns in the neighboring district are responding to the call for service indicates the spirit of good will which the hospital enjoys. The requests for funds will be made only two weeks hence. So the contributors to benevolent funds have the coming days to plan their philanthropic budget for the coming year to include the Beverly hospital. Everyone, rich and poor, should plan to give generously to the institution that stands ready to serve day and night.

There Have Been Reforms in the management of fire departments in Massachusetts that have proven a great benefit to the city or town adopting them. The North Shore within the last fifteen years has been taught by the serious fires in Chelsea and in Salem, of the possibilities of a serious conflagration at any time. It is a primary need of every city and town to have a fire department that is efficiently organized, carefully manned and available for service when needed. One of the most effective reforms of recent years is the establishment of the two-platoon system. Originally introduced to promote efficiency, it has proven to be a benefit not alone to communities, but has given the firemen a square deal. Too many hours of service are demanded of the men. It is unreasonable and unfair to rob any man of his leisure or deprive any home of the presence of the bread-winner for so many consecutive days. If the two-platoon system did not present the plan for relieving the loyal men in service at the fire stations along the North Shore, some other plan should be devised to correct this gross evil. Fortunately the two-platoon system promotes the efficiency of the departments and corrects an evil labor condition that should have been changed many years ago. Last November thirty-two cities adopted the two-platoon system and it went into effect on Monday, Feb. 2, and is proving a success wherever tried. In this section—in Lynn, Salem and Peabody—the plan was adopted with great salisfaction to the city authorities, the citizens and the fire departments. Beverly will undoubtedly adopt the plan in the coming election. By the new two-platoon system the uncertainties of the volunteer service are eliminated, justice is done the men on duty, and a more efficient department is afforded the cities and towns of the district.

RAIN IN AUGUST will be reflected in lower prices in October.

THE COMPOUNDING OF INTEREST in a savings bank has always been a surprising factor in the accumulation of money, which has been deposited. Bankbooks have been shown, indicating the advantages of compounding of inter-The discussion of the increases of accounts due to compound interest drew a letter from a North Shore resident who owns a book, numbered eleven, on a Lynn institution for savings. The number of the book indicates that it was one of the first issued by that organization. The deposit was made on Jan. 16, 1828. The grandfather of the owner of the book deposited $2.00 to the credit of his son, the father of the present owner, as a birthday present upon his fourth birthday. The bankbook had never been cancelled and passed from the father to the son. There have been no withdrawals from the account. No additions have been made, so that the original $2.00 have been accumulating interest, compounded semi-annually until on May 15. 1919, there was then a credit of $125.55. The principal had increased at that date to nearly sixty-two times the original amount. The proportion of gain will probably be more striking if, for instance, the deposit had been $2,000: for at the same rate there would be a credit, if such an amount had been receivable and the increased deposits were allowable by law to remain, of $125,550. No more striking illustration of the increase of money, when deposited in a savings bank, has come to the notice of the public. It illustrates the steady increases of small interest payments. The savings banks still remain the safest and most reliable method of banking small accounts.

THE YOUNG MEN OF THE NATIONS are gathered in Antwerp in a friendly trial of their athletic abilities. Athletes are contending for prizes for supremacy in amateur sports, and the friendly rivalry aroused is one of the good signs of the hour. What a marked difference there is in these friendly encounters to the trial of arms in mortal conflict of two years ago? Then, the youths of the nations were being coralled in camps, drilled and trained in the requirements of military science, and prepared for the battle to the death. Peace has come and the Olympic contests now on are evidences of the new era of friendly striving for athletic supremacy. The American team is contending well in the events and undoubtedly will acquit itself well. even if it does not carry off the great prize; the spirit of good will in such a contest is truly the great prize. If the American team does its work there, loyally, and in keeping with the highest ethical principles of good sportsmanship. America will be well pleased. To have contended fairly and with a good spirit and to have failed gloriously, will win the praise of Americans for the American team. If America wins fairly and honorably, and her athletic princes bring home the coveted prizes with honor, there will be rejoicing, not alone for the honors won, but the honor shown in winning. The Olympic contests will do more than develop a spirit of athletic ambition in the young men of the nations; they will develop ethical principles. Men must contend according to the true laws of life and honor. The rules of the contest must result in promoting a spirit of good will among the youths of the many nations. Anything that makes for honor, peace and friendship appeals to the American people. The Olympic contests are worth while.

Breezy Briefs

- This is the season for the vegetarians. Plenty of lettuce, cucumbers squashes, corn, string beans, shell beans, onions, beets and tomatoes for those who can afford to pay the prices or who have vegetables growing in their gardens.
- Massachusetts now has 200,000 pleasure automobiles and 45,000 trucks, a total of 50,000 more automobiles than were registered a year ago at this time. With the number of cars increasing from year to year it is not surprising that the cost for highway maintenance is also increasing.
- The Secretary of Agriculture advises young men to be farmers. The telephone, the R. F. D., electric lights and modern labor-saving machinery have all helped to make the farmer's life much easier than it was in the past few decades.
- The shoe repairing business has received an added impetus due to the high prices charged for new shoes. Many of the shops are located in basements or unattractive alleys, but the time is coming when we will hear of shoe-repairing "parlors."
- Is prohibition responsible for the absence this summer of the usual "sea serpent" stories? It used to be that the summer season was not complete without one or two visits from this curio.
- The 21st annual Old Home Week observance in New Hampshire begins tomorrow. This unique event, founded by the late Gov. Frank W. Rollins of the Granite State, has become an annual affair which is much looked forward to by many people, especially former residents.

- Wilmington has the unenviable reputation of the highest tax rate so far announced in Massachusetts. This year's rate of $35.10 is an increase of $10.50 over last year.
- "Babe" Ruth continues his mighty onslaught against the ball, piling up home run after home run. As a financial asset he is most valuable to the team which paid such a high price last spring to purchase his services.
- Ponzi and many thousands of his depositors have discovered again the truth of the remark that "robbing Peter to pay Paul" is unprofitable.
- In order that his employees may benefit by their faithfulness, the will of the late W. A. Burbank, of Worcester, has provided that they be given an opportunity of purchasing the business. The testator made liberal terms for the payment.
- During the next few years the railroads of our country will be on trial as never before. On the people will be laid the burden of heavy increases in freight and passenger rates, and the people expect the railroads to furnish service of a quality which has thus far never been rendered.
- From Connecticut comes the report that cabbages are growing nicely, thus making sure a plentiful sup-ply of "Havanas."
- Trying to get something for nothing has landed many men in jail. The paths to opulence do not always lead to ease and comfort.
- To prevent auto trucks from carrying too heavy loads, it is said that in Pennsylvania there are inspectors on the state roads who weigh every truck. If a truck is found loaded with over the limited tonnage which the state law allows, the owner is heavily fined.

It Is Not Always Easy

- To apologize,
- To begin over, To admit error,
- To be unselfish,
- To take advice
- To be charitable,
- To be considerate,
- To keep on trying, To think and then act, To profit by mistakes,
- To forgive and forget,
 To shoulder a deserved blame,
- BUT IT ALWAYS PAYS.
- - -Doherty News.
- And now another motion picture actress is suing for divorce. Her press agent is probably determined to have publicity at any price.
- Careless motorists and speeders should be warned that since prohibition there is lots of room in the county and state jails.
- Railroad rates are scheduled to advance next Thursday. Do your traveling early.
- In Maine last week the ceremony of christening a schooner was performed with roses. The sound of breaking glass was missing.
- Do not blame the coal man next winter if he is unable to fill your orders. Now is the time to have that bin filled with the sparkling black
- We presume that thousands of campaign orators are improving these "dog days" by preparing their speeches which will soon be launched against a long-suffering public.
- Auto accidents, canoe fatalities, drownings, and occasionally an airplane catastrophe, all tell the story of pleasure-seekers who pay but little attention to caution.
- A young Greek, one of Ponzi's noteholders, expressed the idea that he hoped "no one will get a cent back. It'll teach us a lesson not to be easy marks again," he declared.
- A substantial gain in the beet sugar output of the United States just announced, will doubtless prove a help in relieving the shortage.
- Cheaper gasoline is prophesized, perhaps a drop in price to 10c or 15c a gallon,—but no date is set by the authorities who advance this opinion!

Golden Thoughts

The face of a friend, how it shines in the darkness
That often assails us; how preciously near
It seems, when the trial of long, long denial
Has made the sweetest blessings unspeakably dear!
The heart is consoled, and is lonely no longer,
Its terrors and tremors are all at an end,
And the way that was dreary becomes bright and cheery,
Illumined at once by the face of a friend.

Mrs. Lewis Morgan was called to Gloucester the first of last week by the serious illness of her mother.

Miss Dorothy Blaisdell returned home last Saturday from a several weeks' visit at Kearsarge, N. H.

Miss Alice Hoare is on from Washington, D. C., on a vacation visit, until after Labor Day. Miss Hoare has an office position in the War Department.

Miss Hattie Edgar, who is on from Washington for her annual 30-day vacation, left Saturday accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Charlotte Brown, for New Ipswich, N. H., where they will stay until August 25.

Mrs. Walter Fleming and children, of Worcester, are spending the week with Mrs. Fleming's mother, Mrs. Ella Standley, Norwood ave. Mr. Fleming came on with them last Sunday, but returned to Worcester Monday.

Abbott Foster is spending the week at Northfield attending the convention of the Mass. Christian Endeavor. Mr. Foster is chairman of the General Recreation committee.

That the completion of the tennis court at the Playground has been much appreciated by the young people is readily testified to by the almost constant use of the courts since they were put in readiness for play.

Another Auto Accident at Crafts Hill, Manchester

A Buick runabout driven by a Gloucester man, while rounding the curve at the top of Crafts hill last Sunday afternoon, came to grief when the driver failed to make the turn. The machine crashed into the electric light pole which has figured in several previous accidents. The car turned bottom up, throwing the driver clear of the wreckage and fortunately he escaped with nothing worse than a severe shaking up and a bad cut over one eye. The electric light pole, which was broken off, has been replaced this week by a new one.

It has been suggested that possibly a bumper, similar in construction to those used in freight yards, if placed in front of the electric light pole at this point might in a measure protect it from reckless autoists when rounding this curve.

LIBRARY NOTES

New Books in Manchester Public Library

Books of travel appeal to many readers. Among the new books are three finely illustrated volumes that will make attractive reading: "Bulgaria," by Frank Fox, is a volume of some two hundred pages with 32 full-page illustrations in color. The author joined the Bulgarian army in 1912 as a war correspondent for the London Morning Post. The headings of some of the chapters are "The Scrap Heap of Races," "Bulgaria—A Power and a Turkish Province," "The War of 1912-1913," "Incidents of Bulgarian Character," "How Bulgaria is Governed" and "The Future of Bulgaria."

"Austria-Hungary," by G. E. Mitton, is brought out by the same firm that published "Bulgaria,"—A. &. C. Black, of London. It has over 30 illustrations and gives much information about the "Dual Monarchy."

"Tramps Through Tyrol, Life, Sport and Legend," by Frederick Wolcott Stoddard. In this book the beautiful and awe-inspiring scenery is well described. Not the least interesting part of the work is the story of the legends associated with this mountainous region.

One of the new novels is "The Young Physician," by Francis Brett Young, author of "Marching Through Tanga," a South African episode of the great war. It is a real good character study.

"Children of the Mist" is a volume of short stories portraying the negro character.

All the youngsters will enjoy "Gus Harvey, the Boy Skipper of Cape Ann," by Capt. Charlton Smith. This is the story of the sailing vessel before

MANCHESTER MEETS DEFEAT, 5 TO 1, IN LAST SATURDAY'S GAME

The Charlestown Navy Yard baseball team defeated Manchester last Saturday afternoon on the Brook st. playgrounds, Manchester, by the score of 5 to 1.

The visitors played with snap and pep, doing some sensational fielding stunts. Hits were rather few on both sides, Charlestown securing 6 and Manchester 7.

Lothrop pitched a fine game for Manchester, fanning 12 of the opposing batsmen. His support was somewhat ragged, although this fact did not prevent the game from being a fairly interesting one to the spectators. Harrison and Needham, of Manchester, slammed out a two-bagger apiece. The former's hit assisted in putting across Manchester's lone tally. In four times at bat, Spiller, of Manchester, made three hits.

King, left fielder for Charlestown, made some exceptionally fine catches. Abbott played a good game at first and Itso, at third, also showed up well.

Marblehead Boys Visited Man-CHESTER YESTERDAY

Forty-two of the Marblehead boys under the leadership of Walter Curtis, playground instructor in that town, were the guests in Manchester yesterday of Instructor Coffin and his classes of boys. The visitors arrived in the morning by boat and after a good swim enjoyed lunches which they brought with them. Caretaker Patrick Kelliher cared for the boys while they were at the beach.

In the afternoon Marblehead won the baseball game, 12 to 11. Manchester was ahead 8 to 1 until the 7th, but failed to secure the victory. Woods and Graves were the Marblehead battery, R. Smith and Gillis for Manchester. Taylor, Needham and Levoy were the umpires.

Women's Club Notes

The "Japanese Garden Party" was a success! Everybody says so! The hall was prettily decorated with wisteria colored crepe paper and green branches. Wisteria blossoms, butterflies and blue birds made a natural garden setting, while two wonderful umbrellas, loaned by Mrs. Bill, gave a "Japanessy" effect. The party was held in the hall of the Men's clubhouse. The music by MacDuff's orchestra, of Boston, was "wonderful," as the young people said. Ice cream was served in the dining room at intermission. It was certainly a pleasant evening for all the club members to remember. The proceeds from this party will be used to pay for the new porch awnings purchased this spring.

Thursday will be whist night, and a week from Thursday will be another gala night for the club members. Through the kindness of a friend of the club the members are to have an "ice cream party."

The club membership now is 230.

MAYOR BROWN, OF GLOUCESTER, SEEKS COUNTY COMMISSIONER'S OFFICE

Charles D. Brown, mayor of Gloucester, is a candidate for the Republican nomination for county commissioner of Essex county, a vacancy now existing on the board.

Mr. Brown has served as city councilman, representative, senator, postmaster and mayor.

Mayor Brown feels that by experience and training he is well qualified to give the county of Essex, as a county commissioner, the high quality of service its people have the right to expect and demand of a public servant.

PORTER C. CROY, OF HAVERHILL, OUT FOR SHERIFF'S BERTH

In urging support of his candidacy for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Essex county, Porter C. Croy, of Haverhill, declares there is only one issue in the campaign,-experience and fitness for the position. Mr. Croy has been a deputy sheriff for the past 22 years and naturally is thoroughly familiar with the duties of the office.

The fact that he is the only candidate for sheriff from the northern part of the county, while there are five dividing the vote of this section, would indicate that there was some founda-tion for Deputy Croy's claim that he will secure the nomination. That c not deter him from seeking local s port, however, and he has inaugura an extensive campaign, besides mal frequent visits to the cities and to of southern Essex county.

The primaries will be held on T day, Sept. 7.

MOVEMENT IS STARTED IN FAVOR OF COAL YARD AT BEVERLY FARMS

Following the protests against the location of a coal yard off West st., at Beverly Farms, a movement has been started in that section in favor of the Describing the pocket and yard the engineers, who have made the plans, state that: "The proposed coaling plant at Beverly Farms for William Till consists of a small elevated enclosed pocket for hard coal, and the railroad company is to lay a sidetrack adjacent to this property, and opposite the coal pocket a covered concrete track hopper is to be constructed, this track hopper being entirely below the track level.

"The pocket is filled with coal by the following method. The hopper bottom cars are set over the track hopper and the coal allowed to run through the hopper bottom of the car into the track hopper and is fed onto a v-bucket elevator, elevated to the proper height and conveyed along the top of the pocket and chuted into the various bins of the pocket.

"The elevating and conveying machinery is equipped with double strand roller chain insuring a quiet operating rig, and this elevator and conveyor are tightly enclosed, practically eliminating the possibility of any noise escaping beyond the limits of the pocket.

"The fact that the machinery is enclosed and also that the pocket is an elevated pocket entirely enclosed and roofed over, eliminates any possibility of coal dust blowing away from the pocket.

"It is intended and the plans will show that the pocket as designed will not be architecturally unattractive, but will conform in appearance to the other structures in this location.

"The pocket will be compact and the plant will be fenced in. The screening of coal is done within the pocket and the loading of teams or trucks is made in driveways under the pocket, and this together with the fact that the plant is located along the railroad siding about 250 feet from the street, all makes for a project which will in no way be a menace to the health and welfare of the residents of this section.'

IMPROVEMENT SOCIETY OPPOSED TO COAL YARD AT BEVERLY FARMS

Members of the Beverly Farms branch of the Beverly Improvement society at a special meeting held last Friday afternoon at the public library hall at the Farms went on record as protesting the establishment of the proposed coal pocket and yard off West st., near the Boston and Maine railroad station. A committee was named to appear before the city council when the permit application came up for action and to protest against its being granted.

With the program of beautifying the section around the depot well under way there is a feeling that the erection of an "unsightly" building with the construction of a spur track and the consequent noise and dust will detract from the value of the residential property as well as add to the dangerous aspect of West st, which is much congested by traffic.

A project for widening West st. is being considered to eliminate the danger phase and the erection of the coal establishment would prevent safety regulations from being put into effect.

A committee consisting of Miss Katherine P. Loring, Mrs. Wm. C. Loring, Mrs. Walter H. Newton, Howard A. Doane and Frank I. Lamasney was appointed to appear before the city council representing the society in opposition to the granting of the permit.

McPherson yesterday Mayor morning had the flags on public buildings placed at half mast out of respect to the memory of the Farms soldier.

HILDREN'S AGRICULTURAL FAIR. — All the children, as well as grown-ups interested in children of Essex Counare invited to attend the annual demonstration of the San playgrounds children, Thursday, August 26 (or next ir day if Thursday is rainy), at Salem Common.

This annual affair is the most unique of its kind in the nited States, and each year over 30,000 people gather to a this old-time country fair entirely run by children. The ogram of the day begins with a parade from North st., with Essex, to the Common, where the pageantry passes review before the governor of the state and other promint guests. A circle one-fifth of a mile around encloses e area for the afternoon and evening events,—and around is circle is a comfortable grandstand for the spectators.

r Each of the eleven playgrounds sends a costumed oup of girls to compete for the first points, in dancing—being accompanied by the Salem Cadet band. The boys and groups for stunts, etc., and all groups rotate, repeating the performance so that everybody sees everything. This year the main feature of the parade is the tercentenary observance of the Pilgrims' landing. In the big exhibition tent may be seen the vegetable, fruit, flower, cooking, canning and industrial exhibits, while in the other enclosures may be seen the baby and doll shows.

Instead of the larger animals usually seen at a cattle show, the children exhibit their pets: Dogs, birds, goats, cats, etc., this being one of the biggest attractions of the day and seen only in the afternoon. All the preparation for this event is done in July and August, and the children are taught construction, dressmaking, knitting, lace making, cooking, canning, etc., besides the usual athletic work of the playground schedule.

General Edwards said last year, upon viewing the day's events: "Every child in the world should be here today." The admission is but ten cents, so all you grown-ups bring the "kiddies" and all you "kiddies" bring your grown-ups.

These young folk included Mrs. James Jackson Cabot (Catharine Rush, daughter of Com. Rush, of the Charlestown navy yard), Mrs. Thomas Dudley Cabot (Virginia Wellington), and Mrs. Ralph Bradley (Eleanor Cabot, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cabot).

The beautiful late summer flowers were used for decorations from the garden, an attractive feature of the place. Lowe's orchestra played from 4 to 7 for the dancing, which was much enjoyed in the large music room.

The pourers were Miss Linda Wellington, sister of Mrs. Thomas Cabot; Mrs. Maurice M. Osborne, Miss Ruth Yerxa, Miss Elizabeth DeBlois, Miss Lois Arnold, Miss Rosamond Johnson, Miss Nancy Carnegie, Miss Clarissa Curtis and Miss Eleanor Bremer.

Among those present were: Mrs. S. Parkman Blake, Miss Marian L. Blake, Mrs. Leverett Bradley and sons, Wm. Blake, Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, Mrs. Louise B. MONTSERRAT CLUB had the largest gallery of the week on Wednesday afternoon when tea was served by the club to its visiting friends, out to see the matches determining who should play in the finals of the ladies' handicap singles and the mixed doubles in the annual tennis tournament of Miss Frances Brainard and Mrs. Robt. Haydock, both even players, were up for the singles, while in the mixed doubles Miss Brainard with Robert W. Means versus Miss Ruth Yerxa with Theodore Frothingham played the finals, as decided Wednesday.

In the semi-final round of the ladies' singles the most wonderful match of the week was played Wednesday between Mrs. Robert Haydock and Mrs. A. A. Shurtleff, resulting in Mrs. Haydock's victory, 6-2, 2-6, 10-8.

Miss Frances Brainard, daughter of the Edward H. Brainards, of Pittsburgh, and niece of Mrs. W. Harry Brown, of Beverly Cove, is considered the star of the tournament. Miss Brainard is called an all-round player, possessing every point a player should have. Miss Brainard also won laurels at Palm Beach last winter. Mrs. Haydock is considered an aggressive player having strong merits.

The club room and snowy tea tables placed on the piazza were decorated with garden flowers. The Misses Jean and Emily Sears, Hope Iselin and Katherine Coolidge assisted in pouring and caring for the tables.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Putnam Chase, who have spent part of the summer at Camp Putnam, St. Huberts, N. Y., returned to Manchester this week for a short visit with their children before going on a trip through Nova Scotia. Their oldest son, Philip W., is enjoying life on a Maine farm this Russell A. Alger, one of Detroit's prominent citizens, is cruising in his boat, the "Elfay," a handsome yacht which lay off Manchester harbor over the week-end, while Mr. Alger visited his sister, Mrs. E. C. Chaney at the Oceanside, Magnolia. "Elfay" was one of the finest yachts noticed at the races at Marblehead a week or two ago.

About noon next Tuesday, the houseboat being built at Calderwood's boatyard in Manchester for Allison V. Armour, will be launched. The boat is the largest ever built in Manchester and much interest is being taken in its construction. The launching can be seen to best advantage from the park on Beach st., Manchester, and in the vicinity of the railroad station.

MYOPIA HUNT CLUB has sent over fifty ponies for the Dedham polo meet, beginning next Monday when the Bryn Mawr polo team and Dedham and Myopias will have a strenuous contest. The ponies of Albert C. Shaw, 2d, took his place. Other Myopia men supposed to play are Capt. Ernest Pentacost, T. P. Mandell, Jock Whitney, Russell Burrage, Frederick Ayer, H. P. McKean, Jr., Dudley P. GRACE' HORNE'S GALLERY, Magnolia. — Interest in the splendid exhibition of paintings, sculpture and etchings at Grace Horne's Gallery, in the Library hall, at Magnolia, still continues. Many unusual works have arrived in the last few weeks and there has been a re-hanging of the more significant of the older exhibits so that the exhibition is almost entirely new to those who saw it early in the season. Camelia Whitehurst's portrait of a boy is exciting great admiration. Hobart Nichols has a fine new harbor scene entitled "Early Moonlight," Martha Walter a wonderful "Pink Baby," A. T. Hibbard and George L. Noyes both some delightful Gloucester views. The etchers' section is said in itself to be the finest exhibition of the sort ever seen on the North Shore, the work of John Sloan attracting particular attention. The Gallery will remain open till about the fifteenth of September from ten to six daily and on Sundays from three to six.

This was one of the largest social events of the North Shore season and brought society from far and wide along the Shore. Lowe's orchestra played for the dancing. The great coach-house and court-yard of this beautiful place made an ideal setting for society's most exclusive gathering and the merriest frolic of the season. AFTER ALL-

There are no Pictures Like the Havelock Pierce Pictures. They are Different.

ALL North Shore visitors will want to see the exhibit of plastic photography brought to the summer studio of Henry Havelock Pierce, in Manchester. Mr. Pierce is well-known in North Shore homes, and his patrons and other visitors will be delighted to find portraits of international celebrities at his summer studio, where they may be viewed any day. Among those brought out from the Boston studio are dry-point portraits of Cardinal Gibbons, Cardinal Mercier and Col. Roosevelt. Mr. Pierce's work consists of dignified and painstaking portraits that will give you joy in the years to come.

North Shore patrons of Mr. Pierce know that solicitors and agents who pester folks over the telephone and make glowing promises of something for nothing are ones to beware of. It can't be done!

North Shore visitors should avail themselves of the opportunity of seeing the superlative prints at Havelock Pierce's Studio before leaving this vicinity

THE GARDNER LIGHT-FOUR

New England cities are just now having their first glimpse of a new low-priced motor car that has attracted much favorable attention in the west and in the south. It is the Gardner Light-Four built in St. Louis by Russell E. Gardner and his sons R. E., Jr. and Fred W., who formerly built and disributed the Chevrolet car in middle western territory before it was sold to the General Motors two years ago. Last year they repurchased the plant in St. Louis and last January began turning out the Gardner. Production has reached 1000 cars a month and the schedule for next year calls for 18,000 cars. During the winter and spring the Gardner was introduced in the west and the south.

The first car to come to New England arrived recently after a noteworthy run from the factory to Boston, making the trip in six days without any trouble more serious than a tack through one of the tires. The car averaged 26 miles an hour and made 18½ miles to the gallon of gasoline. This car is now being taken on a tour of the principal New England citles and the interest created in the west is being duplicated here. The Gardner has a four cylinder engine with $3\frac{1}{2}x$ 5 lnch cylinders, 112 lnch wheelbase and weighs 2200 pounds. It is built in touring car and roadster, sedan, coupe and commercial truck types and is designed to meet the market for a thoroughly substantial, comfortable riding motor car at a low price.

Boston capitalists are interested in the Gardner, the company having been financed by Hornblower & Weeks of Boston in association with Lorenzo E. Anderson & Co. of St. Louis. The capitalization is in 155,000 shares of no par value, of which 50,000 shares were recently offered to the public at $27 a share. According to officials of the company it will start dividends at $3 which means a yield on the investment of more than 11 per cent. more than 11 per cent. Shares are now being traded in.

The HOSPITAL at BEVERLY is our COMMUNITY HOSPITAL

Manchester, Beverly Farms, Pride's Crossing, Wenham and Hamilton

You are interested in this hospital Because——

- 21 It has superior facilities for treating the afflicted. The hospital is located on a hill-side in pleasant surroundings where the patients get the quietude which their sensitive condition demands. In certain kinds of illness, the hospital can provide the special, scientifically prepared diet which is essential to the sick person's recovery.
- You want the hospital to do the best work possible. Enlargement is imperative so that persons needing treatment will not be turned away.
- You are interested in the community and its advancement. Provision for the hospital has not increased in proportion to the growth in population or in proportion to the general expenses of living. Financial support of the public at large has not kept pace with the demands of the public for service. In the past, the generosity of a few has provided means for hospital care of the sick; there is needed now a broader and more general financial co-operation.

Mary E. Gladwin', first superintendent of the Beverly hospital, and a returned Red Cross war worker, gave an address Monday afternoon in the Unitarian parish house, in Beverly, on her work in Salonica, Greece, and other places. Miss Gladwin is visiting at the home of the Misses Loring at Pride's Crossing. She was introduced by Mayor McPherson, of Beverly. The platform was decorated with Red Cross flags. At the close of the address Miss Gladwin's medals were shown by Miss Louisa Loring. They came from Russia, Japan, Serbia and Switzerland. The Red Cross International league has given Miss Gladwin the Florence Nightingale medal, thus making her one of the six women in the United States so honored.

The house was well filled with interested friends happy to welcome Miss Gladwin back and anxious to hear the thrilling story she told so tenderly and delightfully.

Her remarks were prefaced with a few words about the wonderful growth of Beverly's hospital in recent years

Prompt Delivery in Beverly, North Beverly, Pride's and Beverly Farms and her desire to see the place prosper as it should in our community.

She then launched into a description of her work in Serbia. It was the old story of suffering and want and wounded men and shortage of nurses, doctors and everything we have heard so much of. But Miss Gladwin fired her audience with new zeal and the longing to help as before. Perhaps not since war days has such a talk been given upon the Shore.

"The Red Cross work is not done yet," she declared. "We must send blankets, and supplies as before. The principle of the Red Cross is the hope for the future; its divine compassion and brotherhood must encompass the world. Its principle is the biggest and grandest idea in the world today."

The ragged armies in western Russia and the starving children and prisoners in Poland and elsewhere were dwelt upon. She said they were not fighting for an ideal but to avoid destruction, and that we must help in supplies, less "disease and destruction come to us eventually from the chaos over there."

Very interestingly she told of the fire in Salonica which made 80,000 homeless. Her work there was as exciting as in a "movie." The opening of boxes from the American Red Cross was told in a way that all packers would have enjoyed hearing. The layettes made in this country for one baby often had to be divided and passed to others so great was the need. "So don't think you made too many," she said.

In speaking of the enemy she said she saw him only as a wounded man. Of war's wickedness and waste Miss Gladwin cannot express herself in any mild terms. She saw its bitterest degradations and the lowering of morale that naturally comes from intense privations.

Mrs. Edward B. Haven has gone from Jefferson, N. H., where she has been spending most of the summer, at the New Waumbek, to Jaffrey, N. H., to spend a few weeks at Shattuck Inn, before returning to Boston.

INDIAN SUMMER on the North Shore promises to be gloriously lovely. The crisp clear air and bright sunlight give an added zest to motoring and out-door sports. The dances at the Oceanside continue to be the center of gaiety on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. Last Saturday's dance was quite the best of the season.

Among those who entertained at dinner on Saturday night was Miss Edna Huling, who had as her guests Miss Emma Crane, Miss Hope Johnson, Miss Lysbeth Bunker, Miss Rosenfield, Robert Flack, B. Hammond Tracy, Jr., Mr. McLellan, Mr. Crane and Ambercrombie Miller.

Miss Huling wore a lovely gown of white taffeta with touches of silver embroidery as its only trimming.

Mrs. D. A. Upson, who was also among the dancers Saturday night, looked very charming in a gown of white chiffon, exquisitely embroidered in silver.

Mrs. Gordon Keiser was smartly gowned in black. Irridescent bugles in square designs on a net foundation formed the overskirt, while the bodice was banded with the bugles. An old blue girdle added a tasteful touch of color.

A very beautiful gown of French blue velvet was worn by Mrs. F. A. McMurray. The skilfully draped overskirt was caught up on the side with a small gold tassel. The gown was charmingly becoming.

Miss Mildred S. Haines, of Philadelphia, Pa., a season guest at the hotel, wore a pretty gown of black satin, with a flying side panel of black chiffon banded with satin. Cut jet beads added a smart finish.

Occupying apartments in the Sea Vista cottage, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Dorrance, of Philadelphia, Pa., are registered at the Oceanside for an indefinite stay. They are accompanied by Mrs. G. P. Kemper, of Cincinnati, Ohio.

MRS. T. A. CAWTHRA and her daughters, Genevieve and Elizabeth, of New York, returned to the Oceanside the latter part of last week, from a trip to the White Mountains. They were accompanied by Mrs. Joseph B. Dickson, who stopped here for a brief visit on her way to her home in New York. The Cawthras will remain at the hotel for the balance of the season.

MAGNOLIA

James L. Morgan, of Brookline, who is a season guest at the Oceanside, has as his guests for a 10-day visit Mr. and Mrs. Lancaster Morgan, of New York.

Major and Mrs. Sidney G. deKay (Helen McMurray) arrived at Magnolia last week from their home in New York. They will spend the balance of the season with Mrs. deKay's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. McMurray, who are in the Centre cottage, one of the Oceanside group.

Luncheon guests at the Oceanside on Thursday of last week were Mrs. Fletcher D. Proctor, of Proctor, Vt., and Miss Miriam E. Fosdick, of Fitchburg.

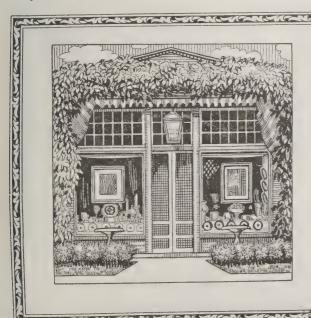

Newcomers to the Oceanside are Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Gaines. of Englewood, N. J., who plan to spend several weeks here.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chapman are paying their first visit to the Oceanside. They arrived from their home in Minneapolis, Minn., last week.

Two more North Shore enthusiasts were added to an already long list when Mr. and Mrs. John A. Ferguson, of Denver, Colo., registered at the Oceanside for a very brief stay. Unable to resist the Shore's allure they have decided to prolong their stay until the end of the season.

Theodore Cram, of New York, is paying a brief visit to the Oceanside, where he arrived last week.

Mrs. Jane G. Bennet, who is occupying apartments in the Oceanside Annex, has as her guests Mrs. Grant Fairbanks, of Haverhill; Miss Mabel Gellespie, of Pittsburgh, Pa., and Mrs. John J. Edson, Jr., of Sewickley, Pa.

HUNDREDS OF GOOD SUGGESTIONS

To perplexed members of prize committees, we can think of no better suggestion than a visit to our Magnolia shop; it is really a small edition of "THE GIFT SHOP OF FIFTH AVE.." for it contains lamps, Sheffield ware, china sets, table decorations, crystal, and hundreds of novelties, as unusual for their distinction as for their variety. And always, without exception, the same reasonable prices of our New York shop prevail.

Among the visitors to the Oceanside is Dr. Jas. J. King, of New York. He is the guest of Mrs. A. H. McLean and Mrs. V. P. Lawrence, who are occupying apartments in the East Flume cottage.

Last week's arrivals included Mrs. George G. Wood, Miss Jane Wood, Miss Marilla Wood, Mrs. V. Hart and Miss Wannamaker, of Pelham, N. Y., who are at the Oceanside for an indefinite visit.

"AT what time does the children's party begin anyway?" was the impatient demand made by a number of the children at the Oceanside, Magnolia, on Tuesday afternoon. The little tots knew from experience of other seasons that they would have a gloriously good time, and were eagerly watching the hands of the clock turn with exasperating slowness to the hour of 3.30. Promptly on the scheduled time the children fell into place for the grand march which was led by John Wheeler and Martha Palms. The line was made up of children from thirteen or fourteen down to the tiny little toddling tot who could scarcely keep up. After the march games were played and the children were divided into two groups, in order to keep the children of all ages interested.

They very much enjoyed the "favors," which being simple, were all the more fun, for most of them made a good healthy noise. To be able to make just as much noise as he pleases without the grown-ups exclaiming "hush!" is truly the seventh heaven of delight to any child. Wee little six-months-old Helen Harlow came to the party with her nurse, and though she did not stay long, she twinkled and smiled in friendly approval of the good time—soon she, too, will be taking an active part in the children's games. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Harlow, who are in the Wilkins cottage.

Little golden haired Ann Meyer, in a dainty frock of pink, was also at the party. She sat for the most part with her nurse, her serious blue eyes following the children as they romped about.

Alice Ellsworth, the small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Ellsworth, of South Bend, Ind., and Manchester Cove, entered into the fun with a zest. She had on a pretty little white frock, which had a narrow sash of blue. Her bright curls were bound with ribbon of the same shade.

Flora and "Buddy" (S. Livingston, Jr.) Mather were also actively interested in the games and general good time.

"Buddy," with a boy's true abandon, was ready for anything from sliding on the floor—which is great sport by the way—to dancing. His partner for the dances was Meriam Thropp, who looked very lovely in a frock of pink with bands of blue inserted in the skirt in pretty contrast. Meriam also had a good time, and was interested in anything and everything that meant fun for herself and the others. Her brother, Wilmer, was there, too, and had a very happy time

Other children who were at the party were: Everett and Justin Sholes, children of J. G. Sholes; John, Jefferson and Beatrice Corrique, Antonette Wick, Catherine Richardson, Dean Rucker, Barbara Rose, Martha and John Palms, Martha Brainard, Nancy and Joan Guggenheim, the three C. H. Wells children, three D. C. Shepard children, three D. H. Chatwell children, two E. Johnson children, two H. Roland children. There were about a hundred children in all and they made a very pretty picture as they romped and played about.

Miss Edna Root, of Detroit, was in charge of the party, and much credit is due her for the skilful way in which she kept the children interested. There was not a dull moment for even the tiniest child during the afternoon. Miss Root was assisted by Miss Helen Coates, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. W. J. Corrique, of Montreal, Canada.

One fact is better than one hundred analogies.

ALONG THE CAPE ANN AND GLOUCESTER SHORE

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

CAPE ANN.—One of the most important weeks of the season on Cape Ann is the present one. With hopes raised high for pleasant weather to crown festivities, the big Universalist 150th anniversary and convention is being held, with Stage Fort Park as headquarters, and many thousands of people from various sections of America and from abroad are attending. The pageant, which has been so widely advertised, will be held on Friday and Saturday evenings. Summer guests at the hotels and cottages along the North Shore will entertain friends who are coming to Gloucester on this important occasion.

The Gloucester District Nursing association is having its Gift Day on Thursday, Sept. 2. Any contributions of twenty-five cents or over will be thankfully received when the solicitors call. The association is doing a splendid work, bed-side nursing, which no other nurse except the private nurse gives; massage, pre-natal advice, maternity care, preventive work, which is most important. All this costs the District Nursing association $5 a day for each of the three nurses it employs. Fifty cents is the nominal and maximum charge, which does not cover the cost of the call. The association is not self-supporting, so it must depend on the generosity of the public to make it possible to keep the district nurse in our midst. Contributions from any of our summer residents will be gladly received. No demand is being made; the summer resident is given an opportunity to make his or her little contribution and all are reminded of the day-Sept. 2.

The open meeting of the Gloucester College Women's club proved most enjoyable and interesting on last Saturday afternoon and evening at the old Rufus Choate estate, Essex, many summer residents from various sections of the North Shore, college men and women being guests. The old Choate house, the home of Rufus Choate, the educator and member of the legislature from the Essex district and one of the early trustees of Mt. Holyoke college, was built in 1804. The guests were given the privelege of viewing the antiquities of the house. It was here that Mary Lyons talked over her plans with Mr. Choate for Mt. Holyoke college. The company enjoyed a picnic lunch on the lawn and afterwards, through the courtesy of Mrs. William E. Tucker, of Ipswich, her beautiful colonial home in Ipswich, was opened for further sociability, dancing, music and refreshments. It was in the Dr. Tucker house that Washington and Lafayette visited in colonial times, when it was originally a tavern, and from the front porch General Washington addressed the people who gathered on what was then the common, in Ipswich. Also in the rear upper room, on the second floor, Mary Lyons had slept on numerous occasions. The next meeting of the college club will be held at "The Pines," the lovely summer home of Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott, in Annisquam, Gloucester. It will take place about Sept. 10, and all college men and women in the vicinity, including summer residents are cordially invited to attend.

Mme. Blanche Skrainka, one of the most popular dramatic soprano singers of the middle west, who has sung often with the St. Louis Symphony orchestra is spending the remainder of August in East Gloucester, accompanied by her husband. Mme. Skrainka is interested in painting and she is a pupil in the East Gloucester summer class of Hugh G. Breckenridge, the Philadelphia artist of prominence. Mme. Skrainka will sing at the East Gloucester Methodist Episcopal church on Sunday evening.

Selling Happiness Instead of Furniture

"Happiness" is really what we have to sell to owners of summer homes on the North Shore. It is more than porch and interior decorations. It is the happiness that only a background of artistic and comfortable furnishings can give to summertime. No home is too large—none too small—for our kind of happiness.

EASTERN POINT.—The pageant of "The Holy Grail," adapted from Sir Edwin A. Abbey's paintings in the Boston public library, will be presented in Hawthorne Inn casino, on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week for the benefit of the Memorial Park fund and the Gloucester District Nursing association. A spectacular performance is expected.

A number of artists of the colony will take part as well as a long list of attractive young ladies, and gentlemen who are to represent the different characters in this famous legend. Kennard Wakefield will be "Sir Galahad;" Margaret Parris will have the part of "Bauchefleur," sweetheart of Sir Galahad; Margaret Read, "Angel of the Grail;" Wm. Harmon, Sir Bois; Mr. Tuftson, "Lancelot;" Angels, Margaret Breckenridge, Helen McDonald, Doris Nelson, Adeline Miller, Louise Stovall, Margaret Lyle.

There will be the processional with voices, and the costumes and settings for the tableau are expected to be very artistic. Miss Rita Longhorn is to have charge of the costumes. Mme. Luise Sarson will sing. Particularly attractive dances will be the Salome dance, by Miss Harriet Brazier, and the Religious dance by Miss Lilias MacLean. The various scenes will be as follows: Scene 1-The Galahad as a Child; Scene 2—In the Chapel with Sir Galahad and Sir Bois; Scene 3—Round Table; Scene 4—In the Chapel; Scene 5—Enchanted Castle of Amfortas; Scene 6—Fight with the Seven Deadly Sins; Scene 7-Blessing of the Monk; Scene 8—Castle of Maidens; Scene 9—Blauchefleur and Sir Galahad; Scene 10—The Tree of Life and the Angel of the Grail.

Rector Whitehead, of the Church of the Advent, New York, will be the Bishop. The pageant will be directed by Daniel O. Brewster, of Boston. Mr. Brewster is visiting instructor for the Hartford Art society and he had charge of the new building there. He is also instructor of design in the Boston Normal Art school. Mr. Brewster has staged plays for the Copley society, of Boston, and he also staged "Omar Khhayam," which was so artistic, at the Hawthorne Inn casino a few years ago.

The second group of community plays at the Playhouse-on-the-Moors, East Gloucester, on Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, were a wonderful success, and each performance was greeted with a large audience. The acting, costumes, settings and ex-quisite lighting effects received highest comment of critics and followers of the community and workshop plays. The BASS ROCKS.—With the season now about to be on the wane with the approach of Labor Day, things socially are somewhat lively in the Bass Rocks colony. The golf clubhouse is a mecca for afternoon tea parties. Among those entertaining recently were Mrs. Reiss, of the Moorland, four tables at bridge, followed by tea; Miss Burton, three tables at bridge; Mrs. Walton Holmes, of the Moorland, twelve friends at tea. A smart affair on Thursday evening was the annual ball of Hotel Thorwald. The ballroom was handsomely decorated with flowers, bunting and colored lanterns and the lawn about the verandas was also brilliantly lighted and refreshments were served. A large orchestra of Sewall's musicians furnished delightful dance music. The guests of the hotel and their friends from along the Shore enjoyed this festal occasion, arranged through the courtesy of the hotel management, under the direction of Manager Lester Roberts.

The ball of the Bass Rocks Improvement society held at the Moorland casino last Friday evening was an event of the season in the colony and it was very largely attended. The casino was artistically decorated with greenery and colored lights and the Jefferson-Johnson colored (jazz) orchestra furnished music thoroughly satisfactory. Ralph L. Pope, Sears B. Condit and Walter F. Roberts comprised the committee conducting this most successful affair and Mrs. William B. Campbell assisted, having charge of tickets.

Two popular young people of the Bass Rocks colony, Miss Dorothy Donovan, of Toledo, Ohio, and Anthony Brady Farrell, of Albany, N. Y., and Grape Vine Cove, are receiving congratulations upon the event of their marriage, Wednesday of last week, at the Mission church of St. Joseph, at Magnolia. The bride has been coming to the Moorland hotel for the past six years with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Donovan, and she is a favorite in the younger social set. Mr. Farrell is a son of Mrs. James C. Farrell, who owns "Felsenmeer," the pretentious summer estate at Grape Vine Cove, formerly the J. Sloat Fassett estate. The wedding was a quiet affair, owing to the death of the groom's father during last year. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony, served at Del Monte's, in Magnolia. Miss Donovan made a charming bride in her gown of white net and she carried roses and orchids. Miss Marcia Ann Farrell, the bridesmaid, wore a cornflower gown of georgette with hat to match. J. Woods Sweeney, of Albany, N. Y., was best man. He is a cousin of the groom.

NOTES OF INTEREST

By GLADYS H. RICHARDS

THE MAGNOLIA SHOPS have never looked more lovely than they are now, in the full splendor of their autumn displays. The frocks, gowns, suits, hats and all enveloping wraps have never been so softly becoming or so smartly simple of line.

First for a visit to Bonwit Teller's, for a glimpse of the new fall things which are appearing each week at this attractive shop. A simple little suit about which there is an air of smart distinctiveness is of zanzebar brown veldyne, and has the new box coat, hanging just below the hip. The pretty narrow braided design at the bottom lends a tasteful finish. One of the charms of this suit is that it can be worn with any separate fur piece. There is also a tiny belt which can be worn by way of variety.

We find many others without the fur trimmings, as well as strikingly beautiful suits with deep collar and cuffs of various kinds of fur.

The fall wardrobe is never quite complete without a serviceable suit of tweed. At Bonwit Teller's we are delighted by their display of handsome homespuns, in suits, separate skirts and walking breeches, and in those rich but subdued shades so very fashionable in tweeds.

A very pretty serge frock has the short scalloped overblouse and finely pleated skirt. Cut steel beads form a pretty embroidered design, in which a touch of wool appears. A lovely little gown of brown chiffon has the veiled gold lace bodice, and square set-in of gold lace in the flounce. Tiny fur bands on the front sides disappear into a cloud of the chiffon drapery on either side. This gown is exquisite when on.

The wraps and handsome coats for fall and winter wear also claim a goodly share of our admiring attention.

Almost unconsciously we find ourselves headed for Hickson's in an irresistible desire to peep into this fairyland of smart apparel. A handsome gown of old blue velvet, displayed near the entrance, lends its soft draperies to the forming of a broad train. It is one of those regal gowns whose rich simplicity is incomparably charming.

Pour la jeune fille there is a youthful gown of crystal bugles. Its skirt is rounded into separate front and back sections, terminating on either side in an outline of soft jade ostrich which extends to the hip. You catch an illusive glimpse of its petticoat of cloth of silver, the scalloped bottom of which is traced out in a not-too-wide beaded fringe. Deft touches of pearl have been artfully added on the bodice and skirt, and a small loose cord girdle terminating in beaded tassels, completes the exquisite whole.

There is an air of subdued elegance about the three-quarter length coat of black duvetyne, with its trimmings of seal. Four bandings of the fur give the coat front the appearance of being tiered, while the back is perfectly plain, but for the band of seal which completely surrounds the bottom, and the deep soft seal collar. The fur is again introduced in the cuffs.

Fashion's caprice this season is for long suit coats, which, she has happily discovered, are most becoming. She finds her ideas exactly and artistically carried out in the cordelaise velour suit of dull baige at Hickson's. The semifitted coat has narrow set-in panels, with tailor stitching of silk of the same shade, in the sides of the back and front, adding a smart distinctiveness. Colinsky forms the richly deep collar, and drapes itself into smart scarf-like cuffs. The set-in panels reappear in the skirt.

A demure little afternoon gown is of black marquisette, with a deep old-fashioned "yoke" collar, which is banded with mole. The fur is again introduced in side bandings on the overskirt, and the tout ensemble is lovely in its quaint simplicity.

Among the many beautiful evening wraps on display is a very handsome one made of four circular tiers of mole.

And then the hats! What woman does not find sheer joy in shopping for hats? A piece of brown velvet has been draped and swirled into an adorably smart hat that is close fitting without being too small. A Spanish comb stuck in the back of the hat is jewelled with coral and dull gold. A very desirable little toque is of tête de negre silk velvet and heckle feathers. The feathers, which are a rich shade of brown, lightening here and there into a touch of canary, are carried around the brim, the end gracefully sweeping down over the hair on one side.

The attention of the Magnolia shoppers was claimed last week by the fall "opening" at Harry Collins' shop. Handsome wraps, beautiful gowns and frocks and smart little hats were displayed and very much admired by the large number of North Shore folk who were there.

Very beautiful is the gown of peach colored chiffon designed in bands which are worked in gold bugles. The tiny bands hang straight from the neckline and are caught in at the bottom with a wide band of the same material. A narrow-loose girdle marks the waist line, and the tout ensemble is very lovely and softly becoming.

An afternoon gown that is very distinctive in appearance is of matalasse. It is designed in something of the Russian tunic effect and the English eyelet embroidery forms a very smart finish. Dull gold appears in collar and cuffs and follows the embroidery on the tunic.

At J. J. Jonas' an unique and very practical little frock that is being favorably received is knitted after the style of the new capes. It has the roll collar, and narrow cord girdle and fits beautifully.

En passant, there are some very smart hats also on display for general utility wear in the new fall and winter models. A distinctive little crush hat is of orange velvet with a soft rolled brim.

The dainty French dresses which were so much admired by visitors to this attractive little shop have now been replaced by others for fall and winter wear. A very beautiful afternoon gown is of rich brown taffeta and is embroidered in bronze beads. A cord girdle and tassels of the beads add a smart finish.

A very smart cape at Farr's has a deep brushed wool collar which reaches to the waist line in the back and extends in long points terminated with a heavy tassel in front. The points can be wound around the arm forming a very adequate sleeve. The cape reaches to the edge of one's skirt, and is knitted in such a way as to suggest a pleated effect. (See illustration in Breeze Fashion Suggestions).

Lamson & Hubbard's are having their opening of the new fall and winter hats this week, on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Miss Granger, who is now in the Magnolia shop, has brought with her a wonderful selection of adorable hats.

Among the sports models are some very smart hats of duvetyne, which have the rolled stitched brim, and come in various shades. A lovely little French felt is in that new shade of tomato red and has the soft crush crown.

And still more hats! L. P. Hollander's are also having a millinery opening on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Their tasteful display of attractive hats for fall and winter are drawing an admiring crowd of North Shore folk.

MASSACHUSETTS SOCIETY FOR THE PREVENTION OF CRUELTY TO CHILDREN

Appeal for Help Made by President of North Shore Branch—A Worthy Charity

Beverly, Mass., August 23, 1920

To the Editor of the North Shore Breeze:

May I use your columns to call to public attention the serious situation of one of our very important charities? Last year the Massachusetts society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children had under its protection more than a thousand different children in the North Shore district. The children were not only unfortunate through sickness and poverty, but were actually abused or neglected and not given a fair chance by their parents. To care for these children adequately, we were forced to consume all the income from our small endowment, all our contributions, and all our unrestricted bequests; and yet we closed the year with a deficit of $20,000. We need many more supporters, for less than half the money spent came from current contributions.

The situation is acute, if not critical, and one of two things must happen: Either we must receive more funds through contributions and bequests, or we shall have to seriously curtail our work. We are the only agency working among the 1,119,000 children of Massachusetts. We have never refused our help to abused and neglected children anywhere in the state, firmly believing that if we do good work, we can count on generous friends of children to furnish the money, but we must change our policy and radically curtail the work unless we can steadily increase our contributions and continue to receive large sums as bequests. We shall continue to do our utmost for the children who are victims of misfortune and degeneracy, confident that when our need is known, a generous public will come to their aid.

Frank W. Foster is our treasurer. Contributions should be sent to him at the Beverly National Bank.

C. B. BURNHAM, D.M.D.

RESTORING THE BIRTHPLACE OF THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Outstanding Feature of Woman's Work in U. S. Today—A Patriotic Institution

Contributed to the Breeze by Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, of Annisquam

THE outstanding feature of woman's work in the United States today, outside of the political sphere, is centered in the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial association—the organization which is restoring the birthplace of Theodore Roosevelt at 28 East 20th st., New York city.

The work is of more than passing importance because it does not stop with the purchase of the birthplace and provision for the maintenance of the same; instead, the real work begins with the completion of these objects. At the site of the ex-President's birthplace the women of America are founding a patriotic institution, the beneficent influences of which will constantly reach all communities in the United States and its possessions.

This Association is headed by Mrs. John Henry Hammond, as president. Mrs. Hammond is a granddaughter of Commodore Vanderbilt. Associated with her are the following women: Mrs. Charles A. Bryan, secretary; Mrs. A. Barton Hepburn, treas.; Mrs. Henry A. Alexander, Mrs. William Curtis Demorest, Mrs. Henry A. Wise Wood, Mrs. James Russell Parsons, Mrs. Vladimir Simkhovitch, vice presidents; Miss Grace Arnold, Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. William Barbour, Mrs. Ira Barrows, Mrs. James M. Beck, Mrs. Oliver B. Bridgman, Mrs. Winthrop Chanler, Mrs. George A. H. Churchill, Mrs. George de Gersdorff, Mrs. Norman S. Dike, Mrs. H. Edward Dreier, Mrs. Cass Gilbert, Mrs. Elgin R. L. Gould, Mrs. William Greenough, Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Mrs. James J. Higginson, Mrs. Ripley Hitchcock, Mrs. Alexander Lambert, Miss Esther Everett Lape, Mrs. Frederick N. Our committee in France is headed by Mrs. John Ridgely Carter, chairman, and associated with her are the following: Mrs. H. H. Harjes, treas.; Mrs. Francis G. Shaw, sec.; Mrs. Frederick Beekman, Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss, Comtesse Francis de Castéja, Comtesse de Chambrun, Mrs. Lee Childe, Mrs. Ralph Curtis, Mrs. Walter Gay, Madame Henri Hottinbuer, Mrs. Edmund Hubbard, Madame Hugues Le Roux, Princess Aymon de Faucingny-Lucinge, Mrs. Geo. Munroe, Princess Poniatowska, Mrs. Charles Prince, Mrs. Tower Reilly, Mrs. Ridgeway, Madame de Sincay, Mrs. Van Rensselaer Thayer, Madame la Générale Taufflieb, Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Wharton. They have already reported splendid progress in raising money

The establishment of Roosevelt House as an institution calls for a fund of one million dollars. As Mrs. Douglas Robinson, sister of Theodore Roosevelt, who is interested in the work, has expressed it, "A million women with a dollar apiece."

Roosevelt House will be a repository of records and intimate mementos of the great patriot. It will have a free circulating library containing the writings of Theodore Roosevelt and many other books. Classes will be held for teaching English and American history. In the assembly hall lectures will be given.

Emanating from Roosevelt House and its educational board will be educational influences which will reach all the communities through the schools and other agencies. To illustrate, Roosevelt scholarships will be a feature of the

"If sound doctrines are inculcated in our children during their formative years," says Mrs. John Henry Hammond, president of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial association, "we are convinced that later in life the children will be impervious to such anti-social, anti-national forces as now threaten the established order of society.

"The present generation can render the future no higher service than to make the American child Roosevelt-minded in its personal and its national relations.

"This can be accomplished through the teaching of Roosevelt principles and ideals in the schools."

The state committees of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial association will conduct an annual contest in the several states for the best essay on the life of this American, the prize to be awarded to the winner by each state committee. The winning essays in the several states are to be forwarded to national headquarters, where, upon the decision of a special committee, the scholarships are to be awarded to the three best.

The first prize according to tentative plans will consist of $1000 in cash to pay the expenses of a year at college, and a specially designed medallion in gold; the second prize will consist of $750 in cash and a silver medallion; and the third prize will consist of $500 in cash and a bronze medallion.

The ladies of this Association are well advanced in the ambitious work which they have undertaken. The property now in the heart of New York's business district has long since been purchased and paid for. Plans for the restoration of the birthplace and the adjoining house, all of which is to be known as Roosevelt House, have been prepared by Theodate Pope, the famous woman architect. A contract has been entered into with the Tide-Water Building Company, of New York, to construct the building, and early in the fall it is expected that the work upon the premises will be begun.

The funds in hand amply warrant the beginning of the work, but are not sufficient to complete the building. Consequently, the members of the Association call upon women everywhere to coöperate with them in this undertaking by contributing according to their means. Every person may and every person should become a member of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial association.

Every contributor of one dollar or more will receive the emblem of the Association, which is a small bronze pin bearing the likeness of Theodore Roosevelt.

One hundred dollars entitles the contributor to a three-inch bronze Roosevelt medallion.

One thousand dollars entitles the contributor to a nineinch bronze Roosevelt medallion.

The names of all who give one dollar or more are recorded and preserved in the Book of Donors at Roosevelt House.

Even children may participate in the work, provision having been made for junior members. Every child under sixteen years of age may become a junior member upon the payment of twenty-five cents.

GLIMPSES HERE AND THERE OF SOME NORTH SHORE ESTATES

"The Moorings," at Norton's Neck, West Manchester, summer residence of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Tucker and family

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM A. TUCKER, of "The Moorings," Norton's Neck, West Manchester, have had alterations made upon their home in the way of enlarging the lower hall and adding a beautiful doorway.

Thomas C. Kerans, of Danvers, is the architect who had the work in hand. The Georgian doorway is a copy of the one at the Shreve house in Salem. Inside improvements consist of the enlarged hall, only. This is now a Georgian hall, rich looking in its newly panelled walls, its mantel and staircase, and appointments in every detail to carry out the

The doorway is painted white and makes a striking but most harmonious part of the dark brown house. It projects from the main house enough to form a slight entry, the floor of which is done in black and white. A huge door with glass panels on either side, and a fan-shaped transom above, is flanked with Corinthian columns. Larger similar columns are on either side the steps leading to the door. Every detail of carving around the columns and door is exquisitely done. Two flower pieces done in Padua stone from Italy stand by the steps. Above the doorway and entry a small balcony is formed upon which the hall windows of the second story open.

Coming over the bridge with its gentle slope, termed by some one the "gentle bridge," the view of the Tucker house and surroundings are, indeed, most charming and pleasing. The dark house (a former Arthur Little place) with its white doorway, white casement window trimmings and dark green blinds on other windows, and tall white chimneys with their black tops make an interesting combination nestling among the greenery that surrounds it. Vines are climbing here and there all over it, some reaching up to the white chimneys for support.

A peaceful, restful place, it is made more beautiful by its garden, only six years old, and the water frontage so delightfully planned around the house.

Garden architects could get many a helpful idea of reclaiming marshy land from this particular North Shore point. The Tuckers have a garden of rare beauty and a frontage near their house created through means of holding back salt water to proper bounds.

THE WAR AFTER THE WAR is not an idle use of words, but a stern reality. Europe is still in the throes of a great revolution. No one now can have political vision keen enough to foresee what the outcome will be. The difficulties which are being experienced by Poland cannot be dismissed by the American people without a thought. The temptation to let the horrors of the war pass and to direct one's energies and attention to the peace-time pursuits must be combated with sober judgment and sound sense. America has been struggling against the selfish indulgence of the people which followed as a reaction the sacrifice and suffering of the war period. Noble minds have with stern determination endeavored to cast out the bitter memories of the days which have sped. There are good reasons why, mentally, such efforts should be made, for the human mind is frail and cannot stand continued anquish without dire results. It was to be expected that a reaction should have come. Yet the reaction itself must be offset by an intelligent reading of the signs of the time. One must not bury as the ostrich one's head in the sands. Closing the eyes and the ears will not obliterate the reality of horrors or disturbing sounds. They are still real, however strenuously the man may endeavor to forget them. There are troubles in Poland that cannot be overlooked. America cannot live to herself in these days of storm and reconstruction. The Balkan problem was too intricate for the American people to unravel. The Poland situation has many phases that an American reading public cannot understand, but it must be said that the troubles there interest Americans, for no one can ever judge how far-reaching and perilous a conflagration in Europe may be. The situation is serious. All eyes must be focused on Poland and her struggles for freedom. Americans must not blind their eyes to pending difficulties with which they may be involved.

TRUTH LIKE THE DIAMOND needs the polishing stone of experience to bring out its pure and enduring light.

MR. HARDING HAS DETERMINED to conduct what is termed a "front porch" campaign. He purposes to establish his headquarters and operate from there, instead of wasting his time, energies and mental and physical strength in a "swing around the circle." The old-fashioned general waved his sword and led his troops up the hills—and over—to charge upon and defeat the enemy. From his headquarters, Foch directed the great armies of the Allies and won the The modern political campaigns must be won by tactics that will place the commander-in-chief constantly in touch with every field of activity of the party organization. The "porch campaign" policy assures this for then Harding may direct as a general the operations of his faithful men. It will give him the opportunity to use full power of his executive strength and to marshal his available forces strategical, and quickly. He will be free from the probable temptations to meet local conditions which he cannot understand, and leave the field work to able men who understand the "local color" and who will not be betrayed into harmful tactics. The old plan was based upon the principle that it was necessary for the candidate to be advertised. speeches and mass meetings were the popular methods of arousing interest, especially in doubtful states. The publicity thus obtained was the indirect influence which usually prompted the speaking tours. Now, Harding knows, from his long years of newspaper experience, that there are more skilful and powerful ways of obtaining helpful publicity without the wastes of the old-time campaigns. The decision meets the approval of every intelligent citizen; it will place the conduct of the campaign upon a higher plane, that is in keeping with the dignity and power of our republic.

MISS MARY E. GLADWIN, who was formerly the superintendent of the Beverly hospital, has been honored again for her unrivaled service overseas in the American Red Cross Hospital work. Only five other American women have ever received the Florence Nightingale Honor Medal, which is awarded by international authorities. This welldeserved honor pleases the many friends of the former Beverly woman. No one can realize in America what hospital service in Serbia and Salonica meant to the heroic band of workers and to the youthful soldiers who were ministered unto. With a self-denial that was its own reward, brave physicians, surgeons and nurses heroically worked for humanity with limited facilities. The men who were helped and the Government authorities knew of the value of the work done by our efficient Red Cross units in Middle Europe. Russia, Serbia, Japan and France have also awarded Miss Gladwin a medal of honor for the service which she rendered in aiding the wounded of those nations. It is a testimony to efficiency that the work of the Red Cross society has been appreciated by the governments of the world. Miss Gladwin, personally, cannot but be gratified with the recognition which she has received from so many different nations, but the enduring joy will be the satisfaction which in her own mind she can experience for the unparalleled opportunity and self-denying service which she rendered. Medals are humble tributes of organized society through the leaders of the people to express gratitude for the service rendered; the enduring rewards are not gold and silver, the skilful work of master jewelers, but the joy of service well done in the spirit of the Great Master and the heartfelt praise of suffering men who have felt the healing touch of the service of human compassion. Miss Gladwin has served her nation and the world, and all wish for her the rich rewards of faithful service.

It Is a Wise Man who, while preparing for the future, learns to live with patience, contentment and happiness in the present.

THE UNIVERSALIST CHURCH is observing this week, as well it may, the anniversary of the establishment of the first church of their religious faith in America under the pastoral care of Rev. John Murray in Gloucester. That small church has grown until it has attained its present position of influence in the religious world. From the earliest days of the preaching of Christianity, the Universalists claim, their optimistic faith has been proclaimed. Not until after the reformation, however, did the development of the church really begin. In common with all the pioneer protestant organizations, the early preachers and adherents suffered persecutions from the authorities, both civil and religious. In France, George De Benneville was rescued from the very steps of the scaffold. In England at the Convention of 1552, in the Forty Two articles, those of the "universalist way" were condemned. In Germany, Huber, a teacher, was forced to seek freedom by going into exile. Even in America, in 1684, Joseph Getchell was brought before the Suffolk County Court from Marblehead, and sentenced "to pillory and to have his tongue drawn forth and pierced with a hot iron." Let it be hoped the sentence was not executed. Days of enlightenment finally came with religious toleration and liberty. For these many years, the Universalist church has been a strong power in America. The increase in its membership is a negligible factor compared with the wholesome influence of its optimistic faith, its high Christian ideals and its championship of religious liberty. With reverence, pride and rejoicing the modern pilgrims gather to honor the pioneers of the Faith and receive new incentives for their work The world still needs the "leaven" of truth for today. which the ideals and ministry of Jesus Christ give, whatever branch of the Christian Church hides it in the meal of the world.

Courage Has been associated too exclusively with the fields of war, for the real struggle commanding courage has been the silent contests of the soul with foreboding fear.

THE NORTH SHORE CLAIMS Oliver Wendell Holmes as her own. With his Harvard and Boston affiliations, the Athens of America was his residence during the winter, but when the spring days came the North Shore called to him. He was in truth one of the pioneers of that increasing number who have sought a summer home on the shore. The North Shore was "home" to him, as the city, despite all its associations, could not be. Many poems were written in the home now occupied by the Justice of the Supreme Court, his illustrious son, on the old Hale road, at Beverly Farms, with its view of the open bay and the twin lights of Baker's Island. As the anniversary of the birth of the great American poet returns, a spirit of gratitude is struggling for expression for the flame of optimism, good cheer and courage that burned on his altar. By that light in his poems, many a despondent one has found cheer, a tempted one an inspiration, and the reverent soul, in worship-mood, bread of the inner life. The reach of his ability compelled admiration in the merry philosophy of his humorous poems, and in the deep aspiration of such a poem as the Chambered Nautilus, suggested by a sea shore walk, his mind was true, pure, aspiring, and the last stanza was a picture of his own soul's aspiration.

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea."

Low Prices Will Mean lower wages. What will the aristocrats of Labor do when hard times really come? If the wages and prices are reduced proportionately the advantages are not real.

THE ODD FELLOWS' PARADE in Boston next month will be one of the longest and the most interesting processions ever reviewed in the Hub of the Universe. The men of the fraternity will find the latch-string out and will receive a hearty welcome from the citizens. Boston is an ideal convention city that never fails to attract large gatherings. The large number that have already signified their intention of attending the convention is a testimony to the influence and power of this fraternal organization. Founded specifically upon the spirit of the Good Samaritan who aided the wounded traveler, it has its roots deep in the field of practical christianity. Non-sectarian and non-political in purpose, it has, nevertheless, been an indirect power in both fields of service. Inculcating the principles of brotherly love. and truth-seeking, its influence cannot be discounted. Every marching unit of men in that parade, that will mark an epoch in the history of the city and the organization, will be a unit of men who have been aiding the fatherless and the widows and propagating fidelity and loyalty to the humble virtues of honorable living and generous giving of money, time and service for the betterment of man. The ideals of Friendship, Loyalty and Truth are noble and will require a lifetime of self-discipline, high thinking and careful living to realize. From the standards men may fall, but the ideal once planted in the soil of endeavor gives the seed of future fruitfulness. The propagation of such noble virtues are a benefit to society, and commands commendation.

Honor Thy Father and mother, is taught to children; a new commandment may well be written for parents, when the temptations to earn money by the parents, especially by the mother, leads to neglect and ruins homes.

THE CHILDHOOD WRITINGS of Opal Whiteley, who is now living on the North Shore, have aroused comment. Her style is original and interesting. There are references in her articles that tax the credulity of many people, but there is no evidence that the child had anything more than a knowledge of the names which she employed for the domestic animals on the old farm. It is not strange that the articles have been subject to discussion and criticism. Shall they be accepted as the work of a seven-year-old child? Her parents, who are now unknown, must have had trained minds to have tutored their child so well in the knowledge of the names in literature and history which she gave those domestic animals. The simplest and most pleasing solution of the problem is to agree with the judgment of the staff of the Atlantic Monthly and accept the articles as the work of a child. The writings should be republished in book form and illustrated by reproductions of some of the original childdrawn pages, with illustrations of the text by a good illus-Her writings will stand the test of time, giving pleasure to rising generations of young folks.

One of the Fatal Errors of Grecian communism was the assumption of too many parental responsibilities. Is society drifting again in the same direction?

WHERE CORALS LIE

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

WATCH the sea flowers sway
With motions graceful
On the ocean's plane,
As lovely as the field flowers
Bent by the sun-kissed winds
Along the country way.
And far above are towers
Tipped with whitened vane—
They topple with the gale;
And hopes are sinking low
With broken wings—they cannot fly.
Down deep—where corals lie!

Oh, sea, so deep with mystery!
No sound can penetrate,
But throb of life is there!
Through depths His hand
Is ruling tide and destiny
And all things we call history
On sea and on the land;
No place is void from share
Of love from the Almighty God—
Love's bloom is ever lingering nigh,
Down deep—where corals lie!

Bury the Past—Commence Again With Clean Slate and Keep it Clean

If you have been indiscreet, imprudent; if you have been talked about; if your reputation has been injured so that you fear you will never outgrow it, do not take the shadows about with you. Start with a clean slate and spend all your energies in keeping it clean for the future. Do not let the little enemies—worry and foreboding, anxiety and regrets—sap your energy, for this is your capital for future achievement.

Whatever is disagreeable, whatever irritates, nags, destroys your balance of mind, forget. It has nothing to do with you now. You have better use for your time than to waste it in regrets, in worry, in useless trifles. Shut the door in the face of all your enemies and keep it shut. Do not wait for cheerfulness to come to you. Go after it, entertain it, never let it go.—The Optimistic Life.

SUMMER FLOWER SHOW A SUCCESS

North Shore Horticultural Society Holds Exhibition at Manchester

WITH a larger number of single entries than last year, and with the quality of all exhibits fully up to the usual standard, the annual summer flower show of the North Shore Horticultural society was held on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week at the Horticultural hall, Manchester, and was a very successful exhibition.

One of the leading features of the show was a table of cut flowers arranged for effect and exhibited by Mrs. Lester Leland (Eric Wetterlow, gardener). A silver cup and a first prize were awarded this exhibit which contained a variety of flowers arranged in a most artistic manner.

A profusion of gladioli were shown from the estates of Mrs. Wm. H. Moore (A. E. T. Rogers, gardener), Mrs. H. S. Grew (J. McElhinney, gardener), the Frederick Ayer estate (D. McLean, gardener), and from Mrs. Lester Leland's. From the dominating pink to the rare blue, many of the hues, shades and colors known to the profession were in evidence.

From Orchidvale, the Beverly Farms estate of Albert C. Burrage, came some very rare and beautiful specimens of Cattleya aurea, Cattleya petersii, Laelia Cattleya St. Gothard and Laelia Cattleya Serbia.

A. W. Warren & Son, of Beverly, occupied considerable space with their wonderful showing of dahlias. About 100 varieties were shown. The U. S. A., King of Show, La Favoretta, Cactus specimens imported from England, peony flower dahlia imported from Holland and the Cambria were among the varieties displayed. The Cambria is a new variety just imported from England this year and is a truly beautiful flower. The present season has not been very favorable to the producing of first class specimens in the dahlia family, but A. W. Warren & Son have overcome many difficulties and succeeded in bringing forth very creditable blossoms.

Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby was awarded a certificate of merit for a display of dahlias of excellent quality.

One of the large classes of cut flowers was shown by the Axel Magnuson greenhouses, of Manchester. Prettily arranged and of rare beauty these flowers attracted much attention.

A display of 12 blooms of the cactus dahlia and 12 blooms of the decorative dahlia, from Mrs. Wm. H. Moore's is deserving of more than passing mention. The colorings, arrangement and general quality were of the best.

There were four dinner table decorations for four covers. First prize was awarded to Mrs. George A. Dobyne, of Beverly Farms. The centerpiece contained water lilies, and sprays of flowers were tastily arranged with the napkins. D. R. McLean, of Pride's Crossing, captured second prize. Four candle sticks, flowers and greenery were combined to create a pleasing effect. Worthy of honorable mention were the tables arranged by Alfred E. Parsons, with yellow poppies, and a second entry by Mrs. Dobyne with daisies for the decorations.

Beacon Florist, of Boston, obtained a first prize on their dinner table decoration for eight covers. Roses were used in the centerpieces and at the corners.

Mrs. E. S. Grew (A. E. Parsons, gardener), exhibited a display of gloxinias which was the center of many admiring groups during the show. This exhibit was not entered in any competition, but was of such excellent worth that the judges awarded it a silver medal.

Six specimens of any flowering plant not named in the schedule, a collection of hardy, herbaceous perennials and a group of flowering and foliage plants arranged for effect to cover a space of 50 sq. ft. were shown by F. B. Bemis. These classes were remarkably well filled and received many first prizes.

Silver medals were awarded Blue Hill Nurseries, of South Braintree, for their displays of Juniperus Blue Hill and Picea Purdomii. This firm also showed many varieties of phlox and gladioli.

Two specimen plants of Allamanda from Mrs. Lester Leland's were especially noteworthy. These lemon-colored flowers presented a rich, golden appearance, and added much to the Leland display.

One of the most interesting displays in the show was six plants of Dipladenia Splendens Profusa, exhibited by Frank B. Bemis (J. Davey, gardener). This was probably the first time that this variety has ever been shown in this section and it received a large amount of attention.

Although it was rather late for roses the Frederick Ayer estate exhibited several varieties, in a number of different classes. Fuschia from the same estate were also of very good quality.

In the classes of cut flowers, E. C. Fitch, Sr., had many Antirrhinum of white, yellow, red and pink varieties.

white, yellow, red and pink varieties.
Mrs. S. P. Bremer exhibited a collection of annuals grown outside which made a very fine showing.

The vegetable displays were on the lower floor of the hall. Although not so many as usual the exhibits were of first-class quality and received a proper share of attention from gardeners and others interested. The keenest competition was in the class which called for 12 distinct varieties of vegetables. After careful consideration, the judges awarded first honors to Frank B. Bemis and second to Mrs. H. L. Higginson. Both displays were

LIBRARY NOTES

New Books in Manchester Public Library

The old-fashioned novels have somewhat gone out of style, but in many ways they are better than the fiction of Amelia E. Barr was one writer whose stories were much in demand when they came out. "A Bow of Orange Ribbon," "Cluny MacPherson," "A Border Shepherdess," ". Daughter of Fife," "Jan Vedder's Wife" and "The Lone House" are six of her earlier works that are all worth reading. A short time before her death Mrs. Barr wrote "The Days of My Life," being her autobiography. It gives you many facts about the life of a noble woman.

Edna Lyall was another novelist whose novels were much read during the last decade of the 19th century. They were somewhat sensational, but there was no danger of your going to sleep reading them. "Donovan," "W Two" and "The Hardy Norseman" were among her best.

The Dutch novelist, Maerten Maertens, wrote some good fiction. "An Old Maid's Love," "My Lady Nobody" and "God's Fool" are some of "Annals of a Quiet Neighborhood and its sequel, "The Seabord Parish." are two real good works of fiction.

"The Ordeal of Richard Feverel by George Meredith, is one of the good novels of the last century. "Anna Karenina," by Leo Tolstoi, is a very strong novel. "The Fair God," "Ben Hur" and "The Prince of India," by Lew Wallace, were great favorites in the olden time. The stories of Margaret Oliphant were much read when they appeared many years ago. Among them may be mentioned "Who was Lost and Is Found," "The Story of a Governess," "The Marriage of Elinor" and "Sir Robert's Fortune.

A book published in 1869 entitled "The Pictorial Field-Book of the War of 1812" is worth looking over-if for no other reason—on account of the many hundred quaint engravings.

A well written and finely illustrated book is "New Orleans, The Place and The People," by Grace King. New Orleans is one of the most fascinating of the southern cities. Many people wend their way to this city each year to attend the celebration of the Mardi Gras. You are told much about this great carnival, and many other interesting things about the city.

Another book you will enjoy looking over is "Butler's Book," by Benj. F. Butler, a former governor of Massachusetts and a noted general of the Civil war. General Butler was an unique character and his reminiscences make very attractive reading. It is illustrated with one hundred engravings.

Next week we hope to have some —R. T. G. more new books.

PRELIMINARY PLANS FOR MANCHES-TER'S NEW TOWN HALL ARE ON EXHIBITION

Plans for the enlargement of the Town Common showing driveway through it and the location of the proposed Town hall, in Manchester, as prepared for the committee on Soldiers' Memorial, are now being exhibited at the Town hall. Olmstead Bros., of Brookline, are the architects.

There is also a map of Manchester Common and vicinity on display which accompanies the above plans.

One portion of the maps shows a diagrammatic section of the proposed Town hall, with hall, lower hall, and offices on both sides of the building.

These plans are most interesting, as they are an important step toward the Memorial Town hall which Manchester is to build in honor of her heroes of the World war.

Over Forty-One Thousand Telephone Stations

Have Been Added to Our System Since January 1, 1920

· Notwithstanding difficulty in providing equipment we have added to our system so far this year more telephones than there are in the combined cities of Lowell, Lawrence and Lynn.

Even in times when telephone equipment was plentiful and quickly obtainable, and the demands for our service were normal, we would have been proud of such an unusual development. Under present conditions it is by far the biggest job we have ever done. But yet applications are being received faster than we can provide for them; and today we have

Over Twenty-Four Thousand Orders Awaiting Completion

We believe that our first obligation is to protect the existing service. Before we provide for new business we must be sure to properly take care of existing business. To do otherwise would mean a deteriorated and unsatisfactory service for all.

Present indications are that it will be many months before we shall be able to provide for all the new telephone service that is desired. Meanwhile, we will continue to secure all the equipment possible and use the resourcefulness of our engineers to provide substitutes for that which is unobtainable.

We are counting upon the people of New England to recognize that under existing conditions we are doing our best to first protect their existing service and then to provide for additional service as promptly as possible.

Women's Club Notes

Sunday afternoon was pleasantly spent by "the family" at the clubhouse enjoying afternoon tea, served in the living room. After the tea, Miss Charlotte Huskie sang several songs and a little community singing was enjoyed.

Monday evening was dance night, as usual. The music was furnished by William Holland. A happy time was enjoyed by all.

On Tuesday evening "the family," with some invited guests, enjoyed a musical treat. Miss Ruth Sullivan, of Melrose, a niece of Miss Margaret Cahill, sang in the living room of the club. Her selections were "A Spring Fancy," by John H. Densmore; "A Little Song," by Arthur Voorhis; "There are Fairies at the Bottom of Our Garden," by Rose Fryleman and Liza Lehmann; "I Shall Meet You," by E. M. Chesham and Wilfrid Sanderson. Miss Sullivan is a pupil of Weldon O. Hunt, of Boston. Her charming voice together with a pleasing personality made this little musicale one to be remembered with pleasure by all who were present.

STRIKING EXAMPLE OF EFFICIENT HOSPITAL SERVICE

A striking example of the efficient service Beverly hospital constantly renders to the communities of Beverly, Manchester, Hamilton, Wenham and Danvers was cited Sunday morning by the Rev. Neilson Poe Carey, rector of St. John's Protestant Episcopal church, Beverly Farms, in the course of his announcements just after the sermon

Mr. Carey referred to the coming campaign to raise $100,000 for the hospital and emphasized in connection with the hospital's plea for funds, its ever-ready service to the community. He mentioned the case of one family in Beverly Farms, consisting of a mother, father and four small children. The mother was taken seriously ill some time ago, and with her husband at work all day, there was no one to take care of the children and the home. The family was in serious straits for weeks before a neighbor learned of conditions and notified Bev. hospital.

Within two hours two trained nurses arrived, took the children in charge, cleaned up the house and soon had everything in order. The next day the baby welfare service of the hospital attended to the care of the younger children. This mother is being cared for and the nurses will continue their work as long as needed.

Beverly Farms Honors Deceased Veteran of World War

Beverly Farins people paid honor to a deceased veteran last Saturday when they gathered to attend the military funeral of the late Priv. Michael J. Cadigan, who died in France in 1918. The body arrived in this country the early part of last week and was received in Beverly last Thursday at the home of his parents on Greenwood ave.

A guard of honor and a firing squad composed of members of the American Legion post named in honor of the deceased, and headed by Lieut. Gregory P. Connolly, accompanied the body from the home to St. Margaret's church and later to the cemetery at Montserrat, where burial was made.

Services were held at St. Margaret's church at 9.30 a. m. Mass was conducted by Rev. Fr. James H. Downey. Rev. Fr. Fitzpatrick, the mission priest, paid a fine tribute to the young soldier, who in the fullness of his life and manhood had volunteered his ser-

HIS REASON

Mortland Jones, the five-year-old son of the Rev. When questioned he gave as his reason the line of the song, "Land where my fathers died." "My father didn't die," he said, "and I won't sing it."

Strand Theatre, Lynn "The Silver Horde," regarded by literary critics and the general reading public as Rex Beach's greatest Alaskan story, will open a four days' run at the Strand theatre, Lynn, next Sunday evening. It is filled with stirring romance, gripping action and beautiful photography filmed against vast northern wastes of snow and timberland. With the limitless outdoors for backgrounds the story is far more realistic than on the stage or printed page. It is presented by an all-star Paramount-Arteraft cast. Other Sunday features will include Mr. and Mrs. Carter De Haven in "Honeymooning," a new Judge Brown story, "Shift the Gear, Freck," Strand Topical Review and special musical program.

Additional attractions the first three days of the week will include William J. Flynn's great secret service story, "The Phantom Butler;" latest Burton Holmes' travels, and new issue of the Strand Topical Review.

Enid Bennet in Paramount's "Hairpins," a delightful comedy, and the new Goldwyn special, "Dangerous Days," (not to be confused with "Dangerous Hours"), will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Comedies from Mack Sennett and Fox studios will also be shown all the week.

Special preparations befitting the occasion are being made for the six days' showing of Mary Pickford's new screen triumph, "Suds," the week of Sept. 6. Musical director, Byron G. Ricker and Miss M. Frances Doughty, have prepared elaborate musical scores to accompany it and interpret its varied emotions.

TREMONT THEATRE, BOSTON

There is always a great deal of interest on the part of everybody who goes to the theatre in Boston over any offering by Henry W. Savage in that city. This producer has provided exceptionally fine entertainment for play patrons who realize that whatever bears his stamp is more than one hundred per cent worth while. Anything offered by Mr. Savage would awaken popular expectancy, but there is exceptional appeal in the announcement that he will present the comedy "Shavings" at the Tremont theatre beginning Monday night, Aug. 30. All who are posted on happenings of stageland are familiar with the tremendous hit "Shavings" made in New York, and they will eagerly welcome the chance to see this famous comedy. The play is taken from Joseph C. Lincoln's celebrated novel "Shavings," which has been read and enjoyed by many thousands. It captured the fancy of New York at the jump, and had a long run on Broadway from whence it is coming to Boston. Every dramatic critic in New York praised "Shavings" without stint, and the public crowded the theatre until the last performance of the World's Fair for Boston Now Being Considered by Commission

The commission appointed by Gov. Coolidge to consider the matter of an international exposition at or near Boston in or before 1925, has organized with the choice of Wm. S. Felton, of Salem, as chairman, and former Mayor Chester I. Campbell, of Quincy, as secretary.

The commission has decided to hold public hearings at the State House, beginning about the middle of September. It is believed that the hearings will create widespread interest in view of the fact that various chambers of

LOCAL CROP BULLETIN

Issued by Essex County Associated Boards of Trade

General Conditions

Somewhat contrary to expectation local farm produce has reached a condition which borders upon a glut. This is notably true of the markets in the Merrimac Valley. Unemployment has materially affected the purchasing power of the buying public and this is causing considerable concern to the farmer and dealer alike. More farmers' market wagons are reaching our county city markets daily than at any previous week of the year and it is also to be noted that amateur production is not at its peak.

Special Crops

(Now available in large quantity)
Tomatoes are now very abundant and will reach the lowest price of the season during the next ten days.

Shell beans—abundant and excellent.

Green corn—more plentiful from this date until frost.

Cabbage—abundant.

Fruits of the summer and fall varieties are very plentiful this year. Gravenstein apples, valuable for both eating and cooking, will be on our markets in a few days. Duchess apples, a superior cooking variety, will appear about the same time. Apples are selling at a low price.

Pears, especially early sorts, will be abundant. Clapps Favorite, a fine large variety and admirable for canning, will be rather plentiful during the following week, and this in turn will be succeeded by Bartlett's.

Housewives, Attention!

You are strongly advised not to further delay your larger canning operation. Draft all members of the family in the interests of abundant and varied food supplies for next winter. A good blue flame oil stove in a large open kitchen does not produce unbearable conditions. Do not delay too long into September, as cold nights and frost check or remove some of our most valuable crops, notably tomatoes, beans, peppers and corn. This causes prices to soar. If in doubt about some of the directions or rules for canning, a card addressed Essex County Agricultural school, Hathorne, Mass., will bring information.

commerce and other business and trade organizations have definite plans in mind for such an exposition. It is desired by the commission that all persons and organizations who have a particular interest in the matter shall be prepared to present their views as soon as the commission announces the dates of the hearings.

The commission will report to the legislature in January, 1921.

The formal opening occurs on the day after Labor Day, Tuesday, Sept. 7, with a 6.30 a.m. meet at the Kennels in Hamilton. A few informal drags and cub-hunting are even now in progress and hounds have already "accounted" for one fox. Two horse shows, one at the fair held at the Ipswich playgrounds last Saturday, the other tomorrow, Sept. 4, at the Topsfield fair grounds, antedate the club's Labor Day horse show. The hunt card for the first part of September calls for two afternoon and one morning run a week, exception being made for the opening day. The fixtures are:

Thursday, 9—Kennels, 6.30 a. m.
Saturday, 11—Norwood Mills, 5 p. m.
Tuesday, 14—Mr. Proctor's, 5 p. m.
Thursday, 16—Farms Road Bridge, 6.30 a. m.
Saturday, 18—Topsfield Fair Grounds, 4.45 p. m.

0 88 0 Much interest was shown last Saturday at a carnival, in Ipswich, in aid of the Catholic mission in Rowley, and the parishes in Hamilton and Ipswich, in the exhibitions of high jumping by ponies and horses listed for the Myopia show at Hamilton, Labor Day, and which were entered by George S. Mandell, James Appleton, Charles D. Rice, Bayard Tuckerman, Jr., Miss Anna Agassiz, Miss Mary Curtis, George Vaughn, Walter E. Hayward, H. W. Mason and other members of the North Shore summer colony. SOCIETY NOTES

A MEETING for women will be held at the house of Mrs. Edgar R. Champlin, 361 Hale st., Mingo Beach, Pride's Crossing, next Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The subject: "A presentation of some of the problems upon which women will vote in the approaching national election." The speakers will be Mrs. Wm. Lowell Putnam and Senator Augustus P. Loring. Miss Katherine P. Loring will preside. While this is not a public meeting, anyone interested, to whom notices have not been sent, will be welcome to attend.

♦ ३३ ♦ Miss Sally Cabot, daughter of Mrs. Charles M. Cabot, of Beverly Farms, returned from camp in New Hampshire this week. Her brother, Elliot Cabot, will soon return from California, where he has spent the summer.

Richard C. Paine, of Coolidge Point, Manchester, and Charlie Higginson, son of the late Frederick Higginson, were on a cruise this summer to Eastport, Me., on Mr. Paine's boat.

Madame Lyska, the singer visiting at Mrs. Austin D. White's in Beverly Farms, says that her "special job" just now is the internationalization of music. Her "labor" songs are not folk songs. The ones she has gathered are boat songs, weaving songs and other rythmic strains produced with a country's work. Music will help draw folk together in their political, religious and social life according to Mme. Lyska, hence her work in collecting and presenting. She is leaving America in the spring for Jerusalem.

The Rev. Walter Lowrie, rector of St. Paul's church, Rome, Italy, will preach in St. John's church, Beverly Farms, at the morning service at 10.30, next Sunday, Sept. Dr. and Mrs. Lowrie are the guests of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Whitehouse, of "Crowhurst," Manchester. Mrs. Lowrie was Barbara Armour, a niece of Mrs. Whitehouse, and of Allison V. Armour, who is spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Whitehouse.

The Rt. Rev. William Lawrence, D.D., Bishop of Massachusetts, who has recently returned to this country from England, where he was in attendance at the Lambeth conference, will preach in St. John's church, Beverly Farms, on Sunday morning, Sept. 12.

Mrs. Langdon Warner, of Essex, has been training the children all season and they sang old French and English folk songs. Mrs. Langdon Warner's nine-year-old daughter, Lorraine, gave a Russian dance in Russian costume. The singing and dancing took place on the lawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Bradford Holmes, New York; Frederick Crockett, Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Crockett; Carroll Perry, Rev. and Mrs. Carroll Perry, Ipswich; and Peggy Barney, Dr. and Mrs. J. Dellinger Barney. All are Boston children unless otherwise designated.

NORTH SHORE folk will be interested in the début of Miss Pauline Pumpelly Cabot, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Handasyd Cabot (Elise Pumpelly), of Boston and Dublin, N. H., tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon, when a reception will be given for Miss Cabot in the Art Museum at Dublin, a museum built by her grandfather, Prof. Raphael Pumpelly, to house his art treasures. Mrs. Cabot has recently returned to her home from a visit on the North Shore with Mrs. Austin D. White and Mrs. George Lee, at Beverly Farms, and other places along the Shore. Tomorrow evening the many friends who attend the reception for the débutante will also be among the guests at a fancy dress party given by Mrs. Moran at Dublin.

WOODLEA UNIT is inviting all of Bunny Woods' outing classes to the Beverly Cove home of Dr. and Mrs. Henry F. Sears, Wednesday afternoon, Sept. 8, when a "gymkhana" meet will be on, the proceeds of the 50c admission fee going to the Children's hospital in Boston. There will be all sorts of sports including sack, potato, 3-legged, hoop and barrel races. The date originally set for this gymkhana was Saturday afternoon of this week, but in order not to conflict with the children's party at Mrs. R. T. Crane's, Ipswich, it was thought best to change the date. The games are open to all children of all ages.

The monogrammed comforters and blankets at the Grande Maison de Blanc, Magnolia, are being much admired by North Shore folk. They can be made up to match the color scheme of the room—in solid color or with the colored borders. Many people are taking advantage of the opportunity to order those dainty linen handkerchiefs so exquisitely suited for holiday gifts.

CONTRIBUTORS' COLUMN

Blessed is he who has something to say, and says it.—Lowell's Beatitude.

Begging the pardon of that classic Boston magazine that runs a contributors' column, we are going to have one ourselves this week for our Junior North Shore contributors.

Miss Virginia Wainwright, the musician and writer, sent "The Jointed Doll," a charming little poem written when she was only 12 years of age. This appeared in our issue of June 25, occupying a prominent place on the page of "Junior Breezes."

Ralph Henry Barbour, the noted writer of stories for boys and girls, gave two letters for publication that had been sent to him by admiring young readers. These were inserted in a short sketch of Mr. Barbour (a Manchester yearround resident) appearing in the issue of July

Gabriella May Ladd, the 14-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Maynard Ladd, of "Arden," Preston pl., Beverly Farms, contributed a spirited poem entitled "Mosquitoes," which appeared July 16. Miss Gabriella and her younger sister, Vivi, have done much in their own way by conducting little papers for charitable purposes. They are now in a unit actively engaged in preparing a play and fair to be given at their mother's studio, Monday, Sept. 13, a benefit for the Children's hospital in Boston. We hope to give our readers more A New Department Devoted to the Younger Members of the Breeze Family

I PSWICH had a fair and children's party last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and material from the pen of Miss Gabriella. She has a dashing, interesting style seldom noticed in such a young writer.

Natalie Hays Hammond, the 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hays Hammond, of "Lookout Hill," Gloucester, contributed over a half-page story, "Twelve Plus One," for the issue of August 13. This weird little story with its skilfully woven plot around the old traditions and superstitions connected with the number 13, or "twelve plus one," has been widely read.

Miss Natalie, like Daisy Ashford and Opal Whiteley, began writing stories when a mere child of six. When her nurse would be arranging the was busy scribbling on little girl's hair Natalie her block. And how the stories grew! "Around the World," a story of travel, illustrated, and made into book form by Natalie, is still in the possession of her mother. In Natalie's childish handwriting and with her own drawings it makes an unique memento of her early endeavors in the literary world. She then had a strong desire to weave as many characters as possible into her stories. From school magazines Natalie has now come forward to an honored place in general literature. Rev. Neilson Poe Carey, of St. John's church, Beverly Farms, pronounced the little story in the Breeze as "most entertaining and weird."

But Natalie is not one bit "weird." She is a happy, bright little girl who loves music and everything good and beautiful. With her mother she attends North Shore musicales and passes the kindest of interested and intellectual comments upon the music. She has been a student in Miss Spence's school in New York and is now in the Holton-Arms school in Washington preparing for Bryn Mawr college.

Natalie Hutchinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson, of "Sydith Terrace," Beverly Farms, is a little 11-year-old writer of much interest. Natalie's story entitled "The Moonbeam Fairies" appeared in the issue of August 20. This occupied nearly a page. The story of Betty and her trip to the Moonbeam country is one of the daintiest and purest bits of fairy lore we have read in a long time.

Natalie is a member of the bicycle club in Beverly Farms, of which her sister, Frances Hutchinson, is president. At Natalie's request the Breeze is now being sent for the remainder of the season to the club, which usually has its headquarters at "Sydith Terrace," either in the house or in the playhouse on the beach.

We hope to give our readers more stories from Natalie's pen. She also writes poems.

PSWICH had a fair and children's party last Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roger S. Warner on Argilla rd. Three hospital units working for Children's hospital in Boston gave the party and sold their articles made during the summer. The girls had sewed and painted and the boys had made wooden boats and other toys. The support of three beds—$300—has been the object of these units.

They gave old French and English folk songs, led by their teacher, Mrs. Langdon Warner, of Essex. Little Lorraine Warner, dressed in a Russian costume gave a Russian dance.

The little folk who gave this happy affair were the following:

Roger, Rachel and Sturgis Warner, Lorraine Warner, Charlotte, Robert and Talbot Rantoul, Cornelius Florence Crane, Nancy Winslow, Polly and Frances Rousmaniere, Sidney, Sarah, William, Jack and Elizabeth Shurtleff, Elizabeth Mason, Ellen and Mary Potter, Jack and Everett Post, Philip Bourne, Mary McLeod, Lona Blauvelt, Alfred Sumner, Robert Holmes, Frederick Crockett, Carroll Perry and Peggy Barney.

Little Thomas Greely Stevenson and his sister, Marie Le Moyne Stevenson, are fond of their pets. Peter Rabbit and Molly Cottontail live in a most interesting house in the yard and receive much attention from these two little Beverly Farms "Breezes."

THE LAUNCHING of "Ava," Allison V. Armour's houseboat, at Calderwood's boatyard, Manchester, Tuesday noon, was the particular event of the week to interest North Shore folk. The day was perfect—not a cloud in the sky, warm, but not hot, and a gentle breeze stirred the air enough to waft the hundred-odd flags that decked the boat from

The launching was set for noon—between 12 and 1, and hundreds of people lined every available foot of space at the boatyard, along the railroad nearby, at Masconomo Park, across the harbor, and along Beach st., near the railroad station. It is estimated that fully 1000 people were on hand—and automobiles galore filled the park and every available spot. Eighty-one cars lined the boatyard and the streets in the vicinity.

Mr. Armour is a democratic gentlemen of the old school, though he himself is not old in years, let it be said. He had extended a general invitation to the townspeople and to the summer visitors to see the launching, and that his invitation was accepted was attested by the merry throng on hand

Following the launching a buffet lunch was served in the boat shed, this being especially for the workmen and their families and friends, and guests of Mr. Armour, but in a general way the invitation was extended to all who wished to partake. The lunch consisted of a delicious New York style clam chowder, chicken salad, rolls, ices, cake, coffee and punch. Creed, the well-known North Shore caterer, had charge of this, and he says about 300 people were served. Mr. Armour and his guests and the townspeople mingled in hearty democratic style for this feature of the program.

As to the launching itself. The boat started on its journey down the greased ways, but stopped after going about 25 feet, due to the failure of the grease to properly function. The rudder touched the water, however, so that officially it was a launching. On the night tide a large number of men with ropes, and a tug, succeeded in pulling 'Ava" into the water.

Mrs. Lowrie (Barbara Armour), Mr. Armour's only niece, christened the boat as it started on its way, breaking a bottle of genuine French champagne—a pint may it be said—over the bow. Mrs. Lowrie is wife of Rev. Walter Lowrie, dean of the American Episcopal church in Rome. They came home this summer purposely to attend the launching. Other guests of Mr. Armour were his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George Armour, and son, Allison V. Armour, 2d, of Princeton, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Whitehouse (Mr. Armour's sister), Miss Elaine Whitehouse, of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., Mr. Whitehouse's niece; and Mr. and Mrs. Jordan Mott, of New York (Mr. Mott is of the Mott Iron Works).

The boat itself is the last word in houseboat construction, and is built with attention to every detail for comfort of a gentleman and his friends while traveling in southern climes. A description has already been given in these columns, and a more complete account of this feature will be given at a later date, together with a picture of the boat.

Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Brown, Jr., recently returned to "Red Ton Farm," Hamilton, from a trip to Squam lake, N. H. They were accompanied by Miss Katherine Lyons, of Washington, and Clipton Sturgis, of Boston.

"THISSELWOOD," on Mingo Beach Hill, at Pride's Crossing, the home of Ellis L. Dresel and Miss Louisa L. Dresel, now occupied by Gen. and Mrs. Edgar R. Champlin, of Boston, is an old house containing much of interest historically and socially to the North Shore. The original old house with its low ceilings and quaint furnishings and the modern section added and then all stuccoed make a house of beauty and charm both outside and in. Its grounds with the many fine trees on the water side are exceptionally interesting when viewed from the verandas of the house.

Some time this old place ought to be the subject of an "estate" write-up in the Breeze.

New Play for the Marionettes.—Great enthusiasm and interest is being shown about the latest triumph of the Gloucester Puppet Shop. It is a delightful new nonsense play entitled "Hynd Horn." Just why it is called "Hynd Horn" no one seems able to determine, but as the proverbial rose it would be equally delicious under any other name. The remarkable thing about it is that after a special reading at one of the leading New York theatres, requests have been sent from numerous wholesale houses of that city asking permission to use the name as a trade mark for certain goods. So far the name "Hynd Horn" is to be used for a perfume, a silk, a chewing gum and a stocking. Who knows but Hynd Horn may have missed by a few short years having a cigar or some sort of liquid refreshment bear his name?

This play is the first puppet play to be built in Gloucester and is heralded as being quite the latest thing in Marionettes. It was given by Lilian Owen at the various hotels during last week, which was, by the way, the final week of the season for Lilian Owen's Marionettes. They leave for New York shortly. Miss Owen has brought together her entire company for this last performance and folks who know will be sure not to miss this performance.

One of the interesting displays at Mrs. Bill's Shop on the beach at Magnolia is the artistically carved wooden archways, which are very rare.

During the hunting season the little home-like place is open till Nov. 1. Mrs. Walcott Howe Johnson, of Hamilton, recently entertained for her sister, Mrs. T. T. Welds and guest, Mrs. Janeway, both of New York. Among the guests were the Misses Burnham and Mrs. Ezra' Thayer. Lunching with Mrs. Thomas W. Peirce, of Topsfield, were seen Mrs. C. F. MRS. FREDERICK G. HALL (Evelyn Ames) opened beautiful "Stoneacre," the Hall home on Eastern Point, Gloucester, Wednesday afternoon of last week, for the second musicale given in behalf of the South End Music school in Boston.

Charlotte Peegé, contralto, and Lucile Quimby, violincello, the latter a pupil of Joseph Adamowski, of Boston, gave the program . Mrs. Dudley Fitts was the accompanist.

The South End Music school, 32 Rutland st., Boston, has an enthusiastic entertainment committee on the Shore including Mrs. Godfrey Lowell Cabot, Miss Margaret L. Corlies, Mrs. Frederic R. Galacar, Mrs. Frederick G. Hall, and Mrs. Henry L. Mason, chairman.

Established about nine years ago as a settlement music school its purpose is to give children music lessons at a nominal price. Only 25c is asked from the pupils, while the teachers are paid about the usual price for lessons. This necessitates that two-thirds of the money for the upkeep must come from outside sources. The school opened with 15 pupils and three teachers, now there are 300 pupils and 25 teachers.

Departments consist of vocal, piano and violin. A senior and junior orchestra are interesting features. These orchestras give two public concerts a year.

The third Shore benefit to raise funds for the school was in the nature of a bridge party at Mrs. Godfrey Lowell Cabot's house, Beverly Farms, Wednesday afternoon, September 1.

Miss Ellen Curtis has returned to her home in Pride's Crossing after spending two weeks in Maine resorts.

Miss Ruth Paine is returning Sept. 7 to her home on Coolidge Point, Manchester, from a western sojourn of several weeks at the noted Bar B. C. ranch.

THE WOMEN'S MUNICIPAL LEAGUE, of Boston, gained many new friends at the all-day meeting Tuesday of last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Parker H. Kemble, in Marblehead. The Kembles live in the fine old Col. Wm. R. Lee house, one of the historic houses of the old town. It was opened to the public both forenoon and afternoon but closed during the luncheon hour. Two rooms were used for a luncheon at which 25 ladies had reserved places. Besides Mrs. Kemble, there were Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, 2d, and her guest, Mrs. Louis G. Hall, of Rockport and Detroit: Mrs. S. Parkman Blake, Miss Marian Blake, Mrs. Godfrey Lowell Cabot, Mrs. Isaac T. Mann and her guest, Miss Hickey, of Washington, Mrs. Ellery Sedgwick and daughter, Miss Henrietta, Mrs. Augustus Hemenway, Mrs. Geo. E. Cabot, Miss E. W. Perkins and friends, Mrs. Livingston Davis, Mrs. J. Arnold Lowell, Mrs. Chester L. Dane, Mrs. W. B. Thomas, Mrs. Chas. K. Cummings and Mrs. M. L. Higgins.

A typical Marblehead luncheon was served by Mrs. Kemble, consisting of chowder, baked beans, brown bread, and various kinds of pie, all made in the old fashioned kitchen by her own cook. The Misses Thorndike, of Nahant, daughters of the Albert Thorndikes, looked after the !uncheon.

Tea was served in the afternoon in charge of Mrs. M. L. Higgins. During the day there were 400 visitors to see the old house. Some people from Manchester, descendants of Col. Wm. R. Lee, who had never been in the house, were among those present. Mrs. Chester L. Dane, who is chairman of the membership committee of New York's Municipal league, and Mrs. Lincoln Davis (Katharine Crowninshield), long a Marblehead resident, assisted in explaining the history of the house to the visitors. The wall paper, depicting Constantinople scenes, is very realistic, and one lady who had visited in that city could recognize the places shown. The Kembles have lived in the place nearly 15 years and it has a very charming and home-like appearance besides being furnished in the period of 1740.

The money taken in will be used for the benefit of the committee on the civic and patriotic education of non-English speaking women of the Women's Municipal league, of Boston, in which Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, 2d, is much interested.

W. H. Brown, Jr., of Beverly Cove, who played in the annual tennis tournament at the Montserrat club, holds the cup for both the singles and doubles at St. Paul's school. Mr. Brown is now attending Princeton university.

F. C. Dumaine and his daughter, Miss Polly Dumaine, of Coolidge Point, Manchester, are on a lengthy western trip. Guests at the Dumaine home include Mr. and Mrs. de Rupp, the latter a school friend of Miss Betty Dumaine. Miss Betty has a constant companion these days in her handsome police dog that escorts her everywhere she goes.

Would you like to come back next year to a fresh house with new draperies, walls, etc? Call Mrs. MacLennan, Magnolia 476-W.

Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, 2D, of Coolidge Point, Manchester, is much interested in the classes in English for foreign-born women conducted by the committee on the civic and patriotic education of non-English-speaking women of the Women's Municipal league, of Boston. Owing to the coming suffrage for women this is very important. Story-telling is a new feature of the work, given in coöperation with work of the extension department of education, by request. Story-telling is considered a special feature in Americanization, so the league will do all in its power to foster the work.

The league feels that the foreign-born mother is often lonely here in America, while her men folk and children can profit by the public day and evening schools. The league has had over forty classes the past year under trained teachers, meeting at times and places convenient for the women. When a class becomes large enough to be taken over by the public schools it and its teachers pass into their system. The league immediately organizes another neighborhood class. Small groups of men are also taught, who, for various reasons are not provided for by other agencies. The money taken in at the Parker H. Miss Eleonora R. Sears, of Beverly Farms, and her young old horse of 25 years are seen every day around the Farms. This handsome bay horse, now used for the "knock about," is a spirited creature to be proud of, and when hitched to the little run-about-gig belies all hint of a quarter of a century of usefulness.

MR. AND MRS. J. A. LOWELL BLAKE have had many improvements made this season upon their place known as "Malt Hill," at Beverly Farms. New rooms have been added and others entirely made over. A garden terrace made in the space between a new wing and the projection of the main house and piazza is a pleasing feature. The Robt. Gallagher Co., of Boston, has the work in progress, which will, no doubt, extend into the fall months.

The long stucco house with its slate roof and great chimney on the new wing makes an interesting appearance.

This wing contains one large room that will be used for the library. Gothic features are carried out in the dark rough-plastered walls, huge beams in the ceiling and general furnishings. The mantel is a beautifully made thing of wood that is a real antique. Every chair or other piece in the room is of an old period. Dark green hangings are at the French doors opening on to the new garden terrace.

The former living-room has been converted into a charming morning room done in cream and blue.

An oval room is a most unusual innovation. The dining-room has a perfect oval shape, and is panelled in cream and gold. The French effect and the general old-time scheme is beautifully carried out in this room. Woodwork is finished so as to have the appearance of age. The curved French doors opening out on the terrace have black and red hangings and a dark rug is used. A French mantel of dark marble completes the room. All doors opening into service quarters and into closets are cleverly concealed in the panels.

These rooms open off the large central hall done in white panelling.

On the second floor a blue and white room has a noticeably carved white mantel with a brick hearth.

The oval guest chamber above the dining-room has features carrying out an old period. From its oval front a delightful view towards Mystery island and beyond is seen. Another guest room done in gray and rose has a new sleeping porch adjoining.

The third floor is where Francis Stanton Blake, 2d, and little Anna have their bedrooms and playrooms. Francis has a miniature grate and mantel in his room that makes a cheerful place for little folk to sit around on cold days when its small logs are ablaze.

A cedar closet and a flower room are useful adjuncts to the great supply of closets. Blinds for all windows and doorways and piazza posts are done in natural wood which will turn gray in time.

Your Community Hospital at Beverly Needs Funds

Beverly, Danvers, Manchester, Hamilton and Wenham — E V E R Y B O D Y H E L P!

With only fifty beds available, the hospital is caring for a daily average of patients in excess of sixty, and has treated ninety persons in one day.

But the demand far exceeds the capacity, and patients in real need of skilled medical care are being turned away daily because there is no bed to put them in.

Approximately a baby a day is being born at the hospital. The maternity ward must be considerably enlarged to meet the steadily increasing demands made.

$100,000 IN ONE WEEK SEPT. 9-16, IS THE GOAL

Fifteen thousand persons have been cared for in the twenty-seven years of the hospital's existence, almost one-half of them without charge.

To continue this work of mercy, more money must be provided, for costs have mounted more than 150 per cent, in a few years, without a corresponding increase in income.

SEPTEMBER and the first part of October are in many respects the most beautiful weeks of the season on the North Shore. Many people—and the number is increasing each year-are taking advantage of the clear sunny days and the crisp invigorating air to remain here until the close of the hotel. The cottagers, of course, remain for the most part well along in the autumn, reluctant to miss nature's transformation, and eager to enjoy the motoring, comfortably wrapped in wooly things against the cool air. Motoring on a hot summer's day is lovely, but what can compare with a motor-ride along our beautiful North Shore drive on the bright September days, when summer is bidding a gay and laughing farewell? Mellow Autumn, with its gay attire, is a part of the North Shore season and is thoroughly enjoyed by North Shore folk, and, indeed, there are those who come here to spend September and October only, from wherever they may have spent the summer, be it far or near.

New Yorkers to arrive at the hotel this week are Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Irish and their daughter, Miss Lydia Irish. They plan to remain until the close of the season.

Mme. deKingenbyel, of Norway, is visiting her sister, Miss Alice Wilson, of New York, at the Oceanside. Miss Wilson is a season guest at the hotel. Another sister, Mrs. Ernest Howe, of New York, is also at Magnolia for a short visit.

Guests at the Oceanside for the week-end were Rev. and Mrs. Ralph M. Harper, of Winthrop.

Jasper G. Brinton, of Philadelphia, was among the week-end guests at the Oceanside last week.

THE TUESDAY night dance at the Oceanside was very well attended. From the broad piazzas of the hotel one could see Luna's bright sliver path across the water, and the clear crisp air, refreshed by the afternoon's storm, permitted a full measure of enjoyment in the dancing.

Among the lookers-on at the Tuesday night dance was Mrs. Alice Moore Richard, who is paying a brief visit to the Oceanside, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Harlow. Mrs. Richard and her two charming daughters, Mrs. Heman L. Dowd (Alice Richard) and Mrs. Curt Eric Hansen (Elvine Richard), spent a number of seasons at the hotel several years ago and were very popular among the hotel clientele, always taking an active part in the social doings. It was in August, 1917, that Mr. and Mrs. Curt Eric Hansen were married in the Union chapel at Magnolia, and the wedding was said to be the prettiest of the season.

Tuesday night Mrs. Richard wore a beautiful gown of wisteria velvet, the simple elegance of which enhanced its becomingness.

Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Harlow were among the very graceful dancers on the floor. The gown of black lace, with its daintily frilled over-skirt and narrow girdle of old blue, which was worn by Mrs. Harlow, was very lovely.

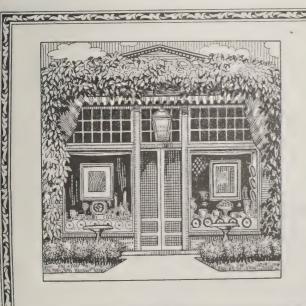

Charmingly becoming was the gown worn by Mrs. E. M. Binney, which was of white lace banded with satin. A veiled jade green girdle added a smart touch of color.

Mrs. W. J. Johnson was exquisitely gowned in dove grey chiffon, with a touch of silver embroidery and floating side draperies.

Very becoming was the gown of black satin with touches of white which was worn by Mrs. Gordon Kiser. Mrs. Kiser is a season guest at the hotel, coming here from Atlanta, Ga.

The gracefully draped gown of rose chiffon worn by Mrs. S. Livingston Mather was most becoming. Mrs. J. G. Sholes was gowned in jade chiffon inlaid with lace.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Johnston, of St. Louis, arrived at the hotel this week. They are registered for the balance of the season.

HUNDREDS OF GOOD SUGGESTIONS

TO perplexed members of prize committees, we can think of no better suggestion than a visit to our Magnolia shop; it is really a small edition of "THE GIFT SHOP OF FIFTH AVE.." for it contains lamps, Sheffield ware, china sets, table decorations, crystal, and hundreds of novelties, as unusual for their distinction as for their variety. And always, without exception, the same reasonable prices of our New York shop prevail.

MRS. J. M. BONNELL and Miss C. Bonnell are being welcomed back to the Oceanside, where they arrived this week, for the balance of the season. The Bonnells are old-time guests at the hotel, having spent a number of seasons here. They are from Youngstown, Ohio.

George H. Bunker, Jr., of Boston, joined his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Bunker at the Oceanside this week.

Isabelle W. Ketcham, of East Orange, N. J., is among the recent arrivals at the Oceanside, registered for a brief visit.

This week's arrivals, who are registered for a short visit include Dr. and Mrs. S. R. Woodruff and Dr. and Mrs. J. F. McCarthy, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. Samuel C. Rowland, Baltimore; George Earl Warren and Mr. and Mrs. Piatt, New York; Mr. and Mrs. F. A. M. Burrell, their daughter, Katherine, and son, Frederick, Brooklyn, N. Y.

CAPE ANN.—The month of September promises to be a prosperous one for the many hotel proprietors on Cape Ann. Labor Day coming late, on the 6th, will cause a great many people to stay on and bookings are strong till the middle of the month, at least.

The presence of the warcraft, the minelaying fleet with Capt. H. E. Lackey commanding the flagship U. S. S. San Francisco has brightened social activities. Officers and men are being entertained at hotels and cottages along shore. Admiral Wilson, of the North Atlantic Squadron, sent the two torpedo boat destroyers, the U.S.S. Bernadou and the Sicard to Gloucester harbor to do honor to the guests of the big Universalist convention during the past week.

With the 42d Coast Artillery at Rockport this month for target practice, there will be added life to Cape Ann. Large field guns have been transported over the fields and hills between Gloucester and Rockport during the past two weeks and the booming of guns in practice will now start.

The celebration of the 150th anniversary of Universalism in America, founded by Rev. John Murray in Gloucester, was favored with beautiful summer weather during the four-day convention in Gloucester. Not only the old historic church on Middle st. and the Sargent-Murray-Gilman house attracted throngs of visitors, but the doors of other churches on Middle st. were thrown open in hospitality to the sister church and the large number of visitors.

In the Sargent-Murray-Gilman house, where Murray lived, are located many relics connected with the famous clergyman and his family. His portrait, a fine likeness, painted by Henry Sargent, hangs in one of the rooms. Many pieces of old china, furniture, prints and other things of historical interest attracted attention as well as the architecture of the old house, the carved stairway, one of the finest specimens in America and the wall panelling, fireplaces and doors.

The Judith Sargent tea rooms, located on the first floor of the house received a large amount of patronage during the convention. The tea rooms are open daily to patrons of the North Shore, where a fine cup of tea and delicious home-made dainties are served.

The most spectacular out-door pageant at Stage Fort Park since the production of "The Canterbury Pilgrims" ten years ago, was the pageant of the Universalist convention, held on Friday and Saturday evenings. The pageant was illustrative of some of the episodes in the life of John Murray, the first being located at Good Luck, N. J., portraying this meeting with Thomas Potter, when he came to America from England. The other four episodes were located in Gloucester. Representative John Thomas acted as prolocutor. The scene was a most inspiring one with the brilliancy of costumes, with the colored light effects, added with the bright moonlight. There were extraordinary tableaux, singing of hymns by a chorus of voices, and accompaniments by the Salem Cadet Band, Jean Missud, director. One scene after the other on the broad open field near the tablet boulder thrilled the audience of 6000 people seated on the rise of ground facing the harbor side of the park, an ideal place for a pageant. The wedding of John Murray and Judith Sargent was particularly a lovely scene in the fifth episode. The chorus sang the "Marriage Hymn," the words written by Judith Sargent. The final tableau was "The Spirit of Universalism Fanned from Spark of 1770 to the Glowing Flame, 1920," and the chorus sang the "Angels' Chorus" from Faust, the effect being most thrilling.

EASTERN POINT.—The leading function in the Eastern Point colony this week is the "Pageant of the Holy Grail," adapted from the famous mural paintings by Sir Edwin A. Abbey, in the Boston Public Library, and presented under the direction of Daniel O. Brewster, of Boston, for the benefit of the memorial park at Gloucester and the Gloucester District Nursing association.

The pageant was held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings and it will mark the big closing event of the summer season at Hawthorne Inn. Fully 200 people took part in this artistic and spectacular production, including many artists and other people of social prominence in the colony. The scenery and costumes as designed by Mr. Brewster were most interesting and effective and the various tableaux were of rare color and scenic beauty. Miss Rieta Langhorne and Miss Adeline Piper assisted in creating the costumes. Percy Atherton, the Boston composer, presided at the piano principally and Miss Olive H. Renton was also at the piano. The processional was most spectacular, led by the choir boys of the Church of Our Lady of Good Voyage, Gloucester, singing "O Come All Ye Faithful," followed by the monks, knights, Sir Galahad, Lancelot, Sir Bois, the trumpeters, angels, nuns and other characters in the legend.

The text taken from Tennyson, arranged by Miss Caroline Ticknor, of Boston, was read by Rev. H. S. Whitehead, of the Church of the Advent, of Boston. Ten episodes were presented: "The Vision," the presenting of the child Galahad, a lovely tableau in which Miss Margaret Reid, of Washington, was a picturesque angel; "Path of Knighthood," "The Round Table," "The Benediction," "The Castle of the Grail," "The Seven Deadly Sins," "Receiving the Key," "The Castle of the Maidens," "Farewell to Blauchefleur," "The Golden Tree." Kennard Wakefield, of Boston, was Sir Galahad; Miss Margaret Parris was Blauchefleur, sweetheart of Sir Galahad; Mr. Tuftson, Lancelot; Miss Josephine Clark, Angel of the Host; Wm. Harmon, Sir Bois; Rev. H. S. Whitehead, Bishop; J. Denison, Knight of the Round Table; Miss Elizabeth Stewart, page; Miss Frances Little, trumpeter; Mrs. Harry G. Pew, Miss Phoebe Thompson, nuns; Donald Gordon Squier, knight; Dulcevar King, King Arthur; Castle of Maidens—Mrs. Langdon Gillette, leader, Miss Louise Stovall, Mrs. Case, Miss Wilmerding, Miss Ruth Maniere, Miss Juliette Chisholm, Miss Jean N. Oliver, Miss Lilias MacLean, Miss Virginia Smith, Miss Grace Dugas, Miss Vickery, Miss Stewartsen. Miss Harriet C. Brazier was charming in the Salome dance. Mr. Good had charge of the lighting.

The committee in charge comprised Mrs. Alice (Fischer) Harcourt, the actress, of New York, chairman, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Langdon Gillette, Mrs. Barrett Ridgely, Miss Juliette Henning, Eben Comins, Mrs. Dugas, Miss Kline, William Fosdick, Miss Juliet Chisholm, Mrs. George W. Woodbury, Miss Caroline Ticknor, Miss Lilian Griffen, Miss Martha Flint, Miss Adeline Piper, George O. Stacy; Miss Jean Nutting Oliver, Alexander G. Tupper, publicity.

The Annual Masque Ball, under the able direction of Mrs. Wm. Harcourt, was held on Saturday, Aug. 28, at the Hawthorne Inn casino, East Gloucester, and was largely attended. After the grand march, the special dancing features were presented. The first number was "The Idol's Eye," as presented in "The Merry Whirl." The next number was "The Quakeress Dance," beautifully rendered by the dainty Specht sisters and little Miss Torry, and a solo dance by Clair Specht. One of the pleasing features of the program was Miss Harriet Brazier's "Huntress Dance." The final number and real sensation of the evening was Jack Royce's impersonation of Ann Pennington in the "Shimmie Dance." He appeared in a bewitching costume of black velvet and golden curls, and the audience was not aware that little Miss Pennington was none other than Jack Royce, until he removed his wig. Master Royce had earlier in the evening been presented with a silver cup, when he appeared in masque in a beautiful Turkish costume in the grand march.

At the artist colony on the Rocky Neck shore, the painting class of Henry B. Snell, the New York artist, and Ruth Anderson Temple have been exhibiting work. The painters in the Snell class giving a very interesting show of individual work include Jane Peterson, Juliet Chisholm, Elizabeth H. Ingham, W. B. Imlach, Anne F. Goodbody, Annie H. Pemberton, Frances Hudson Storrs, Anna Fisher, Irma Kohn, Kathryn Logan Luke, Marian T. MacIntosh, K. Balfour, Helen K. McCarthy, Isabel Bronson Cartwright, Louise Grilk, Mary Nicholena MacCord, Estelle Ream Manon, Mary G. Riley, Gladys Brannigan, Cora S. Brooks, E. Martin Voguild, Edna Voguild, Nelly Walsh, Mabel R. Welch.

Two delightful one-act plays, "The Wonder Hat" and "The Turtle Dove," are being presented in the open this Friday afternoon in the orchard back of the Gallery-on-the-Moors, under the direction of the Gloucester College Women's club and the Gloucester Woman's club, for the benefit of the community league. In case of rain, the plays will be presented on Saturday, Sept. 4.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clay, of Chicago, have as their guest at "Finisterre," their Eastern Point estate, Mrs. Walter Barwick, of Toronto. Mrs. Barwick was a former summer cottage resident at Eastern Point. Mr. Barwick, her husband, a well-known Canadian barrister, was killed in a railroad accident some years ago. Mrs. Murill (Barwick) Holland, a daughter, is the guest of Col. and Mrs. John W. Prentiss, at their cottage near Niles Pond and the beach.

LABOR DAY

Monday, September 6

WERE he ever so benighted, or forgetful of his high calling, there is always hope in a man that actually and earnestly works. In idleness alone is there perpetual despair. There is dignity in toil; in toil of the hand as well as toil of the head. All labor that tends to supply man's wants, to increase man's happiness, in a word, all labor that is honest, is honorable, too."—NEWMAN HALL.

Labor Day has been set aside as a special "day off" for wage earners all over the country. It is to Matthew Maguire, of the Central Labor Union of New York city, that the credit is due for first actually putting the idea in execution, in 1882, though it was in Boston that the idea seems to have been born, and in 1894 Congress passed a bill making the first Monday in September a legal holiday.

The word "labor" has been defined as meaning "human activity put forth as a means to the production of goods." Thousands of years ago labor was carried on by a system of slavery, and later, in the Middle Ages, labor was a modified form of slavery known as serfdom. The serfs were bound to obey their lords, and, on the other hand, they had certain rights and privileges which the lords were obliged to respect. But this system was not suitable for a manufacturing and commercial people, and by degress it gave place to what is termed free labor, or the hiring of people at fixed wages. This was first done in England about five hundred years ago.

Labor Day is supposed to be the day in the year on which Capital and Labor lay aside their differences over their respective rights. Perhaps, who knows, they may be at peace, those two, for this one day this year, though truly the state of unrest has improved but little. Today, however, it would seem that the laborer has lost all conception of making adequate return for value received. He does not give Capital "best" in return for "best," and as a consequence the prices are soaring, and will continue to soar until the wage earner wakes up and actually goes to work! Let his put the best that is in him in his daily tasks, and, unconsciously, he will be creating an atmosphere of good will and peace. Instead of being an unpleasant necessity, work will then become pleasure, and it will prompt a feeling of just pride and satisfaction in labor well done. On the other hand every moment he loses now, means an indirect blow at the coming generation—at his sons and daughters upon whom the burden of straightening out the havoc he has wrought will fall.

"No man is born into the world whose work Is not born with him; there is always work, And tools to work withal, for those who will; And blessed are the horny hands of toil!

-JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL.

ROOSEVELT BANKS FOR CHILDREN

One of the Many Novelties Introduced by the Women to Create Interest in Reconstruction of Roosevelt Birthplace

THERE is little left of the house where Theodore Roosevelt was born in New York city, but people who loved : Mr. Roosevelt carried away during the alterations much of the material of which it was built. To illustrate, one man purchased the mantel-piece beneath which burned the grate fire where Theodore Roosevelt sat and planned in his boyish way some of the great things he was to accomplish in after years. Another admirer secured a staircase spindle which supported the balustrade down which Theodore, like all lively boys, was wont to slide to the floor below. Other relic hunters carried away bricks.

Now the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial association has purchased the land on which the house stood and has entered into a contract with a famous builder to reconstruct Theodore Roosevelt's birthplace just as it was when he lived there, and all the people who have parts of the old home are bringing them back to be used in the reconstruc-

The birthplace will be known as Roosevelt House. It will be filled with Roosevelt relics, from birds that he mounted in his boyhood to the weapons that he carried on the battlefield. It will include Roosevelt books and manuscripts and, in brief, interesting objects touching every phase of his many-sided life.

When the house is finished children may go there to read, study and learn. There will be plenty to interest them, and there will be lectures, books, and classes to make people Roosevelt-minded.

Because Mr. Roosevelt was a man of all the people the association is giving everybody an opportunity to help in establishing this institution. Any boy or girl may become a junior member of the Woman's Roosevelt Memorial association by paying twenty-five cents and he or she will receive a handsome bronze pin bearing the likeness of Mr. Roosevelt. To enable children to have a part in this work the association has cardboard banks which are an exact reproduction of the birthplace. These banks will be sent free to any child who wishes to save for this patriotic purpose.

Some of the best things Mr. Roosevelt ever wrote were his letters to his children. These letters (with the little drawings of birds and animals that he made on them) are published in a book—"Theodore Roosevelt's Letters to His Children:

The Woman's Roosevelt Memorial association will present a copy of this fine book to any junior member, boy or girl, who obtains twenty-five members at 25c each. Every boy and girl should have this book. It will be especially inscribed showing how it was obtained.

EXHIBITION IN AID OF "BOOKS FOR EVERYBODY FUND"

Dr. and Mrs. Mosher Open "The Mooring," at Marblehead—Many North Shore People Attend

ABOUT five hundred people visited the exhibition held at "The Mooring," Marblehead, last Saturday, in aid of the "Books for Everybody Fund" of the American Library association. The day was perfect for an indoor and out-door fete. The little English garden was very gay, and the brisk breeze made the racing yachts in the harbor a stirring picture. The visitors were very sympathetic with the exhibition that was arranged for them, and collectors who were there were kind enough to be very complimentary about the variety of specimens of china shown, the historical documents, the autographs, the old English jewelry, and the antique furniture.

Perhaps the most attractive part of the exhibit was the display of blue Staffordshire; the dining-table was arranged with a complete set of this ware. A pair of large and striking Sheffield candle-sticks glistened among the deep blue china, and the gleam of the silver was balanced by the sparkle of the old American tumblers and celery glasses. A rich white cloth completed the sumptuous picture.

The collection of lustre was especially rich. Most of the specimens were pink, but there were splendid examples of silver and gold lustre.

The autograph collection brought out favorable com-This was to be expected, as it contained fourteen signed silhouettes of Longfellow's Bowdoin class, the most valuable of which, of course, were those of the poet and of Hawthorne, two autographs of Paul Revere, three of Washington, one written when he was a colonel, and an autograph of John Glover, the Revolutionary patriot of Marblehead.

Most of the bedrooms at "The Mooring" are furnished with old furniture throughout. For instance there is a maple room, a room of mahogany, and a room in which the mahogany furniture is inlaid with maple. The old bedspreads in two of these rooms weré especially admired by the women who better than the men could appreciate the skill and the overwhelming amount of labor put into them.

One of the most attractive rooms in the house is the large attic. This room is used for an overflow library, a carpenter shop, a studio and a book bindery. It lends itself to many uses. It has been used by turns for dances, lectures, Red Cross work and exhibitions. For the American Library association exhibit it contained a display of autographs, war posters, and medals.

Librarians from neighboring libraries assisted in the exhibition. Some ten or twelve of these ladies dressed in old-fashioned costumes and made a most attractive exhibition as they served punch, or walked round the garden and grouped themselves about the roses, under the morning glory arches, or on the edge of the lily-pond. The old dresses were very beautiful in material and design. Some of them were particularly striking, especially an evening gown made in Scotland sixty years ago of silk embroidered especially for this dress in China. The ladies wore them most gracefully and with no trace of self-consciousness. put themselves on exhibition very graciously and allowed their gowns to be examined critically by the women visitors who flocked about them. Most of the men admired them from a distance; a few bolder ones professed a knowledge of materials and examined the gowns more closely. garden with the ladies in the brilliant costumes was like a page from an old Godey's Ladies' Book or a scene from a George Eliot novel. It lacked only a fountain and an archery court to make the reproduction complete. One of the dresses was worn at Lincoln's first reception in the White House and another at the Prince of Wales ball at the old Tremont theatre. Among the beautiful paisley and cashmere shawls was one given by Queen Victoria to a maid of Naturally, advantage was taken of the opportunity which the old costumes furnished to photograph various groups in different parts of the garden. Miss Amy Sacher, the designer, who is fresh from her work of staging moving picture plays was kind enough to give her services in arranging the various groups. The pictures should prove very attractive souvenirs of the garden and of the exhibition.

The trustees of the Marblehead public library are to be congratulated on their enthusiasm in standing back of the exhibition. The fund for the American Library association has not always met with the hearty support it should have. Some of the librarians in the state have felt that they could do little or nothing to help it along. They are either too timid to solicit money or too inexperienced to manage a This exhibition indicates, however, one attractive way in which money can be raised. Almost any New England town can arrange a similar exhibition.

The visitors at "The Mooring" frequently made the remark that Dr. and Mrs. Mosher were generous and public spirited in opening their home to the public. While they were naturally pleased by these remarks they replied that they were not to be thanked too profusely because they received as much pleasure as they gave. To have people like the things that you like, and to have them come to see them is the reward of collecting. In this case there was the further pleasure of helping a worthy cause, and perhaps in a measure pointing to the way by which others can help the same cause.

THE MAGNOLIA SHOPS NOTES OF INTEREST

By GLADYS H. RICHARDS

THE MAGNOLIA SHOPS still continue to attract large crowds of North Shore folk, in search of the new fall apparel. Many of the stores are remaining open this season until the first of October

The latter part of last week the large millinery opening at Lamson & Hubbard's was one of the attractions at the Magnolia Shops. Miss Granger was in Magnolia Thursday, Friday and Saturday with her wonderful selection of distinctive Paris hats. For sports wear there were attractive "sets"—hat and scarf combinations—which were very new and smartly becoming. The lovely little leather hats in white and various colors caused much favorable comment.

This week they are having their fall exhibition of furs on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. North Shore folk eagerly look forward to the fur opening at this select little shop each fall. The display this season seems to be larger and the furs more strikingly beautiful than ever.

A very handsome wrap of taupe squirrel extends to the bottom of the skirt, and has the bloused back effect. luxurious new square draped collar seems to add the last needed touch for perfection. Pour la jeune fille there is a mandarin jacket of mole and squirrel. The jacket is exquisitely lined with Chinese blue, to which a happy inspiration has added a deep band of Japanese gold embroidery.

The hats at Collins & Fairbanks are being much admired by the Magnolia shoppers, as are, of course, their furs, the French veils and handsome scarfs.

A pretty little toque of black velvet has a crown of peacock blue uncurled ostrich, while a duvetyne hat of brown has the all-over embroidery of a darker shade. There are simply loads of those lovely duvetyne hats that have the added advantage of being practical as well as becoming.

At Bonwit Teller's we find loads of pretty frocks, smart suits and lovely little hats pour la jeune fille, which have arrived only this week. A youthful little suit of Bedonier veldyne displayed in the window has the short flared jacket. A long drapery almost completely surrounds the skirt, and a wide draped girdle ties loosely on the side and is trimmed with little balls of fur. The short, narrow strips of fur which extend below the edge of the coat, and which are again introduced in the skirt drapery, and the high military collar also of fur, lend an air of modish distinction.

Fashion has been kind to folk of all ages in her selection of the winter coat wrap. The dolman with its tiny sleeves and deep collar is still "the thing," and promises to be fashionable for some time to come. They are comfortable, warm and most becoming. A brown veldyne coat at Bonwit Teller's is cleverly draped to form an almost invisible sleeve. It has a deep beaver collar, and tailor stitching forms its only trimming. Another coat that looks very well on is of juniper green and has the collar and cuff—which by the way is all that there is to the sleeve-of grey squirrel. Still another is a copy of a Jenny model and is made of cloud-grey duvetyne. This coat has the collar and cuffs of mole, and gracefully draped back.

A very pretty afternoon gown is of silver and blue net with a narrow strip of black beads. The over-tunic hangs straight from the neck, and the underskirt is of black satin, the wide velvet banded bottom only showing. Folds of the velvet softly gathered surround the tunic skirt and terminate in loops which give the effect of being draped.

A distinctive little afternoon gown is of brick red crepe de chine, with trimmings of satin of the same shade.

The gown has the new loop cuff of the satin.

A new shipment of hats has just arrived at Bonwit Teller's—copies of Reboux, Suzanne Talbot and Marie En passent, we notice that the new fall blouses to go with the new suits have also arrived.

A novelty that is finding favor at Ovington's is the parchment flowers in various very beautiful antique shades. The radium clocks are also claiming their share of attention. But the greatest treat of all is the Venetian glass table set which they have just received. This set consists of the goblets, finger bowls, tumblers and iced tea glasses, and is the first they have received since the war.

A stir was created on the avenue by the French opening at L. P. Hollander's last Thursday and Friday. Little French frocks and gowns, that were illusively beautiful in line and color, appeared as at the waving of a wand. This was their first opening of gowns this season.

The street dress, coat-like in appearance, is claiming a very important position in the fall wardrobe, for it is comfortable, practical and extremely smart. A "peep" into the tastefully arranged window reveals a street dress of blue duvetyne with a deep collar of grey squirrel. It has the long-tailored sleeve and modishly straight lines. Equally as desirable is the coat dress of cinnamon brown the keynote of which is distinguished simplicity. A row of buttons extending from the neck to the bottom on either side are its only trimming.

We find a very special treat in store for us at Schmidt's, as we poke around in search of old silver—a wonderful collection of old Georgian silver which the Magnolia shop has just received. There are the candelabra, salvers, coffee pots and so many other lovely pieces of the quaint old silver that everyone loves.

A handsome reproduction of the George III high salts and peppers would furnish an exquisitely handsome table

And everyone is looking forward to the French opening at Hickson's next Thursday, Friday and Saturday!

An hour spent in Mrs. Bill's shop with its quaint Oriental atmosphere is ever a delight. Each week new things appear, relics of the customs of the people of China and Japan.

Splendidly suited for an evening wrap is the priest's cape, exquisitely embroidered and lined with hand-woven linen. The poverty of the priest is depicted by the many patches in his clothing, and this cape is artfully made to suggest those patches, which, of course, adds to its interest and attractiveness.

Very beautiful is the teak wood bench, which is handsomely carved, and could be used in place of the English fender bench. The carved wood archways over the doors of this unique little shop are very difficult to get, Mrs. Bill tells us, but truly they are worth every effort, for they are very lovely.

THE APPEAL OF THE BEVERLY HOSPITAL for funds from Beverly, Manchester, Hamilton, Wenham and Danvers, should be honored by everyone in the communities served, who has an income from labor, property or investments. The hospital deserves and is having the loyal support of capable men and women as solicitors; loyal workers are responding to the call that has been made. A hospital is a primary need in a community. If there was no hospital near, the first task of the people of the Shore would be the organization of a hospital and the solicitation of funds for an equipment. Beverly hospital has a good building that needs enlargement to meet the demands of its growing field of service. It has an honorable record. It should be supported in its efforts to meet the new demands impelled by its success. It has had an honorable record for service well done. It needs the gifts of many new givers to maintain its present efficiency and to make progress. Who can realize the value of hospital service until an emergency arises! Such emergencies do arise every day and the sick, the expectant mothers and the injured are taken to the hospital. That it may be equipped for the emergency, it requires funds. municipalities do not appropriate funds for its support, as the Boston City hospital is maintained, for instance. The corporation is dependent entirely upon the income from its inadequate endowment and the voluntary gifts of friends. Hence the necessity of a campaign. An opportunity is presented to large givers to increase the endowment of the organization, and to small givers to give more generously by reason of the easy semi-annual payment plan. Larger gifts can be made than if cash payments were required. The high costs for materials have harmed every hospital. This should be recognized by all who have been regular givers and by those who propose to give in this campaign. work for funds can be a success if all will plan to have a part, however small, by making an honorable pledge on the card presented by the solicitor. The future of the Beverly hospital rests with the givers in this part of the county. Shall we have a successful, well-maintained corporation, or one embarrassed for funds? What is your answer?

Precious Stones have a money value in the market; but who can estimate in dollars and cents the value of old family jewels?

GOVERNOR Cox, the Democratic candidate for President, has made a serious mistake in making an attack upon the Republican party for having planned to raise a large campaign fund. His instinctive political ability has taught him that the American people object to large financial expenditures in political campaigns. The wish that he could find a cause for criticism in the tactics of the Republican party was the father to the attack which he made. The policy was negative and ill-advised and harmed him and helped the party which he attacked. Such methods of conducting a campaign always react. One may suspect that the multimillionaire candidate was endeavoring to start a back fire to offset criticism of his own personal resources for a cam-There are legitimate expenses that must be incurred by any large party. When the size of the country is considered, the aggregate of normal expenditure for ordinary and honorable campaign expenses, such as the maintenance of headquarters and publicity campaigns for the entire country, will be large. Again such amounts calculated per capita will not represent a large proportionate expenditure. No one expects either party to carry on a campaign without some expenditures, but Cox was right in coming to the conclusion that the party that had large funds would be subjected to severe criticisms, and that such criticisms would be registered in the votes cast in the coming election. He was wrong, however, in failing to keep himself within the bounds of facts as the findings of the investigation committee reveal. Mr. Cox has lost that argument for his election. When it was resorted to it revealed the paucity of arrows in the candidate's quiver.

It is the Irony of fate that the first rain since July 3d should bring destruction in its path.

NEW ENGLAND IS TO LOSE General Clarence R. Edwards. The War Department has ordered his transference to another station. As General Leonard Wood said, so he says, "I am a soldier. I obey orders." The General's removal from command in Boston is displeasing to the people of Massachusetts, and his reinstatement here, as Governor Calvin Coolidge prophesied, after the fourth of March, reflects public opinion accurately. General Edwards is respected for his efficient service overseas and has won the affections of the people for his devotion to his men. The public has not forgotten the injustice to General Leonard Wood and will not overlook this injustice to General Edwards. In going from his duty here because of his orders from his superior officers, General Edwards will carry with him the respect and admiration of his men and his large circle of friends. General Edwards has been untiring in his extra-military faithfulness. Every request made to him for personal service has been given courteous consideration. No reasonable request has been denied. The same painstaking care which he showed in providing for the boys overseas was evident in his service to many communities in New England. He has made many admirable addresses during his term of service. They have been upon a high ethical plane and of inestimable value in forming public opinion. He will be esteemed for his work's sake. The spontaneous tributes shown to him by the people all over New England bespeak the regard which everyone has for him. New England honors the General, regrets his departure and hopes the prophecies of the Governor of the state may be realized on March fourth next.

THE DROUGHT WHICH has injured Essex county crops has not been experienced in the northern New England states; otherwise the high costs for living would be higher.

The Results of the Last Census have been announced for the state of Massachusetts, including the specific figures for the city of Boston and for Suffolk county. The state has a population now of 3,851,615. The city of Boston has a population of 748,060 and the county of Suffolk numbers 835,522 inhabitants. These figures are significant, for they indicate that Massachusetts is not progressing rapidly, as far as the population is concerned. The growth of the state during the last ten years has not continued the rate of progress of the other decades during the century. The rate of growth of the population is the least in any decade since 1820. The reasons are not hard to find, for the war conditions account largely for the situation. Massachusetts has grown in the past because of the normal increase of the population incident to births, the settlements of young people from the northern New England states and the Maritime Provinces and from the immigrations from Europe. The unusual developments of western industrial centers have sent young men west, the war has restricted immigration over a long period from the Maritime Provinces and from Europe and the post-war conditions have not improved the situation. So Massachusetts should not be anxious concerning the decreased rate. All the other Atlantic border states will show a similar loss. The new census does show an increase in the population and the state will now have eighteen representatives in Congress instead of sixteen. The lower rate of increase in the population should prove an asset instead of a liability in these days when living costs are so high and when houses are so scarce. The sociologist recognizes the difficulties of "assimilating" the additions to the population of a state. The decrease in the rate will afford Massachusetts an opportunity to catch

The War will be over when everyone settles down to work.

THE PRESENT POLITICAL CAMPAIGN is puzzling the most astute politicians. There have been so many political changes since the last presidential election that a study of the figures by states of the election returns at that time confuses one's thinking. Since then America has been at war. The war industries caused many changes of residence. Thousands of negroes have left southern cities to make their homes in the north. Many technical and mechanical workers in the north have sought and found employment in the There has been a movement of workers from all parts of the country to the mechanical and industrial centers of the middle west. Prohibition has been established as a national policy. The women have been accorded the right of suffrage. The young men of the land have, because of the war, been under influences beyond those of their home towns. Many have been to Europe and many others have had protracted stays in military camps or in industrial war centers. All of these influences have had their effect upon political affiliations and views. With all these cross influences at work it will be impossible for anyone to make more than a shrewd guess. The largest influence will be the right of suffrage given to the women. The political tables cannot reveal any light upon the probable effect of their voting. The importance of this factor is shown in the skill and energy both organizations are showing in trying to win the votes of the women. The results of the election will be interesting, but no one can now make a sound judgment because all the facts are not available and will not be until after the election.

REMEMBER THE PRIMARIES on Tuesday of next week! Every sticker used with the name of James Jackson for state treasurer is a vote for the honor of the party.

THE EDUCATIONAL ADVANTAGES of the North Shore are unsurpassed. Every city and town is committed to a liberal educational policy and have excellent schools for all grades. There are excellent high schools in most of the towns. The city of Beverly needs a new building, but the students are given an excellent training despite the disadvantages of a poor school plant. The Normal school at Salem has a record that is the envy of its friendly competitors. There, advanced students with a gift for teaching, may acquire training for their life work. At the Essex County Agricultural school in Danvers an unusually excellent course is given. Those who seek a liberal college education or training in the arts, law, music, secretarial science or engineering will find schools in Boston. Boston university, Institute of Technology and Harvard university attract hundreds of students every year. There are excellent private schools presenting courses of study. With all these advantages the poor today enjoy benefits that the rich did not have in other years. Great advances have been made since the days when the only training afforded was in the winter term in the country communities of Massachusetts. To such humble beginnings the present educational development owes a great debt. In a small way the communities began their educational work, until now the training of the young has become one of the most important departments of community work. New England has learned that a liberal school policy yields rich rewards in the development of lives. The residents of the Shore today have great advantages at their very doors.

THE BEST and most glorious month of all the year!

THERE IS A NEED FOR expert legal advice in every large center such as the city of Boston to which persons who are in need of advice may appeal. The suffering and losses that are ignorantly borne because individuals have no relief in the way of obtaining information, cannot be overesti-To meet this peculiar need the Boston Legal Aid society was organized and for many years has been rendering exceptional service in its field. To it every philanthropy of the city may and has appealed. Its policy is a simple one. There is a staff of experts who engage a corps of young capable attorneys on a salary basis. To their offices, the unfortunate may come for advice and a moderate fee, or no fee at all, is charged. The results obtained have compelled the interest of capable and intelligent men on its board of management. The success which has attended the work of the society proves its need. The income of such a philanthropy does not assure its own self-support, otherwise the organization would inevitably become a commercial enterprise. This will be foreign to the purpose of the organization and defeat its humanitarian purpose. The organization has the financial support of many North Shore lawyers who live in the city and summer on the Shore, and it should be maintained. The success of the past is the promise for greater success in the future.

THERE HAS ALWAYS been a housing problem in the city of Boston. The present conditions are not new. The standards of living have improved and the modern family will not live in conditions that were unavoidable in the past.

THE INJUDICIOUS ACTIVITIES of the state treasurer could not be allowed to pass without censure by the Republican party. The policy of the organization has been formulated deliberately and fairly. Mr. Burrell failed to clear his record. It would have been a disgrace to the Republican party to have permitted his name to go before the people with its endorsement. The use of stickers with the name of a new candidate presented the only way to register a protest by nominating a new man. There are dangers in the plan, yet the risks must be taken. The misconduct of Mr. Burrell has had so much publicity the plan should prove successful. James Jackson, of Westwood, has been selected as the can-The selection of a capable man with banking and war experience is wise. His banking training prepared him for the work of the Red Cross society. His Red Cross affiliations will give him a political advantage that none can deny, for that organization won the esteem of the service men and the loyal support of all at home. It will be a triumph for Jackson and an honor to the state if he be nominated. The situation demands it and the sticker campaign should be encouraged by every loyal voter of Massachusetts.

THE SUMMER CELEBRATIONS of the tercentenary of the settlement of the Pilgrims at Provincetowvn and Plymouth are now matters of history, but the actual tercentenary observance cannot be held until December. Then the indoor observances will be in order.

- "My wife is for Harding. First time we ever agreed." Truly a marvelous thing has happened when a husband carries a campaign banner bearing this legend!
- "Babe" Ruth underwent an operation the past week for an infection on his left arm said to have been caused by a man-eating mosquito. What a little thing oft times brings the mighty to a low level!
- Uncle Sam is experiencing the discomfort of being a target for the coal barons. Admiral Benson, of the federal shipping board, has appealed to the Interstate Commerce commission for aid in obtaining coal at a reasonable price for government merchant craft. With coal at the mines at $4 a ton and adding $3 for transportation, it is evident someone is profiteering when the government is charged $18 to $20.
- Now that the railroads have raised the price of the fare it is up to the traveling public to do likewise.
- In Japan the telephone numbers 42 and 49 are said to be particularly unlucky. In the United States any number is unlucky if you are especially anxious to have it called in a hurry.

When he is elected President he will not try to run this government by himself or for himself."

Golden Thoughts

'Tis the coward who stops at misfortune;
'Tis the knave who changes each day;
'Tis the fool who wins half the battle,
Then throws all his chances away.

There's little in life but labor,
And tomorrow may prove but a dream,—
Success is the bride of Endeavor,
And luck but a meteor's gleam.

The time to succeed is when others,

Discouraged, show traces of tire;

The battle is fought in the home stretch—
And won—'twixt the flag and the wire.

- An attempt was made to interest the Massachusetts American Legion in the case of some of Boston's striking policemen, who are members of the organization. Fortunately for the Legion, the petition of the strikers was withdrawn without action.
- Milk prices will probably be higher next month to meet the new freight rates. When all increases are considered the consumer will pay FAR more than a mere 20 percent railroad fare increase.
- The man who was arrested for carrying 10 gallons of alcohol in his suitcase was detected by an inspector who thought the "vacationist" had rather too heavy traveling equipment. Light wines might have escaped detection.
- The motorist contributes $75 a year for every mile of highway in the United States, improved or unimproved. The motor vehicle owner is paying his share for the use of the roads.

- On Tuesday of this week the American Expeditionary Force passed into history. Its headquarters at Washington were closed. The A. E. F. is now a memory,—an eternal memory.

- Everything has an upward tendency. It is predicted that the next war will be fought 20,000 feet in the air.
- Hartford Times—"Food, clothes, shelter and heat are the four primal necessities of life, and it is only the first two that seem likely to become cheaper next year, and unfortunately the others are the very ones in which it is difficult to retrench. We can wear our old shoes and perhaps simplify our diet, but we cannot burn last years coal nor live in tents. The process of readjustment of prices must be slow and accompanied with losses as the rise was with great gains, but it must come."

Hope springs eternal in the human breast. That's why the pool of disappointment is always slopping over.

Seemed to hanker for my hook—

BEVERLY HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS

North Shore Towns will have Opportunity to Aid This Local Institution September 9 to 16

FINAL arrangements for the $100,-000 campaign for Beverly hospital are being made. The campaign will begin with a dinner to the more than 250 volunteer workers who will seek the subscriptions to be held in the City hall, Beverly, next Wednesday evening, Sept. 8. The seeking of subscriptions will begin the next day, and will continue until Thursday, Sept. 16. There will be nightly supper rallies of the workers beginning Thursday evening, Sept. 9 and continuing, except Saturday, until the campaign closes.

More than 200 workers already are enrolled, divided into teams of ten persons and a captain. There are twenty teams in Beverly, ten of men and ten of women; one large team in Manchester; a team of approximately fifty in Danvers; two teams, one of men and one of women in Hamilton and the same in Wenham.

MANCHESTER

Manchester public schools will open next Wednesday. Supt. Mackin will continue his work in Manchester until Oct. 1, when it is hoped a successor will be available.

John R. Allen observed his 91st birthday anniversary Tuesday. In spite of his more than four score and ten years Mr. Allen is still hale and hearty and may be seen busily engaged in his garden nearly every day.

Quite a lively interest is being taken in the series of baseball games between a picked up Manchester nine and a Beverly Farms team. In the 9th inning rally last Saturday, in the opening game, Manchester tallied enough runs to win by the score of 12 to 11. This week the game will be at Beverly Farms, and on Labor Day another game will be played in Manchester.

The manual training school of the Manchester troop of Boy Scouts will hold a sale of articles made by them during the past winter under the instruction of Stephen Henry Hoare. The sale will be at the scouthouse on the afternoons of Thursday and Friday, Sept. 9 and 10. Tea, cake and ice-cream will be on sale. Some of the articles on sale include umbrella racks, tables, book racks, calendar holder, towel racks, sleeve boards, stepladders, telephone stools, etc.—all very useful articles.

Manchester Man in Auto Accident Yesterday

Edward Barney, a mechanic at Standley's Garage, met with a serious mishap yesterday while trying out Capt. Raymond C. Allen's car on which he had been working. He failed to make a turn at a point near Brookbank Inn, Fresh Water Cove, Gloucester, and swerved across the road, striking and injuring a little girl, the daughter of Paul Black, after which he continued his erratic course to the opposite side of the street, bringing up with tremendous force against the wall at this point. The little girl was taken to her home nearby, where it was found, besides bruises, she was suffering from a compound fracture of the leg. Barney, who was taken by the Gloucester police on a charge of reckless driving, was unable to give a satisfactory reason for losing control of the

The front of the car was badly damaged. The machine was later towed to Standley's Garage.

Miss Fannie Knight is expected home today after a five weeks' visit at Wells, Me.

Mrs. B. J. Manion and daughter, Miss Mary Manion, returned Wednesday from a month at Jefferson, N. H.

The primaries will be held next Tuesday. The last opportunity to register before election—for men and women—will be Saturday, from 12 noon until 9 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Peart and Mr. and Mrs. William Hodgdon are planning on a holiday trip over the Mohawk Trail, leaving Sunday and returning the following Wednesday.

Joseph N. Lipman is closing the Manchester Flower Shop Saturday, Sept. 11, for the winter. Mr. Lipman announces that any of his stock, which consists of several varieties of ferns, palms, and table plants, can now be had at bargain prices. He also will be in a position to provide flowers for any occasion while the shop is closed, by communicating with him at his School st. residence.

An alarm from Box 52 called the fire department to the Manion place on Tappan st. Monday evening about 8 o'clock. The fire originated in an old shed which was being torn down back of the Manion residence. When the firemen responded they found that the boards had been saturated with kerosene as if to present a quick and ready response to the flames. Mr. Manion had left the place only a short while before. It is thought someone set the fire immediately after he left.

WITH MANCHESTER BOARD OF SELECTMEN

At a hearing held in the Selectmen's room Tuesday evening relative to the petition of the N. E. T. & T. The matter was laid on the table for one week, and was taken under advisement by the board.

Permission was granted the N. E. T. & T. Co. to set one pole and re-locate two others on School st.

Tellers appointed by the Selectmen for the primaries to be held on Tuesday next were Richard L. Cheever, G. A. Knoerr, Edward P. Flynn and Oscar B. Wing.

Ballot clerks appointed were Richard J. Baker, Theodore C. Rowe, Hollis A. Bell and Frank L. Floyd.

Members of the Manchester Boy Scouts are still laughing over their amusing time in camp last week, when they tried to initiate one of their adopted members, Leon W. Carter, who had gone along with the boys as one of the "grown-up" guardians. The boys planned to take Mr. Carter on a "snipehunting" expedition, which is a familiar game to all "rookies," who have experienced what happens when the would-be initiators lead their victim off in some lonely spot in the woods just at dusk and have him hold the bag to capture the "snipe" as it is routed from its hiding place in the under-brush, and the initiators disappear quietly, but conclusively, leaving their victim to find his way back to camp as best he can. The Scouts had initiated one of the younger boys, successfully, and planned to try it on Leonardo. He was "wise" to the game, but fell for it heart and soul. Everything went just as the boys planned it andso they supposed—their "rookie" held the bag as they faded away one by one Jacob Kitfield, one of our respected citizens of Manchester Cove, claims he has the champion turkey of the North Shore. Mr. Kitfield has one bird that had laid 90 eggs—one a day for 90 days—without missing,—and she is still laying. This is one of a flock of five, raised last year. Can anyone beat this record?

Postmaster Foster, of Manchester, Mass., and Postmaster Willis, of Manchester, N. H., are frequently troubled with misdirected mail, but recently a misdirected male has caused them considerable interest.

The following are excerpts from a letter from a Manchester, Mass., man, which was sent to Postmaster Willis, in New Hampshire:

"Dear Postmaster: Please help me find a nice woman for a wife. There must be some nice girl in Manchester looking for an honest American gentleman. I would like to hear from some girl from 25 to 45 years of age, five feet tall, with blue eyes and blonde hair, weighing about 125 lbs., an American and a Protestant. She must have good looks and a fine character like myself, also be neat and tidy.

"I have an automobile and like to enjoy myself and would like to have my wife do the same. I am 45 years of age; use no liquor and hate drink. I am a gentleman in every way, even if I do say so my-

-Order from Your Grocer-

"Please hand this letter to some nice, respectable girl or woman. I don't want a woman over 45 years of age and, remember, she must have light hair and be a blonde."

The sender enclosed a two-cent stamp with the request that the post-master turn it over to some applicant desiring to answer the letter.

Postmaster Willis was, apparently, considerably amused at this request of the North Shore man who is weary of single-blessedness. After cogitating over the matter for some time, he sent the following note to Postmaster Foster:

"Can't you take care of your patron's wants in above direction? I know you handle a lot of misdirected mail, but do you want me to handle this misdirected male? The requirements which he makes in his letter in regard to size, beauty, etc., I fear will send him to the marble shop,—that is the only place where they carve them out the way he wants them!"

There is a whole lot of truth in this saying clipped from an exchange: A person is rich by what he does not spend, wise by what he does not know, good by what he does not do, and is kept alive by the things he does not

LIBRARY NOTES

New Books in Manchester Public Library

A Number of books—other than fiction—have recently been received at the library. I wish to call your attention to a few of them. "South Sea Foam," by A. Safroni-Middleton, is one of the new books. There is much of adventure and you may learn much about the dusky inhabitants of the isles of the South Sea, and you may read about a number of the Polynesian legends. The author knew Robert Louis Stevenson in Samoi.

"Rising Above the Ruins in France," by Corrina Haven Smith and Caroline R. Hill, is a thought provoking book. It will be a revelation to anyone reading it. By photographs and description you are told of the terrible destruction caused by the invading armies and how nobly France has taken up the work of reconstruction.

Anything written by John Muir is worth reading, "The Cruise of the Corwin" is the story of a great expedition. The Corwin was sent into the Arctic sea in search of the ill-fated explorer DeLong and his ship the Jeanette. The material in the book is taken from the journal kept during the voyage.

age. "Enslaved and Other Poems" is the latest volume by John Masefield. "Enslaved," which gives the title to the volume, is a wonderful poem, great both as narrative and as literature.

"A Hunter's Camp-Fires," by Edward J. House, is a profusely illustrated work on hunting of big game. The animals hunted were moose, walrus, rhinoceros, giraffe, antelope, grizzly, mountain goat and caribou. Much territory was gone over, New Brunswick and British Columbia in Canada, the American West, and East Africa. The story of his adventures is well told. "The Night-Side of London," by Robert Machray, and illustrated by Tom Browne, is another of the new books. You are told much about the night life of this great city. You will find the book very entertain-

Do you want to find out something about the Alps, the St. Bernard pass and the famous hospice that has saved so many lives? If so be sure and read "Across the Great St. Bernard," by A. R. Sennett. The book has some two hundred illustrations.

The story of a water trip charmingly told is "From the Thames to the Nethcrlands, A Voyage in the Waterways of Zealand and Down the Belgian Coast." The illustrations add much to the value of the book.

"A Journal from Japan," by Marie C. Stopes, gives you much information about the island continent. The author was an educated woman who went to Japan for scientific study. She evidently was a keen observer and had good literary ability.

Next week there will be some new fiction. -R. T. G.

TO CHANGE LOCATION?

SHOULD BAND CONCERTS IN MAN-CHESTER NO LONGER BE HELD on Town Common?

The band concerts in Manchester the present season have again demonstrated their popularity, the final concert taking place last week and being attended by a large gathering of townspeople and visitors. For several years the taxpayers have been assessed for this form of amusement and, so far as is known, there is not any protest against this way of meeting the expenses for the summer concerts.

The Manchester police force is deserving of considerable credit for the manner in which the crowds were handled at the evening concerts. There were no serious accidents of any kind, although the possibility for the same always existed.

It has been suggested by many of the townspeople that the common is rather too small to accommodate the concert crowds. With automobiles lined along both sides of the street, with other cars constantly threading their way through the narrow passage between and with pedestrians crossing and recrossing, it is indeed remarkable that no one has come to grief during the hours when traffic conditions are especially congested.

Masconomo park, on Beach st., is admirably situated for the accommodation of the people. The present band stand could be moved to the park and properly fitted there with small expense. The matter of moving the seats from the town hall to the park could be handled by the authorities in charge, so that seating accommodations could be furnished at each concert.

If the place of holding the concerts was changed from the common to the park the taxpayers (all of whom contribute their share towards the entertainments), would be served as efficiently as in the past, and the possibility of costly accidents occurring along the main streets would be eliminated. When one considers the large number of autos passing through Central sq. for Beverly and for Gloucester, it is indeed remarkable that the town has not yet had any law suits for accidents due to the crowded conditions which exist in this section of Manchester every band concert night.

The matter of holding the concerts in Masconomo park next year may possibly be discussed at the annual town meeting next February. The BREEZE is of the opinion that the voters should give this matter their careful consider-Benjamin Beeman is spending a week in Manchester, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. Sandberg, Beach st.

A Harding-Coolidge banner was hung out in the square—at the Manchester House—Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Oliver T. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. Hollis L. Roberts and daughter, Helen, left yesterday, for a several days' motor trip through Massachusetts and Connecticut, having as their objective point New London, where they will visit for a day and will return after Labor Day.

Miss Margaret Henneberry, who has been of the office force at the Breeze plant the past summer, having charge particularly of "Who's Who ALONG THE NORTH SHORE," will conclude her work this week, and will have a rest of a week or two before returning to school this fall.

Many words of commendation have been expressed over the quick action of Tree Warden Smothers immediately following the thunder shower and wind Tuesday afternoon. School st., particularly, was strewn with branches of trees. Almost before the rain had stopped, Mr. Smothers was on the job cleaning up the debris. This is the kind of a town officer to have.

WEDDING BELLS

The wedding bells peeled forth Wednesday evening in Manchester. Three marriages were solemnizedall rather quiet, informal affairs.

Dupee—Semons

Miss Pauline Evelyn Semons. daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Semons, Pine st., was united in marriage Wednesday evening to Roger Sawyer Dupee, of Beverly. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride by the Rev. F. W. Manning, pastor of the Congl. church. John G. Semons, brother of the bride, and Miss Helen Dupee, a sister of the groom, acted as attendants.

Mr. Dupee is an electrician and is employed at the United Shoe Machinery plant.

SANBORN-WIDGER

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gott (nee Marion Widger), in Manchester Cove, at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, Mrs. Gott's sister, Miss Mary Ellis Widger, was united in marriage to Wm. F. Sanborn, of La-conia, N. H. Rev. H. E. Levoy, of the Baptist church, performed the ceremony, the double ring service being

The bride is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Widger. She was married in white crepe de chine and carried a pretty bouquet. The room was very attractively decorated with cut flowers.

Only the immediate relatives and a few neighbors and friends were present. Dainty refreshments were served following the wedding.

Thursday morning Mr. and Mrs. Sanborn departed for So. Berwick, Me., for a 10-day honeymoon trip, after which they will go to Laconia, where they will make their home on Court st. The groom is in the meat business in Laconia.

HARRIS-DUNHAM

Season Fast Waning—Breeze as an Index

As an index of the waning of the season the Breeze tells the story in no false notes. From an 84-page magazine of two weeks ago—August 20—the size has diminished this week to 60 pages, and next week it will still further approach the winter size of 32

The season is waning, people are leaving the Shore for their winter homes, schools are opening, thus drawing many families to their home towns.

With the passing of the summer the large force of employees that make the Breeze possible as America's largest summer resort weekly—according to statistics published by the Newspaper Manual—are leaving and returning to their former occupations in various parts of the country.

Miss Lillian McCann, the chief society writer on the Breeze staff for the past seven years, returned last Saturday to her home in South Bend, Ind., where she will resume her duties as school teacher next week. Miss McCann probably has entree into more North Shore homes than all other newspaper women—and men—combined.

H. B. Eldredge, general assistant at the office, left last Saturday for a two weeks' vacation at his home in Antrim, N. H. "Breezy Briefs," is the particular page that Mr. Eldredge handles in connection with his other details; many people have frequently mentioned their interest in that especial feature of the Breeze.

Norman Wilkins, of Beverly, head pressman at the plant for the past 12 years, is spending a week's vacation camping in N. H.

George A. Mayo, foreman of the printing plant, who has a position in Daytona, Fla., winters and comes to Manchester summers, will leave this month for the south, to resume the superintendency of a large plant.

The night linotype operator, and assistant advertising solicitor, Herbert S. Chase, has returned to his home in Sanford, Me.

And so it goes.—The Breeze plant is a bee-hive of industry in summer. One by one the crowd is leaving, and within a few more weeks the business will be down to winter schedule. The weekly magazine of 84 pages will have dwindled down to a small weekly of

GOVERNMENT'S PLAN IN CARING FOR DISABLED MEN AND WOMEN

The following statement in regard to increased facilities for caring for the sick and wounded men who survived the great war and who are now located in hospitals throughout the state of Massachusetts, is made by R. G. Cholmeley-Jones, Director of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance:

"It is unfortunate that there should be any uneasiness whatsoever among the residents of Massachusetts regarding the Government's program for the care and treatment of its ex-service men and women who have become disabled or diseased by reason of their military or naval service. The purpose of the Government is to improve materially the hospitalization program for the care and treatment of these exservice men and women. Because of the lack of beds in hospitals owned or operated by the Government it has been necessary in the past to care for the ex-service men and women in approximately 1,000 hospitals scattered throughout the country. In Massachusetts alone patients are distributed in approximately seventy-eight hospitals.

"To meet this situation the Government is making every effort to acquire by lease a property in Massachusetts to which patients can be transferred. A property has been examined at Worcester, known as the Summer st. department of the Worcester State Hospital, which is not in every respect ideal, but which would at least meet the emergency. There is strenuous opposition to the acquiring of the hospital property in Worcester, on the premise that it is not satisfactory.

SCOUTS HAD DELIGHTFUL TRIP

Manchester Boys Returned Sunday Evening From Week at Camp in New Hampshire

(Contributed)

THE Manchester Boy Scouts arrived home late Sunday evening after a week's trip to their camp at South Effingham, N. H., on Lake Province, having enjoyed one of the best outings they have ever had.

Tents and vegetables were donated by several gardeners and townspeople, for which the Scouts were much pleased, especially after coming in from a long hike or after going through a hard day's work learning the fine points of Boy Scout work.

The trip was made in one of the large trucks of Ernest Valentine, and left the scouthouse on Sunday morning at 7 o'clock for camp 100 miles away. Adam Chaulk, Alfred Hersey,

VOTE FOR JAMES C. POOR of 341 Sutton Street NORTH ANDOVER

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

He has served the County faithfully and his life-long record as a staunch Republican entitles him to the support of the voters.

In 1918 he was elected for three years. By the new law he is deprived of one year of his term and thus should be renominated on

TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 7TH, 1920

JAMES C. POOR, 341 Sútton St. North Andover, Mass.

Clifford Hildreth and Edward Croteau accompanied the party of Scouts which included Asst. Scoutmaster Allan P. Dennis, L. W. Carter, John Babcock, Walter Foster, Roger Baker, Percy Baker, Gardiner Bullock, Fos-ter Babcock, Robert Foster, Frederick Foster, Leroy Walen, Edward Murray, Russell Peters, Wm. Russell, Edmund Harris, William Gray, Max Sandberg, Robert Phillips, Charles Chaulk, Elkanah Keithley, Russell Dennis and Granville Crombie, cook.

The journey was through Essex, Ipswich, Newburyport, Dover, Rochester, N. H., Sanbornville, to South Effingham. The party met a machine in Ipswich, which had met with an accident, and after the Scouts gave first aid to the injured people, proceeded without any other excitement till Sanbornville, N. H., where Ansel Sanborn, the local proprietor of the moving picture house, was seen in his daily work about the house. After giving him a rousing salute, the trip was continued and camp was reached about 5 in the afternoon. At Berlyville the entire party had a light lunch and refreshments. The roads were in very good shape until a few miles before reaching their destination, when they encountered sandy roads. On arriving at the camp, tents were pitched and the boys were glad to get to sleep after a long journey.

On Monday morning, at 6.30, first call was sounded, followed 15 minutes later by assembly. The entire troop then went into the lake for a swim before breakfast, as was the case every morning. Breakfast was served at 7.30 which consisted of cereal, bacon and eggs, bread, butter and cocoa. The boys were then detailed to look after the camp, some getting wood for the cook, some going for water at a nearby well, and others detailed as kitchen police. At 11 o'clock each morning, just before dinner, and just before supper, the entire troop went to the lake for a swim. After dinner the first day the boys were allowed to go to the postoffice to mail some cards to their parents at home, and after that only when given permission, and under the care of some of the older Scouts. Supper was served each night at 6.30, after which most of the boys enjoyed baseball or golf. Taps were blown at 10 o'clock each night, but many of the boys were glad to turn in before that time.

Camp inspection was held every morning by the Scoutmaster, who went through every tent carefully, especially looking after the cooking utensils. On Tuesday some of the boys under the leadership of Joseph Dodge, took a hike to the Chorcora mountains and back, a distance of 35 miles, taking their dinner and supper with them, arriving home the next morning. Mr. Levoy took some of the boys in his machine to Warner, returning late in the evening. The rest of the boys went with Mr. Dennis to Sanborn mountain, where they had a fine view of the surrounding country. They brought home several souvenirs, found on the way. Most every night the boys enjoyed a camp fire. Thursday night the campers thought they should have a chicken dinner, so after a vote, the hat was passed around and enough was found to have their wish fulfilled, so early the next morning—Friday—detail was ordered to scout around and get some chickens and butter. After securing the chickens, they were cleaned and dressed. The older boys were allowed to go fishing in the pond, but the younger ones were only allowed to fish in the creek. Tent inspection was won by the tent occupied by Scouts Babcock, Phillips and Harris, with Foster's tent a close second.

The fishing in the lake was of the best, pickerel and bass being caught in large numbers.

Saturday the famous chicken dinner was served, and all hands did full justice to Chef Crombie's swell feed. Saturday evening a large camp fire was made and the neighbors were invited to listen to the singing and story telling. Sunday morning every one was up before the bugle sounded, and soon things were under way for the start home, leaving at 10 o'clock. The boys thanked all the neighbors who had been so kind to them during their stay at the lake, and in turn the residents said they were pleased to do anything for such a fine crowd of young gentlemen. The trip home was made in fast time, the only stops being for lunch and refreshments at Dover and Portsmouth. It was agreed by all that the camp meeting of 1920 was the best ever.

BEVERLY HOSPITAL

INCIDENT TO CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS THE DIRECTORS MAKE THIS STATEMENT

In announcing the big organized effort to provide funds to insure the continuance of the work of the institution, the directors of the hospital made the following statement:

"In spite of the fact that every one has been called upon to give generously for many worthy objects, the Directors of Beverly hospital feel that they can no longer postpone asking those who live within the district served by the hospital for substantial assistance.

"During the last four years receipts from all sources have not begun to meet our rapidly growing expenses, and in spite of every economy, a deficit has accumulated which must be made good, if the hospital's work is to be continued on the basis that the towns served are demanding of it.

"It has been deemed unwise to make any extensive repairs on the hospital property, or to purchase much needed equipment during recent years, but we are faced now with the alternative of making a considerable outlay in these directions, or else seeing our present plant deteriorate and become increasingly expensive and difficult to operate.

'The past few years have amply demonstrated that the bed capacity of the hospital is not sufficient to meet the requirements of the communities it serves, and many worthy cases have had to be turned away that should have been accommodated. The need for more rooms and additional space for maternity cases is imperative.

"Our kitchen facilities would, of course, have to be increased if the bed capacity of the hospital is enlarged, but they are much too small even for the present plant. Through lack of refrigerating space, and space for dry storage and root vegetables, the hospital is unable to buy in quantities and at the most favorable prices, which of course, largely increases the cost of the food served.

"Our laboratory and X-ray facilities have become inadequate, and although we have a fund for increasing these facilities, building costs have risen to such an extent that a larger fund is necessary

"It is felt that the money asked for is absolutely necessary and that the people living in the district served by the hospital should consider contributions as adding to the value of their own property and the assets of their communities. It is clear to the Directors that unless the money asked is forthcoming, the hospital cannot be properly carried on."

D()NOT APPRECIATE OUR BEAUTIES, SAYS COR-RESPONDENT

Editor North Shore Breeze:

May I suggest through the columns of the Breeze that the beautiful exhibitions of the North Shore Horticultural society be more widely adver-

"The only disappointing feature was the smallness of the attendance, which was in no way commensurate with the amount of labor and expense involved in producing the exhibit." This quotation is from a Boston paper.

Manchester is fortunate in having this society and if each and all would assume an individual responsibility in making it a success this effort would be a small equivalent for the education and beauty revealed in these flower and vegetable exhibits of hothouse and out-door productions.

Tourists motoring through the village would be pleased to avail themselves of the privilege of seeing this scene of beauty so consistent with the beauties of the town.

A few attractive posters along the line of travel would appear cheery and give our visitors an invitation to partake of our beauty, and be in keeping with the summer holiday spirit.

Yours for progress and coöperation, -An Interested Resident. Sept. 1, 1920.

We were greatly shocked and saddened to learn of the sudden death of Rev. Edgar C. Abbott, Ph.D., of Boston, who was to have given his Shakespearian lecture-recital on Anthony and Cleopatra on Tuesday morning at "The Mooring," the residence of Mrs. Wm. Austin Tucker, Norton's Neck, West Manchester. At the request of Mrs. Tucker, Dr. Eaton informed the goodly number of women who had come to hear Dr. Abbott's lecture, of his death and paid a just tribute to the memory of a strong personality, a master of his art and a choice child of God.

The Magnolia Athletic association was recently formed by a few of our public-spirited men and already it has sold over 50 membership tickets. Among those who are most prominently identified with this organization are Gilbert Ryan, its first president, and E. C. Lucas, its secretary and treasurer; Michael Kehoe, Edward Ballou, W. B. Richardson, Lafayette Hunt, William Hunt, Fred Dunbar, Frank Dunbar, Lee Wolfe, Geo. Mc-Lean, S. Truman and Leon T. Foster. That such an organization has a place in the social life of this community there can be no question. During the winter, especially, it ought to do its best work for the young men and others in this village. The Men's clubhouse should, and doubtless will, be the center for its winter activities. This association has organized a baseball team with E. C. Lucas as manager and Fred Dunbar as coach. The team will play the Odd Fellows at Manchester Friday, at 6.15 p. m., and on Labor Day morning it will play the Electricians on the Wilkinson field, Magnolia.

NOTES FROM THE WOMEN'S CLUB

The ice cream party last Thursday is a thing of the past. It was a happy party and the ice cream was "wonderful!"

During the evening Chi-Chi, the famous Chinese fortune teller from Miss Cleveland's shop, told fortunes—very interesting ones—and promised that numerous wishes would be granted well, some time.

Miss Helen Cunningham and Miss Ellen Holloran, of Worcester, sang, accompanied by Miss Gladys Underwood, of Orange.

Later, each girl was given a clothes pin, tissue paper, 'needle and thread, and were told to dress the clothes pin as a doll.

The prize was awarded to Miss Abbie Bierne, of the Oceanside. Her doll, in its dainty blue dress, cape and bonnet, was very fetching. All were very cleverly dressed. His Satanic Majesty, with horns, hoofs and tail, dressed by Miss Mary Bassett, of Worcester, was very clever, indeed.

The party broke up at a late hour with expressions of thanks to the generous donor of the party.

On Wednesday evening a few girls gave Miss Kane a good-bye party. Miss Kane has for several seasons had charge of "the girls" dining room and her waitresses gave her this party as a surprise. She was presented with a string of pearl beads.

Next Monday evening the last dance of the season will be held at the club. After that date our members will be small, indeed. Every room has been full this summer and will be so until after Labor Day, and some will remain much later.

Saturday evening will be a great night for the house guests.

"house dinner night." Last year the dinner was given in the clubhouse, but this year it has been decided to visit "The Tavern" in Gloucester for a real shore dinner.

At the Farms school the same corps of teachers as last year will be in charge, with one exception, Miss Elizabeth Harding, for a number of years one of the popular teachers here, has been promoted to the new school in Beverly and Miss M. Maude Welch, of Salem, succeeds her.

The waning of the season has apparently been an incentive for a large attendance at West Beach this week. Many have taken advantage of the excellent warm and pleasant days to make the most of the short period left. As schools open next week this will practically take away from the beach a large group of children, who have practically spent all of their time there.

In last Saturday's game at Manchester between the team of that town and Beverly Farms, Manchester won by a rally in the ninth inning by a score of 12 to 11. It was an interesting contest all the way through. The same teams play tomorrow (Saturday) afternoon at the Beverly Farms playgrounds and on Labor Day afternoon at Manchester. The feature that makes these games interesting is that all the players are local and live in one or the other town; none are being paid for their services.

Let Go of Many Things, a Recipe for Contentment

Do not hang on to the things that keep you back, that make you unhappy. Let go of the worry; let go of the anxiety; let go of the scolding, fretting and fuming; let go of the criticism; let go of the anxious, overstrenuous life; let go of selfish linings; let go of the useless, the foolish; let go of the Sham, the false; let go of the straining to keep up appearances; let go of the superficial; let go of the vice that cripples, the false thinking that demoralizes, and you will be surprised to see how much lighter and freer and truer you are to run the race and how much surer of the goal.

If you have had an unfortunate experience, forget it. If you have made a failure in speech, your song, your book, your article; if you have been placed in an embarrassing position; if you have fallen and hurt yourself by a falsestep; if you have been slandered and abused, do not dwell upon it. There is not a single redeeming feature in these memories, and the presence of their ghosts will rob you of many a happy hour.—The Optimistic Life.

COAL POCKET AT FARMS?

Public Appears to be Against the Proposition—Opposition Strong at Hearing Monday

The proposition to erect a coal pocket at Beverly Farms, on the property off West st., on the opposite side from the railroad station, appears to be meeting with opposition from nearly all angles.

A hearing was given the petitioner—William Till, of Manchester,—Monday evening, before the board of aldermen at Beverly City hall. The summer colony was largely represented, as well as the local residents of the Beverly Farms-Pride's Crossing district.

The council chamber was crowded. Mr. Till stated to the board that he wished to erect a coal pocket on land owned by him off West st. He was perfectly aware of the opposition that he would meet and had secured a petition in favor of his project with 48 signatures. He stated that he had not very much to say except that he wished to be allowed to do business and get a living.

The mayor asked Mr. Till if he represented himself in this matter and he replied that he did.

George P. Carver stated that he had prepared the plans, that it was a small pocket, to hold some 350 tons, would be closed in, and there would be practically no dust or noise.

Samuel Vaughn, counsel for the opposition, asked Mr. Till several questions, one, where he resided, and he replied in Manchester. It was also brought out that Frank P. Knight, of Manchester, who is interested in the coal business there, was to advance the money to finance Mr. Till's project.

Mr. Vaughn then put on Frank L.

Mr. Vaughn then put on Frank L. Woodberry, James McDonnell, M. T. Murphy, W. C. Newton and Mrs. Newton, John D. Knowlton and H. E. Morgan, all of whom spoke in protest against the erection of the pocket, on the grounds that it would cause a deterioration of property values, and that it would be more or less of a nuisance. Rev. Neilson Poe Carey, rector of St. John's church, spoke both for himself and his church, in protest. He said that the wardens and vestrymen had voted to protest the granting of the petition. They were trying to beautify and improve their property, and were strongly opposed to the erection

Mr. Bradley, is one of our chief assets. People come here because they can enjoy the sea and woods unmarred by any commercialism and we should keep the Shore as it is now and not admit anything of the kind.

Mr. Bradley told of his purchase of the only coal yard that the Farms had and of beautifying the triangle in the vicinity of the site of the proposed coal pocket, at his own expense. He was glad to do so, but he hoped that the city council would not do anything to mar that beauty.

He spoke of the heavy travel now on West st., and with coal trucks coming and going, an element of danger would enter into this question. There are many other strong objections, said Mr. Bradley in closing, and I don't believe this board wants to do anything that will detract from the beauty of the city, or keep people from coming to our Shore, and I hope the board will not grant this petition.

Rev. Clarence Strong Pond, pastor of the Beverly Farms Baptist church, said that Mr. Knight told him that he was about to secure the property in question; thought it would be to his advantage. That very day coal was selling in Beverly for $15.25, and in Manchester $17. The question of detriment to the North Shore as a residential section and danger of loss to some of our assets was brought out by Mr. Pond.

Mr. Vaughn, in closing, summed up the arguments made by the people who spoke in protest. There must be noise and dust, it is impossible to unload coal without it. This commercial proposition would tend to a reduction in our assets, our taxes, and the majority of the people of Beverly Farms do not want it.

Mr. Till had the closing word. He said he came here alone, he had no counsel, all he wanted was that his petition to build a coal pocket be grantOLIVER T. ROBERTS

Theatres

STRAND THEATRE, LYNN

From sunshine to soapsuds and from curls to collars—soiled ones to be laundered at ha'penny apiece—is the transit accomplished by Mary Pickford from her previous efforts to the greatest achievement of her screen career, "Suds," the principal attraction at the Strand theatre, Lynn, the week of Sept. 6.

"Suds" is a whimsical, pathetic, delicate little romance of a heart-hungry drudge in a French hand laundry in the slums of London, who weaves a romance around a shirt left by an unknown customer and never called for. Who can tell but that the customer is a millionaire or a prince. The little girl in the laundry is sure of it and weaves wonderful dreams around it. Then comes the owner, a most com-monplace Cockney, and the little drudge hands it back to him and buries her head in her arms as the picture ends. It is all very delicate, delightful and unforced as well as being replete with ingenious and amusing touches. Especially amusing is Mary's rescue of a broken-down horse which she leads in out of the rain to her own bed room. The whole production is a credit to Miss Pickford.

Other attractions on the same program will include Wm. J. Flynn's sensational mystery story of the Secret Service, "The Fakir;" a new Mack Sennett comedy, "The Quack Doctor." featuring Louise Fazenda and John Henry, Jr.; screen snapshots of prominent movie stars in their own homes and engaged in their own amusements and Strand Topical Review.

Miss Elizabeth Reese Lloyd, soprano soloist at the Ben Avon church in Pittsburgh, Pa., will be the vocalist MYOPIA'S 24th horse show, held on Labor Day at Hamilton, showed that the horse has lost none of its favor as a provider of amusement. Fully 10,000 saw the show in some of its stages, it is estimated - America's greatest out-door horse show one North Shore enthusiast terms it. Automobiles by the hundred were parked in every available foot of space in view of the practice polo field, on which the various classes were shown.

Opening at 10 o'clock in the morning, the last class, the Master's challenge cup with 31 entries, was finished just before five o'clock. The show was run off with clock work precision under the direction of a committee, consisting of James W. Appleton, M. F. H., of Myopia; Thomas G. Frothingham, H. P. McKean, Jr., Frederick Ayer and Bayard Tuckerman, Jr. The judges were Quincy A. Shaw, 2d, F. S. Von Stade and John P. Bowditch.

All the classes were well entered and competition was of the keenest sort. The classic event as usual was the master's challenge cup with the hunters put over a series of seven jumps, rail, brush and wall. There were very few spills during the event. Norman Vaughn, a youngster, had a toss as he was going over one of the rail jumps and fell in such a way that he went astride the fence. He clung to the reins,, lifted himself to his mount, and finished amid applause. Features were the riding of Mrs. Neil W. Rice and Mrs. Frederick Ayer, sister-in-law, Mrs. Rice winning the blue ribbon on James E. Pepper and Mrs. Ayer winning third on Traveler. Second and third were won by horses owned by Charles G. Rice, father of Mrs. Ayer and father-in-law of Mrs. Rice.

A feature of the afternoon was the appearance of Judge Wm. H. Moore, of Rockmarge, Pride's Crossing, tooling his famous four, the Rockmarge grays, and as the outfit attached to the yellow and black coach wove in and around the jumps, the great gathering gave to him an ovation. Following is a summary of the classes:

Class Two, saddle horses for junior riders. First class won by Wiggins, owned by Mrs. John S. Lawrence; second, Checkers, owned by Herbert W. Mason; third, Golden Bantam, owned by Miss Janice Vaughn. Second class, won by Minnie, owned by Charles G. Rice; second, Real Wonder, owned by George C. Vaughn, Jr.; third, Miss Galen Davis, owned by Frederick "SUNSET HILL," the delightfully situated home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Harry Brown at Beverly Cove, has a garden in which the central feature is a charming little pool. Rosecovered rocks make a ledge of interest beside the pool with its soft sound of trickling water.

Four rustic gates, one on each side, make up the other particularly noticeable feature of the garden. Three large, rustic gateways with arches and one smaller archway are the means of entrance into this charming garden spot of roses and old-fashioned flowers. One of most charming gardens on the North Shore—"Sun Dial," Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Farnum's place overlooking the ocean, at Magnolia

MR. AND MRS. HENRY W. FARNUM, of Chicago, drew much sentiment about their beautiful seashore home at Magnolia when they erected a handsome sundial a few years ago and named the place "Sun Dial." Robert Browning's well-known lines on life are used for the motto:

Grow old along with me! The best is yet to be.

The Farnum dial stands in the midst of the rose garden on the rocky terraced ledge at one side of the cottage. If one wishes to be sentimental about it, it is an easy thing to imagine, as the poets have, that his simple altar-like structure with its silent heart-language is a garden god admonishing us to higher things.

Roses and many other flowers bloom profusely about the grounds and in the garden spot. No garden in Magnolia is large, but these distinctive little seaside gardens planted among the sunny rocks produce a wealth of brilliantly colored blooms that only Magnolia sunshine and their nearness to old ocean's ozone can produce.

"Sun Dial," with its picturesque situation and delightful lawns and garden, is one of Magnolia's most charming homes.

HE agricultural show at Topsfield last Saturday was slimly attended. The days of the Essex County Agricultural society fair are on the wane if one can judge by Saturday's exhibition, for not only was there a small attendance, but the exhibits were few and far between, the best show being the representative cattle from the Essex county farms, and the blue ribbon horses, together with a small, but interesting, showing of poultry. The large tent was not erected this year

The jumping of the horses of the Myopia Hunt club was the principal feature of the afternoon, the stables of Mrs. Charles G. Rice, George S. Mandell and George C. Vaughn, of Hamilton, John S. Lawrence, Thomas Peirce, of Topsfield, and others being represented.

There were three classes in the contests over the hurdles for ponies, for hunters and pairs of hunters. The prize winning ponies were Submarine, first; Sheriff, second; Burton Girl, third, and Golden Fleece, fourth. Young George Vaughn and his brother, Norman, rode the ponies Mrs. Rice's Buckthorne, ridden by Mrs. Ayer, won the blue ribbon in the hunter's class of jumpers; Captain Geo. Vaughn's horse, second, and Sentinel, a Myopia Hunt club horse, third, with Sensitive owned by John S. Lawrence, fourth.

In the jumping pairs, Germaine and Seneschal won first; Buckthorne and Texas, second; Sentinel and Silver Streak, third, and Captain and Ishmael, fourth.

There was no hunt this year, owing to the fact that the neighboring farms had not yet harvested their crops.

Mrs. J. S. Ford has returned to her cottage on Fuller st., Magnolia, this week, after spending the summer at Brookbank Inn, Fresh Water Cove, Gloucester.

MRS. WILLIAM H. COOLIDGE and Mrs. George E. Warren vied with each other for honors at the polls, in Manchester, Tuesday. While Mrs. Warren has the honor of being the first woman in Manchester to enter the polling booth and receive a ballot, Mrs. Coolidge has the distinction of being the first woman to actually cast a ballot, under the new regime of suffrage for women.

According to reports from other towns and cities of the Commonwealth, Manchester ranks high in the percentage of registration for women, and of the total of 275 women registered, 104 cast their ballots at the primaries Tues-This is about 40 percent of the total registration—and

A HOSPITAL SAVES LIFE

More than 200 generous-hearted men and women who are calling on our citizens this week are crusaders in the cause of humanity. Their object is your most generous subscription to help Beverly hospital.

They seek money because the hospital, with its splendid staff of physicians and surgeons, and its tender, devoted nurses, can turn this money into health and happiness, and lighten the suffering of the afflicted.

Your dollars will save the lives of those who, except for the fact that your hospital stands ever ready to admit the victim of illness or disaster, would pass to the great beyond.

$100,000 must be raised for Your Hospital IN ONE WEEK

Beverly hospital belongs to you and your fellow citizens. It exists solely to relieve human suffering and save human life. It never has made a cent and never expects to, because it is not operated for profit, but for the public good.

It must raise this fund, or it will have to continue turning away many of the scores who seek its life-saving and life-giving ministrations.

And when you write your subscription remember that you may pay in six semi-annual installments. Give and give liberally, for your subscription may save life, and certainly will be a boon to the suffering.

Mrs. Ernest Wilcox, of Hambrook Court, near Bristol, England, is sailing Sept. 18 on the "Coronia" for her home, after spending about two months with her son-inlaw and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Reece (Nancy Devereux Wilcox), in Hamilton. Mrs. Wilcox has been delighted with our charming North Shore homes, many of them with all the beauties of English homes plus so much more that is modern in the way of practical conveniences.

By another winter the memorial building in Hamilton given by Mrs. George Snell Mandell will be, no doubt, caring for the wants of the community. Children and young people will be helped through this building, for the interests of whom a strong sentiment exists in Hamilton, fostered by the Mother's club. The American Legion will be welcomed to the building, also.

Swimming pools were the subject of an illustrated article in Saturday's Transcript, two weeks ago. The Russell Burrage pool at Preston pl., Beverly Farms, a freshwater pool within a court around which the house is built, was illustrated. The great saltwater pool on the R. T. Crane, Jr., place in Ipswich, and the swimming pool built within a house on the W. Harry Brown grounds at Beverly Cove were the others mentioned and illustrated. If the Transcript man had walked over to "Four Corners," in Hamilton, the home of Editor George S. Mandell and Mrs. Mandell, he would have seen another very pretty out-door pool worth writing about.

Christmas Gift Buying in September

There is only one other shop in all America like Ovington's Shop in Magnolia and that is Ovington's Shop in New York. At either place you can select the smartest of gifts, prizes and decorations.

Many of our patrons are now selecting their gifts for Christmas, saving themselves the rush and bother of last-minute buying. Distinction of the wares and the modesty of the prices make the idea better than a new time-saving device.

ALONG THE CAPE ANN AND GLOUCESTER SHORE

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

CAPE ANN. — Once again the autumn season has come around and Cape Ann is bedecking herself with the golden rod and purple aster. Although Labor Day is really the hotel mark completing a summer season and beginning the autumn booking, a great many guests will remain for two weeks or more. Hundreds of people, however, left town on the holiday. The charm of the North Shore the entire autumn season is becoming more widely known as it may be heard from cottagers who remain here.

The summer contingent had the privilege of witnessing the field day and carnival of the Gloucester fire department at Stage Fort Park on the holiday. It gave an opportunity of viewing the extent of the fire protection service, hose coupling, etc., and even the old "handtubs" were brought out in the parade and on the field of action once more.

The mine-laying fleet of the U.S. navy which has been so picturesque in Gloucester harbor the past month has taken its departure. The entertainment of the officers and men by the city and at the various hotels along the Shore has been much appreciated. Instead of the navy blue, the khaki is now in evidence on the streets, the 42d Coast Artillery being located at Rockport for gun target practice.

An interesting exhibition of paintings was given by Ruth Anderson Temple at her studio on Rocky Neck, near the marine railways, last week. The young artist, whose residence is in Boston, shows versality in her work by the many motiffs in marine landscape and figures. Flowers and still life are also the clever work of the artist. Her beach scenes in sunlight and gray day have splendid values and a portrait of Mrs. Gertrude Bourne, the artist, of Ipswich, is well painted.

EASTERN POINT. — The arrival of the holiday took many hotel guests away from East Gloucester and with the exception of the regular weekly dances things socially will be rather quiet the balance of the month. The artist ranks of the colony are also being broken the present week, although a number of painters will remain on for further work under changing conditions of light and color.

Henry Breckenridge, the Philadelphia artist, who has conducted a large summer school in East Gloucester, has returned to Philadelphia.

Morris H. Pancoast, of New York, gave an exhibition of his summer work at one of the Rocky Neck avenue studios last week-end.

Work has started for the new residence of Col. John W. Prentiss at Brace's Cove, Eastern Point, on the sightly tract of property which Col. Prentiss purchased two years ago. The house, to be erected of solid granite drilled from the shore ledges, will be one of the finest along the North

Mrs. Susan H. Bradley has been holding an exhibition of her color drawings at Inner Harbor Inn, Rocky Neck.

Walter L. Palmer, the landscape painter, of Albany, N. Y., whose snow scenes are well-known in the exhibitions, has converted a blacksmith shop on Rocky Neck ave. into a very attractive studio. Mr. Palmer acquired the property two years ago and seeing the possibilities of a good studio made improvements and it is now one of the best in the colony. It is located at the water's edge, where the tide swirls among the rocks and the sea weed, with a fine view of the cove. The interior of the studio is pleasing in tone and fish net, globes, vessel, figure head carvings and a number of Japanese carvings make it all in all interesting. Mr. Palmer has been busy on snow scenes. He is the son of Erastus Dow Palmer, the sculptor of prominence, who died in 1904.

A musicale of a delightful character was given recently at "Bayberry Ledge," the summer home of Prof. Charles F. Bradley, Annisquam, in aid of the fund for the new maternity ward of the Addison Gilbert hospital, of Gloucester. The vocal soloists were Henry Parsons, Miss Angela Diller, pianist, and Fritz Hirt, violinst. Miss Diller's selections were "To the Sea," by MacDowell; "Romance," by Schumann; "Pipes of Pan," by Godard, and "Nocturne," by Chopin. Mr. Parsons sang "Mattinaa," Tosti; "A Che Pensi," De Leva; "Primavera," Tirindelli; "Douglas Gordon," Kelly; "A Smile," Ronald; "My Lovely Celia," Monroe; "Mother o' Mine," Tours. Mr. Hirt's charming violin numbers were "Sicilienne," Francoeur; "Larghetto," Nardini, and "Praeludium Allegro," by Pugnani-Kreisler.

Howes, chairman; Mrs. Charles F. Bradley, Harry H. Wiggin, Felton Bent, J. E. Griffin and Mrs. Jennie Moxon. Miss Annie E. Fisher heads the committee on library and Tracy Hoppin, the artist, of the Home Garden club.

The masque ball at the Annisquam Yacht club (Aug. 28) was a pleasant social event, spectacular in the show of costumes. There was a large attendance and an orchestra furnished music. Mrs. Henry Hooper and Mrs. B. F. Folsom were the matrons and they also presided at the tea urn at the afternoon's social tea at the clubhouse. Among the many picturesque costumes at the ball were Douglas Guiler, sailor;; Jack Hooper, ballet girl; Richard Sherman, Spanish nobleman; Beatrice Bayne, Yama, Yama; Brooks Stevens and Lucius Hill, pirates; Louise Hill, mandarin; Ruth Sircom, Turkish lady; Georgianna Hawkins, Margaret Chandler, Chinese women; Blanche Borden, Joan Borden, Pierrette; Roy Clark, artist; Wesley Pear, Dutch girl; Jack Waters, colonial gentleman; Julius Sebel, crusader; Gertrude Wiggin, chorus girl; Jack Rogers, Mexican; C. BASS ROCKS.—The season as a whole at the Bass Rocks colony has been a very prosperous one. The hotels have been crowded with guests and all the cottages were taken for rental early in the season. Many of the hotel guests departed the present week, and also several of the cottagers. Already many houses have been engaged for next year.

Col. M. E. Carthew Youstrom and family have spent a pleasant season at Bass Rocks. Col. Youstrom is a retired British officer. They spend their winters in St. Augustine, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wicks Brown, of Brookline, who spent their summers formerly on Beach rd., Bass Rocks, have been located all this season in their cottage on Page st., which they purchased last year. The Browns have named their cottage "Happy House," for it is true that all are happy in this cozy place, situated near the edge of the golf links and the long stretch of green that rolls toward the blue sea. Three happy children are Rachel, Deborah and Mary Letitia Brown.

Augustus Groos, of San Antonio, Tex., has been the guest for several weeks of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Chandler, of Beach rd., Bass Rocks. Mr. Groos is a business partner of Mr. Chandler.

Alfred M. O'Neil, of Albany, N. Y., has joined his wife and daughter at the Thorwald, Bass Rocks.

Among the cottagers to remain late in the season are the Jerome H. Remicks, of Detroit. Mr. Remick is the prominent music publisher. The family is occupying the big colonial Stacy house, on Atlantic rd. The Remicks are among the most efficient saddle riders on the North Shore. Mrs. Remick, who uses the side saddle, has for a mount the chestnut hunter "Thunderer," and accompanying Mrs. Remick often is Mrs. Jacobson, of Cincinnati, also of the Bass Rocks colony, on a handsome black horse, "Tar Baby." Twelve-year-old James Remick has his pony, "Charlie Chaplin," and his brother, Jerome Remick, 17 years old, is also a good rider.

The Saturday night dance at the Bass Rocks golf club last week was a particularly enjoyable occasion. were many people out and advantage was taken of the good time at the ending of the season. The Jefferson-Johnson Boston jazz orchestra furnished splendid music.

The recent two-ball foursome at the Bass Rocks club was won by Miss Sharp and E. B. Sargent.

George Drovine, of Philadelphia, was a guest at the Moorland, Bass Rocks, this week, driving here in his car, en route to Philadelphia, from a few weeks' stay in the White Mountains.

Mrs. W. M. Baldwin, of Cleveland, Ohio, who is spending a few weeks at Hotel Thorwald, Bass Rocks, has been joined by her husband, from the west.

NNISQUAM.—The society play held in Village hall, Annisquam, by members of the summer colony, for the benefit of the new maternity ward of the Addison Gilbert hospital, was a great success.

Mrs. Oakes Ames, of Bay View, was the donor of the cup for the winner in the three races for the Dog or Kindergarten class of boats at the Annisquam Yacht club.

ROCKPORT. — The guns of the 42d Coast Artillery boomed out in target practice on Saturday from the hills of Rockport. A tug towed the targets out to sea and the practice was watched with interest from the shore, especially from Straitsmouth Inn and the cottages along the coast.

The artists of the Rockport colony, with their friends, held an enjoyable masquerade and costume party in Murray hall last Saturday evening.

Artists Cady and Williams, of New York city, have returned to Rockport after a stay in Maine, where they were making pictures of Wiscasset, Cape Porpoise and oth-

J. W. McGrath, of New York, is occupying the W. H. Colby cottage at Land's End, Rockport, for September. Mr. McGrath is president of the Interstate Fish Corporation.

Dr. Charles Brackett Hall, one of Rockport's wellknown summer residents of long standing, passed away on Wednesday of last week at his cottage at Land's End. Dr. Hall was 79 years old and he was a native of Danville, Vt., and a resident of St. Johnsbury, Vt. Dr. Hall graduated from Boston university in 1877. He was senior of the Massachusetts Homeopathic Medical society.

Mrs. Charles Gray, of Worcester, a guest at the hotel Glen Acre, Pigeon Cove, was stricken ill with paralysis and passed away last Wednesday. The death of Mrs. Gray was learned with sincere regret by her friends at the summer colony.

The recent lawn party held by the Village Improve-

Mrs. E. R. Mosely will locate her gift shop on Phillips ave., near the Edward, next season.

NEW OCEAN HOUSE AND ANNEX, AT SWAMPSCOTT

Electric at the hotel, while Sept. 23 brings an all-day outing of the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co.

New Ocean House was the scene of gaiety Saturday night when the long anticipated masque ball was held, the ball-room being filled to overflowing with guests in beautiful and fantastic costumes, which had been in preparation for some weeks. The following prizes were awarded during the evening and the judging was one of the keen events of the program owing to the unusual number of costumes:

Miss Jean Grabow received a vanity case for prettiest costume, and Mr. Fallon a pocketbook, for same; Miss Louise Brown, a locket, and William Faucet, cigarette case, for most original costumes; Mrs. Ralph Hustis, desk set, and Mr. Ladnesack, gold pencil, for most comical costume. The judges were Homer F. Livermore, Charles H. Carter, Mrs. Lenard C. Wason and Mrs. W. Irving Bullard.

This hotel is remaining open until Oct. 1 and there is a large list of guests registered for the fall month, although, of course, many of those who have been spending the season at the Shore, are now flitting to the Mountains or are returning to their homes.

This year the usual number of Canadian guests have not bene present, but, on the other hand, the Middle West and Washington, D. C., have brought a large patronage to the Shore. Then, too, the transient business has not been as great, most of the guests remaining for unusually extended periods of time.

Next week the New Ocean House will be the scene of a monster Rotary club convention and Sept. 15 will find the hotel, the convention hall, which is the garage, and the spacious grounds filled with Rotarians from all over the country.

The John Hancock Life Insurance Co. will arrive Sept. 19 for three days, and Sept. 22 and 23 finds the General

SWAMPSCOTT.—Gov. and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who have been spending the month of August, and early September, with Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns at Little's Point, Swampscott, are thoroughly delighted with the North Shore—and they have an unusually pleasant location from which to judge.

Occupying as they do one of the attractive homes on the Little estate, the broad piazzas look out over the neighboring gardens and the long sweep of lawn, to the blue of the ocean. At the other end of the house, a view of the Phillips beach section is obtained and nothing is prettier than this line of white sand which comes to an end at the rocky shore of Clifton.

Many entertainments have been given this summer in honor of the Governor and his wife, and it has been a pleasure to meet the head of the state and his most attractive wife.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. West, of the Copley-Plaza hotel, Boston, have a most attractive summer home, "The Orchards," in Swampscott. Built of stucco with blinds and trimmings of green, and set high on the shore with a splendid view of the sea, no house on the Shore is more sightly. Mr. West, who has been ill during the summer, has much enjoyed his seaside home, which is one of the newer additions to the Little Point section.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry H. Proctor, of "Blytheswood," Little's Point, Swampscott, have had a most charming garden all summer. The more or less formal arrangement is just back of the house and has abounded with the high colored flowers which one finds in this type of beauty spot. The rustic gates and pergolas form a pretty note, and through these one reaches the vegetable garden which has also been a distinct pleasure to the family, although in more material form.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Schrafft, of Newtonville, who are this year established in the Bond house, Puritan lane, Swampscott, have a garden which is not only interesting to them, but provides color for that section, for it is situated across the road from the house and is a bower of beauty. The long winding white pergola is a mass of vines and the trumpet vine in particular is beautiful with the many brick red blossoms.

Golden glow and phlox together with beds of asters make a perfect riot of color for the fall, and there is no place like the seaside to make the high colors for flowers. The garage, just back of the garden is covered with clinging vines which make a perfect covering for the entire front portion of the building.

A. A. Rosenbush has been busily at work this summer overseeing many changes in his gardens and the results are most pleasing. Unusually fortunate in having a long stretch of land surrounding his house, every effort has been made to beautify the same. Great urns of blue hydrangeas have been placed along the drive and in the walls near the water. A garden has been laid out in the center of the lawn with a large silver ball to catch the brightness of the sun. The piazzas are blooming with boxes of geraniums, and everywhere one turns there are vivid colors to mark the eye.

Just beyond this house is the handsome home of Simon Vorenburg, of Boston, and here no effort has been spared to make Puritan rd. attractive. The stucco house is fast being hidden behind a wealth of green vines, and the piazza which looks out on King's beach, is a mass of flowers, suspended by chains from flower baskets, or in urns at the piazza rail. A terrace to the waterfront brings more blossoms and the seawall itself is filled in which flowers that have bloomed ever since early spring.

Sunbeam Farm Tea Room, on Paradise rd., Swampscott, has been the mecca of summer travelers this year, who delight in the dainty house, the excellent French cuisine and last, but not least, the opportunity of having a few minutes of quiet in artistic surroundings, as they sup their tea.

The house at this time is made more decorative by the addition of dahlias which are grown right on the farm, and which are wonderfully beautiful. Of large size, each blossom is perfect and it keeps the gardener busy all day picking the blossoms, which spring into beauty almost over night. Other flowers grace the grounds, but the dahlia patch attracts the eye of all.

Plans are under way for a winter home for the tea room at Broad st., Lynn, and Edwin Gerould, proprietor, is busily engaged in making preparations for the opening which will come late in the fall when the summer tea room is closed for the season.

A small flock of sheep at the Sunbeam farm is attracting attention, and they are now having the run of the pen, but later will be housed in a specially built house of the very latest type.

A man's power is hooped in by a necessity, which, by many experiments, he touches on every side until he learns its arc.—Emerson.

MARBLEHEAD NECK.—Jan G. Masaryk, representative in this country of the Czecho-Slovakia republic and son of the president of the republic, has been spending a few days at Marblehead Neck as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hannaford Crawford. He has gone to Nonquitt. Dr. Selkars Gunn, of New York, who recently has come to this country from Scandinavia, has been spending the past week at the Eastern Yacht club.

The Webb Foot Crew, of the Eastern Yacht club, met Tuesday evening and had as their guest of honor Dr. S. Burt Wolback, who was head of the American Relief Commission in Poland. He spoke on the conditions in Poland during the war, the present-day fight and the conditions confronting the people with the approach of winter.

Mr. and Mrs. George Broadhead, who have been visa iting Hon. and Mrs. Henry P. Benson at Marblehead Neck, have gone to their home in Rochester, N. Y.

The Corinthian Yacht club held a most enjoyable dinner dance Friday evening and among the 177 dinner guests were the following: R. J. Salter, C. W. Smith, Herman Parker, J. L. Walker, B. W. Cobb, R. L. Fallon, L. E. Kepner, E. S. Booth, Vaughan Jealous, George Plympton, J. W. Wing, W. S. Bigelow, W. S. Blanchard, D. P. Kennedy, D. C. Percival, R. B. Wilbor, A. E. Spencer, F. M. Sheldon, Hall Wheeler, C. E. Congley, W. P. Richardson.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Eaton have returned to Marblehead Neck after several weeks spent at York Harbor, Me.

Miss Amy Peabody, of Marblehead Neck, is visiting friends in Rhode Island.

Mr. and Mrs. Garfield Taussig, who have been summering at the Sea Gull, Marblehead Neck, have returned to their home in St. Louis.

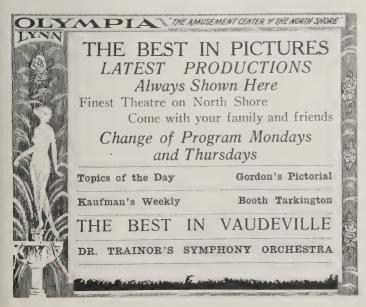

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin P. Gowing, of Brookline, have arrived at Marblehead Neck for the fall months.

Miss Georgia Masters, who has been extensively entertaining this summer at her home on Marblehead Neck, will soon move to Cambridge for the winter.

Mrs. Franklin White has returned to Marblehead Neck after visiting John W. Morse and family at Deer Isle, Me. Mrs. Ransom B. Fuller and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hodges have returned to their homes in Brookline, after a long summer at the Marblehead Neck shore.

K. S. Billings entertained at dinner at the Eastern Yacht club Thursday evening, covers being laid for 12 persons.

MARBLEHEAD. — Labor Day has come and gone and the summer people are beginning to make their plans for going to the cities, in order to take up the winter rounds of business, pleasure and school. The Marblehead section of the Shore will now gradually begin to lose its patronage for there are an unusual number of children in this section who must be back to the city for school.

Labor Day is usually the last of the busy yachting days and this year was no exception, for with the many classes of boats racing in the bay and harbor there were attractions for all, and the yacht clubs were well patronized. The clubs will not close before the last of the month, but gradually activities will cease, rounding out a well-filled season.

Miss Eunice L. Avery, of Springfield, has completed her course of current events at the Eastern Yacht club, which have been given Tuesday mornings at the club and have been most enjoyable. The classes have been well attended by the summer folk and Miss Avery has certainly presented a remarkable program.

The Webb Foot Crew, the new dining club organized this year at the Eastern Yacht club, has been a distinct success and the club members have attended each meeting, enjoying the dinner and the program, they themselves providing the music for the singing portion of the program. Although the dinners will be discontinued through the winter it is expected that next season will see even larger membership and a return to this year's gaiety.

The band concerts and dinner dances have been completed and with a record of fine attendance for each program, making a new high record for attendance at these purely social affairs.

Miss Elsa F. Sherwood, the Boston pianist, who has been summering at Marblehead, gave a most interesting piano recital in Mugford hall, Wednesday, at which there was a good attendance of summer people. Miss Sherwood is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Sherwood, of Boston, both of whom are pianists and composers of Miss Sherwood was a protegé of Mrs. William G. Webb, of Salem, who now lives in Europe. She has been well-known in musical circles ever since her youth, for she early showed signs of promise and studied with some of the best masters in Europe.

This evening Roger Upton, of Marblehead, is giving a dinner for 60 persons at the Eastern Yacht club.

The Eastern Yacht club will probably close about Sept. 20.

THE MAGNOLIA SHOPS

NOTES OF INTEREST

By GLADYS H. RICHARDS

THE MAGNOLIA SHOPS continue to draw large numbers of the ultra-smart of the North Shore colony in search of the unusual for the fall wardrobe. Many of the shops are remaining open until the first of October or after.

Caps and aprons worn by the Normandy peasants on festive occasions have been made into an exquisitely lovely luncheon set, lingerie pillows and a superbly beautiful bed spread, which are on display in the "Lavender and Old Lace" window at the Grande Maison de Blanc. The top of the caps, which are of that wonderful solid embroidery for which these peasants are noted, form the doilies and center piece, while the fine old lace with which they are trimmed has been taken from the aprons. The bed spread is richly lovely and is made up also of the round tops, cleverly woven together with bits of the same embroidery and lace. These dainty pieces are arranged with the artistic taste which is the keynote of the window displays at the attractive and unusual little shop.

An adorable little gown at Bonwit Teller's is of silk net over satin, uniquely banded with the soft metallic finished ribbon. A not-too-wide insert of the ribbon at the hip line gives a decided flared effect to the overskirt, the scalloped bottom of which is lightly traced with the ribbon that reappears in the softly draped girdle and bodice.

There is an air of regal distinction about the evening gown of cherry chiffon velvet, with its softly draped girdle terminating in loops on either side. The gown has the straight lines, and is gracefully swept in at the bottom to give the modishly narrow effect, which is, however, merely a bit of deceit, for the hidden narrow band of elastic makes the skirt comfortably "roomy." Touches of beaded embroidery in the fan design, with a suggestion of gold thread by way of contrast, furnish an exquisite finish. The tout ensemble is lovely.

We find the imported woolen scarfs here also, in all colors and combinations of colors.

There is always "something new" in sweaters at Farr & Co's. Les jeune filles are delighted with the high-neck sweaters, which are smartly simple, and come in various shades. This distinctive little shop has discovered something very "different" in jersey suits. These suits are on diplay this week.

A handsome coat wrap at Lamson & Hubbard's is of taupe bolivia. A distinctive note has been struck by the triple cape hanging to the waist line, the top tier of which is formed by the rich Hudson seal collar.

The shoes at John Lauther's this season have won much favorable comment from North Shore folk. Just now some wonderful values in shoes are being offered at this smart little shop.

SEASON OF 1920 A GAY ONE ON NORTH SHORE

Resume Indicates a Spirit of More Ernest Endeavor by Society in After-War Activities

By LILLIAN McCANN

COMORROW to fresh woods and pastures new," sang Milton long ago. The wanderlust will soon seize upon the North Shore and our good-byes will be said with more than one heartache when we gaze for the last time upon our beloved Shore with its bewitching sea and rocks and woodland so wonderfully bound together.

The play-time of the year has passed. School and business will soon be calling all but the fortunate ones who can linger in the country until November, or keep their houses open all winter, if the spirit so moves.

But the coming crop of social "buds" will draw many a family townward, at least in thought, in the next few weeks.

The season of 1920 was a fair reminder in many ways of pre-war days. A hasty résumé of its social activities may not come amiss before the Shore parts company with so many of its visitors from far and near.

Special activities along the lines in which nearly every one was interested began with the coming of the Garden club of America on June 29 and 30 and July 1. About 400 delegates and non-delegates came from all parts of the country for their annual meeting. The North Shore Garden club was the hostess that royally provided for the good times enjoyed during the visit, the itinerary of which had been planned by Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, president of the Shore club, and the other officers, including Mrs. Wm. C. Loring, Mrs. Gardiner M. Lane, Mrs. John Caswell and Mrs. R. Paul Snelling.

Harvard college festivities made their usual stir upon the Shore about this time with some class reunions, teas and dinners, the Essex County club in Manchester coming in for most of the latter.

Then came the Navy Festival on July 3, which had to be carried over to July 5 on account of the rain. Held on the Haven estate at Beverly Farms this great undertaking was staged by Alvin F. Sortwell, Frederick Ayer, Mrs. Gerald A. Bramwell, Charles K. Cummings, J. R. Hooper, Jr., Mrs. George von L. Meyer, W. Gordon Means, Bayard Tuckerman and Bayard Warren, besides all the Shore to assist.

The North Shore Swimming Pool, at Magnolia, opened up about this time with its annual buffet luncheon on the Fourth.

Children's hospital in Boston then began to be brought to every one's mind. Mrs. George H. Lyman, Mrs. Timothée Adamowski, Mrs. Wm. W. Caswell, Miss Elaine Denègre, Mrs. Henry S. Grew, 2d, Mrs. M. G. Haughton, Mrs. Lester Leland, Miss Harriet C. Rantoul, Mrs. R. Paul Snelling and Miss Alice Thorndike set the ball rolling by opening up the basement of Manchester's Horticultural hall as a workroom in which to make surgical dressings.

The Shore's younger set and children were then organized into units to help the hospital. From Nahant to Ipswich they held dances, fairs, gave plays, had a tennis tournament and a "gymkana" for the benefit of the hospital work. Never before were the children so happily and actively engaged in the summer time, each unit wishing to raise the required $100 through its own efforts that a bed might be supported for a year by that particular group. Mrs. Gordon Abbott and Mrs. Bernard C. Weld were especially interested in getting the work started among the children.

The Women's Educational and Industrial Union, of Boston, was in evidence all over the Shore early in July when the Book Caravan came. Then, later on, they cheered old and young with Tony Sarg's marionettes in four performances in Horticultural hall, Manchester.

The Women's Municipal league, of Boston, gave Mrs. Parker H. Kemble's committee something to do when they set up the cottage tea room on Revere Beach. The little place has made many new friends for the league this season and has filled a place on the boulevard. At the close of the season the league held open house at Mrs. Kemble's fine old historic home in Marblehead, raising funds and gaining friends for the winter's work.

The musicales, three put on by Mrs. Hall McAllister and three by Miss Virginia Wainwright, one by Mme. Lyska, and the four French readings given by Mlle. Germaine Cossini helped to give some definite place to go each week.

The Tide Over league through Mrs. George E. Warren, Mrs. Lester Leland, Mrs. Freeman Allen, Mrs. F. B. Crowninshield and others had about the biggest day at a private house during the summer. Their sale and bridge at Mrs. Edward S. Grew's place, "All Oaks," West Manchester, on Aug. 3, showed plainly the great interest taken in the work founded by the late Dr. James Marsh Jackson. Mrs. Freeman Allen, of Nahant, is the league president.

Freeman Allen, of Nahant, is the league president.

Mrs. Albert Ivins Croll, of Gales Point, Manchester, opened her house for a sale, July 29, of products from Llewsac lodge, at Bedford, a dependence of the Frances E. Willard settlement in Boston, of which Mrs. Croll is an interested friend.

There were "garden days" each Saturday during July and one in August, when the largest and most beautiful gardens on the Shore were opened on Saturday afternoons to benefit the National Civic Federation. Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge, of Pride's Crossing, had the work in charge and each day was a gala occasion for garden lovers from far and near.

The South End Music school, of Boston, created intertest when a committee composed of Mrs. Godfrey Lowell Cabot, Miss Margaret L. Corlies, Mrs. Frederick R. Galacar, Mrs. Frederick G. Hall and Mrs. Henry L. Mason planned three entertainments as benefits. Two musicales and a bridge party were pleasant summer affairs for the late season.

Another great entertainment to raise money for a good cause was given at the Harris P. Mosher home in Marblehead when the "Books for Everybody Fund" came in for much attention Ipswich hospital had a special day, Sept. 4, when Shore children gave an exhibition of ballet dancing in the Italian garden of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr. Early in the season this garden was opened to the public as a benefit for the Ipswich hospital. Miss Consuelo Bates had charge of the ballet dancing.

Several Hampton Institute meetings were held in various localities on the Shore, giving much pleasure with their old plantation melodies.

Cape Ann did its share in charitable work. The lawn fete for the Addison Gilbert hospital, and the pageant of "The Holy Grail," a benefit for the Memorial Park fund and the Gloucester District Nursing association were drawing cards down Gloucester way. Also at Gloucester was the marvelous pageant celebrating the 150th anniversary of the Murray pilgrimage, Aug. 27 and 28.

the Murray pilgrimage, Aug. 27 and 28.

The "country fair" given in the Hamilton - Wenham section for the Episcopal church over there was patronized by many Shore folk in the mid-summer.

The St. John's church fair at Beverly Farms on Aug. 12 was a red-letter day for the colony around that section. St. John's church has friends all along the Shore who yearly help out in this happy occasion.

Regatta day at the Manchester Yacht club on Aug. 7 was a gala day for all concerned. Commodore C. K. Cummings, Norton Wigglesworth, E. Sohier Welch, Samuel Eliot, Charles E. Hodges, Jr., Gordon Abbott, Jr., Mrs. Henry L. Higginson, Mrs. Charles K. Cummings, Mrs. H. S. Grew, Mrs. Charles Hodges, Miss Margaret Curtis, Mrs. Norton Wigglesworth, Mrs. Thomas B. Gannett, Mrs. Geo. Putnam, Mrs. E. Sohier Welch, Mrs. Samuel Eliot and Mrs. Frank Wigglesworth were those who helped to make it such a pleasant day.

While recalling "garden days" we should have mentioned the talk given by Mary Rutherford Jay, the garden architect, at the home of Dr. and Mrs. J. Henry Lancashire, in Manchester, on July 23.

Was there nothing of a purely social nature? Yes, there was a coming-out party, a few weddings, a reception and a supper-dance that might be so classed besides the events "too small to report" that are always taking place.

Ipswich had the débutante, Miss Elizabeth DeBlois;

Zinsser (Isabella Wadsworth), while Swampscott had a late wedding, that of Mr. and Mrs. Francis D. G. B. C. HISTORY

By Frances Stotesbury Hutchinson

14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney E. Hutchinson, of Beverly Farms

THE first meeting of the Girls' Bicycle club was held on Thursday, June 30th, 1919, at the Hutchinsons' playhouse. There were five of us, Cynthia Means, Nancy Means, Martha Means, Natalie Hutchinson and Frances Hutchinson. Cynthia left the club the first day because of a disagreement with Frances. The next week Cynthia joined again and we took in Helen Mason. That week we voted for president, and Nancy Means was elected. We also decided that the uniform was to be khaki bloomers, white middy blouse with a black bow tie, and a khaki hat. The next week Marion Peck became a member of the G. B. C.

Two weeks later we again voted for president, as the president's term is three weeks, and Natalie Hutchinson was elected; but as she purposely stayed away from the meeting she was made to leave the club, and Frances was elected in her place. The week after this Ruth Swift joined the club and we let Natalie come back. That week we started drilling; there were many difficulties at first in this respect, but we finally overcame them.

While Frances was president we decided that the G. B. C. should have three tests; when a girl had passed the 3d class test she could wear a yellow ribbon around her left arm, the 2d class a red ribbon, and the 1st class a blue ribbon. The tests were as follows:

3d class—
Ride a bicycle Turn around
Know how to bind u

Know how to bind up a small cut or bruise

2d class-

Ride a bicycle with one hand, carrying something in the other

Take off your hat and put it on again Make a stretcher out of two coats and two poles

1st class—

Be able to drill yourself and drill others properly

Boil an egg and make cocoa over a fire in the open

Three weeks after this Natalie Ryan joined the club and Cynthia was elected president.

Next Thursday, Marion Peck left to go home and Martha Means went out of the club, as it was decided that she was too young to keep up with us. We were very sorry to lose them. About this time we decided to have marks for attendance and good conduct during the meetings, which took place twice a week. Excellent counted 5; good, 3; fair, 0; bad, minus 3, and very bad, minus 5.

When Cynthia was president, Natalie and Nancy went out of the club to form a club of their own, but they soon returned making the club seven—Natalie Ryan, Natalie Hutchinson, Helen Mason, Cynthia Means, Nancy Means, Ruth Swift and Frances Hutchinson. These seven laid a firm foundation for those who were to follow.

In the next two weeks we had a great many picnics and at the next election Ruth was chosen president. During these three weeks we worked hard at drilling and racing. About this time the G. B. C. had a thorough revolution and changed everything. When Ruth's term had expired Cynthia was elected again. As Natalie Ryan had joined the club later than the rest of us she did not have as many marks, whereupon a heated argument ensued as to the best way of righting this. Cynthia finally averaged all our marks, satisfying everybody.

Shortly after this we held a field day meet and Frances was elected special president for the day. Mrs. Hutchinson offered a cup to be given to the girl making the most points, and on Sept. 13, 1919, we held the field meet. The events were:

Drilling
General appearance
Coasting race
Fast race
Slow race

All of which took place on Beach st., which was carefully patroled by Mr. Mason. There were three judges—Mrs. Hutchinson, Mrs. Morgan and Mr. Swift. But on this great day there were only six of us present, as Natalie Hutchinson had hurt her foot. Cynthia won the cup, with Nancy as a close second.

On the 6th of October the G. B. C. held its last meeting for the summer of 1919 and the club broke up for the winter.

11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Boardman, of Nahant, and formerly of Beverly Farms, is a young swimmer that the Shore is proud of. One Sunday afternoon a week or so ago, with her older sister, Miss Isabel Boardman, and two of the latter's friends, she swam from Egg Rock to Nahant, a distance of about $2\frac{1}{4}$ miles, in 1 hr. and 40 min. Mr. Boardman had rowed the girls out to the rock and kept alongside of them in his boat as they made their long swim back. Elvira is a strong, athletic girl and was not the least bit tired when she landed, but the same cannot be said of the others. This is Elvira's second summer at Nahant. She was formerly one of Bunny Woods' pupils at West Beach, Beverly Farms.

Nelson S. Bartlett, of "Rockhead," Smith's Point, Manchester, is the grandfather of the Shore's little champion swimmer.

Francis Stanton Blake, 2d, a little boy eight years old, made a booth for the circus the young children in Beverly farms had this summer at the Barrett Wendell, Jr., home. The booth showed good workmanship for such a little boy.

Little Denise and Jacqueline Livingston, of Beverly Farms, have been among those taking swimming lessons at West Beach.

To be conscious that you are ignorant is a great step to knowledge.

ROBERT A. FOWLER, of Boston, long connected with Harvard athletics, has been in charge of Bunny Woods' swimming lessons at West Beach, Beverly Farms, since Aug. 1. Among the swimmers having fine times on the raft are Albert and Abby Beveridge, Frances and Edward Hutchinson, Fanny, Polly and Billy Moore, Roger and Bobby Cutler, Eleanor Gunn, Joseph and Thomas Leiter and Serita Bartlett. Swimming, diving and rowing are taught.

Eleanor Gunn has made remarkable progress. Mr. Fowler says he has never seen her equal in a girl of her age. In form work and endurance she comes up to the highest standard.

Little Serita Bartlett is only seven. She is a cousin to Elvira Boardman, the little girl with a record in swimming already to her credit.

Natalie Ryan was also in the swimming class while she has been visiting on the Shore with Frances and Natalie Hutchinson at Beverly Farms.

Theodore Cabot Osborne, the five-year-old grandson of Mrs. Chas. M. Cabot at Beverly Farms, has a set of tools with which he is trying all sorts of things in the carpentry line out in his playhouse.

It is such a piece of good luck to be natural.
—LOWELL.

AT NAHANT Saturday, August 28, a fair was given at the S. H. Wolcott place as a Boston Children's hospital benefit. Girls interested included the following: Harriet Bangs, Polly Winslow, Mary Holden, Elvira Boardman, Susan Hammond, Madeline Burke and Edith Wolcott. They sold candies, fancy articles, sachets, cake, gas transparent baloons, ice cream cones, grabs and chances on a Marconi rigged Hennessey boat.

MRS. REGINALD BOARD-MAN, has had a class of little folk meeting all summer on Friday afternoons on the lawn at "The Brick House," West Manchester. Children from 6 to 8 years have made up two nines and played baseball with all the vim of future stars at Harvard and Yale. Miss Huestis, of Montreal, Canada, has been in charge of the group, made up of the little friends of T. Dennie Boardman, 2d.

Althea, Amalie and Margarita White, the young children of Mr. and Mrs. Austin White, are a group of newcomers to Beverly Farms this year. They have been in Bunny Woods' classes and have greatly enjoyed the beach so near their cottage.

Our todays and yester-days are blocks with which we build.—Long-fellow.

RUNNY Woods has two classes that have not been mentioned in these columns this year. Since we have given the names of his pupils in all the other classes we must not forget the older ones. Many of these have been under Bunny's special charge for several years and by this time are well initiated in the intricacies of baseball.

Among these pupils are Betty Bartlett, Hope Iselin, Ann Gavit, Margaret and Ruth Mitchell, Molly and Charlie Stockton, Geo. Hodges, John McGinley, 2d, Betty McGinley, Neil Barrows, Evelyn and Margaret Cummings, John and Jane Noble, Emily and Jean Sears, Henry Howard, Henry Mason, Albert and Abby Beveridge, Eleanor Gunn, Pauline Defriez and Althea and Emily White.

Miss Ruth Spry, of Manchester, has taught swimming at Singing Beach, Manchester, for the past five summers. Among her pupils this season are Helen and Anne Howe, Janice Newlin, Nancy Hayward, Nancy and Joan Guggenheimer (wee tots who come up from Magnolia) and Ruth, Margaret and Bobby Mitchell.

The Mitchell girls, Margaret, aged 12, and Ruth, a ten-year-old, are expert swimmers and each day go out to the raft for a swim.

Give your fullest. The full life is the only safe life.

Danger comes not by excess, but by defect of vitality.

THE CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS for the Beverly community hospital has been under way for two days and marked progress has been made. The spirit of the workers and the results that have been attained are a testimony to the strong hold which the institution has upon the affections of the residents of the Beverly, Manchester, Danvers, Wenham and Hamilton districts. The good work will be continued until the funds have been raised. An effort is being made to accomplish five things,-the payment of the deficits which have accumulated during the war years; the provision of funds to provide for an adequate income to care for its current expenses; to afford money to increase the equipment of the institution; to provide money to make needed additions to meet its present needs, and, finally, to acquire such financial support as will warrant the building of a new wing to provide for fifty more beds. The hospital needs, now, an isolation ward to care for emergency cases, or for very sick patients where comfort and quiet may be assured them outside the regular wards, and where the very sick in the wards may be spared the depressing effects of an emergency case being brought in or of a death in the open ward. To conduct the institution economically, an adequate refrigerating plant and a root cellar are immediate requirements. An addition to the maternity ward may be provided for, economically. The construction of the new wing is an ideal of the directors and reveals their alertness to the responsibilities of the hospital to meet future needs. It cannot be planned for until the funds are available for its construction and its maintenance when built. The project presents an ideal opportunity for someone with a philanthropic purpose to establish a permanent and useful memorial in memory of a deceased relative or friend. A clause in a will providing funds for this purpose would assure the donors that the money thus given would help many people in many years. The hospital is worthy of the generous support of its constituency. It should not lack for funds for its current obligations, to equip its plant, and to meet the obligations which its opportunity presents.

THERE IS BOUND to be a change! Everything has "gone up" as far as it can go. If there be a change it must be "downward."

THE FIGHT FOR THE PRESIDENCY is now in full swing. Both of the candidates have had an opportunity to perfect their organizations and to outline a plan of action and to put those plans into operation. Their purposes have been revealed and their methods of campaigning are appar-Mr. Harding has gathered about him a group of careful, experienced men, and is conducting the campaign quietly, but effectively, from his headquarters, with his own hand upon the helm. Mr. Cox is making a swing around the circle and injudiciously subjecting himself to the excitement and indiscretions of a stump campaign. Mr. Harding has made a few speeches that have shown careful preparation and has made several announcements that have warranted attention. Mr. Cox has been obliged to make many addresses and in his accommodation to the heat of a public meeting, supported by the applause of his adherents, he has been betrayed into political statements that have been challenged. He has used methods that are objectionable in petty ward politics. Mr. Harding is showing that he has the executive temperament that will fit him for the larger position of responsibility which he must assume when he enters the White House. Mr. Cox is showing his inability to rise to the dignity and responsibilties of of a nominee of a party that deserves a worthier man to carry its banner. Harding is rising above the petty and passing incidents of the campaign to meet the larger responsibilities of the hour. Mr. Cox is losing sight of the larger responsibilities of the times and is dragging the most important presidential election in the last generation down to a level out of keeping with the dignity of either Cleveland or Wilson. Harding is scanning the horizon, considering the responsibilities of the minute, but viewing the responsibilities of passing months in the light of the serious task ahead of the nation. The conclusions are unavoidable, that the Democratic party has not chosen a candidate of large parts and that the campaign is being bungled. If Harding will only maintain his levelheaded, calm policy of conducting his campaign he will convince the independent voters he has the ability that is needed in the White House. Mr. Cox need only continue his present methods to discover that the members of his own ranks will be quietly dropping out of line to be found aligned with Mr. Harding.

It is a Beautiful Comment on the good feeling that exists between the Old England overseas and the New England here, that the residents there are as proud of the noble venture of the Pilgrim Fathers as the people of the New England states.

THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS should not hold a position of major importance in the election of the next President of the United States-the election should not be dependent on the candidate's attitude toward the issue. The question may not be eliminated from the current political discussions because it is a vital issue that must soon be settled by the nation in some way or other. The opinions of the two candidates on "a" league of nations and "The League of Nations" are of interest, but these opinions should not be determining factors in their election. It may be possible for either candidate to express an opinion now that will be changed materially by the action of the Senate before March 4th next year. The determination of the character of the eventual league that the United States will agree to enter rests not with the President, but with the Senate. The election of a new President committed whole-heartedly to the League of Nations cannot change the present situation; it only continues it. President Wilson has been an advocate of his league and the deadlock exists. This fact alone should indicate that the election of the President should not determine the fate of the league nor the nominees' attitude toward "a" league or "The League of Nations" assure his election. The skillful way in which Cox avoids a direct educational program for conducting his campaign indicates that he is willing to gather all the votes he can by advocating the Wilsonian League of Nations. Harding, on the other hand is trying to avoid the dilemma of sustaining an international policy formulated by the opposition party. But it is evident that his level head may be depended upon to lead the people of the nation out of the caldron; he can be trusted.

The international problem of the nation is only one phase of the work that must be done in the next four years. That work must be placed in new hands. The Democratic party has ignominiously failed, and now the reins of power and opportunity for service should be placed in the hands of the Republican party. Republicans realize the situation and, while favoring a League of Nations with or without definite and radical revision, know that the party of Lincoln and Roosevelt may be trusted to formulate such an international policy and program as will safeguard the integrity and autonomy of this country and yet assure that the nation will meet its honorable obligations with other nations. Democratic shrewdness in seizing upon an ideal and seeking to gather Republicans into their organization upon the slogan of "Save the League of Nations" has not counted upon the intelligence of the Republican voters in determining their purpose upon all issues, not one. The Democrats have failed in their domestic and their international policy. Republicans are not going to be deceived by a blatant effort to rally forces by an empty slogan. The President and the Senate determine our international policy. A Republican President will be able to handle the situation more ably and successfully. Cox should be defeated whatever his opinions upon a league of nations. Harding may be trusted best with the international and the domestic problems of the nation in the next four years.

THE HOUSEHOLDER may purchase potatoes, but he can never realize what a peck of potatoes is worth until he has tilled a plot of ground, purchased fertilizer and seed potatoes, planted the field, killed the bugs and weeded the rows, longed for rain and then laboriously turned the soil to discover that a drought had ruined his crops. How much will the scanty peck cost in labor and expenditures.

The Erection of Bill Boards for advertising purposes is a nuisance that should be abated. In the end the extravagance is maintained by the public who purchase the wares advertised. It contributes one item in the high cost of living that could be eliminated. Public sentiment on the subject is growing. The stand on the question, taken by Dudley L. Pickman of the Beverly Shore in a letter to the Boston Herald, is right:

"Everyone must admit that billboard advertising, while a small source of profit to a few people, is a great detriment to a neighborhood. Objectionable in suburbs and thickly settled places, it is a desecration in beautiful rural districts. Of these advertisements a very large proportion, especially near country roads, is of articles pertaining to automobile and kindred interests. On the border of a certain highway, typical of the best that Massachusetts can show in picturesque farm and homestead, and connecting two towns of historic name, there are 24 brazen signboards, and of this number 22 are advertisements of products connected with the industry above mentioned.

"We are justly proud of our New England scenery; but when we take a friend or stranger to see its attractions, and approach a well remembered spot, anticipating a lovely view of meadow, wood or distant hill, we are almost sure to be confronted with one of these abominations; for it is here, where one naturally stops to look and linger, that they are designedly erected.

Can it be that the mass of our motorists are incapable of appreciating the beauty of the country they are passing through and do not resent the sacrilege of such defacements? It would seem the part of automobile clubs and their members to take action for the abolishment of this nuisance or lay themselves open to the imputation of being devoid of any aesthetic sense.

"A tax, even a heavy one, on the billboard would prove no deterrent—in fact, it might prove an additional incentive. It requires no prophet to foresee that something of this nature would be the result: 'The Zodiac pays the biggest tax in Massachusetts on sign-board advertising.' Undoubtedly some companies do not use this means of making known their wares. All honor to them; although we may not boycott those that do, we can certainly favor those that don't. Local improvement societies could, of course, help much to effect a remedy, but the evil will only be eradicated when an aroused and indignant public sentiment makes this form of advertising unprofitable."

The time will come when advertisers will not be permitted to take a commercial advantage of great expenditures which are made by the state, the county and the individual communities in maintaining roads, parks and recreation spots; they are taking advantage of community investments for their own gain. It will take time for public opinion to crystallize, but the time will inevitably come when the bill-board nuisance will be abated. The community has the right to restrict the abuse, and the time must come when that initiative will be used effectively. The automobile industry should be the first to promote the cause and the last to continue an advertising nuisance.

Miss Alice Hoare returned to her duties in Washington, D. C., last Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Merrill arrived home the first of the week from their vacation trip to New Hampshire.

C. G. Ward and family, of Beverly, have moved into the Frank Ayer house, corner School and Vine sts. Mr. Ward is developing a piece of land in Magnolia for commercial flowers and gardens.

The wedding of Lee Woodbury Marshall, older son of Mrs. J. W. Marshall, Central st., and Miss Gladys Flieger, will take pace tomorrow (Saturday) at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Anne J. Dunne, in Wollaston. Mr. Marshall is secretary of the Commonwealth Trust Co., Boston. After a short wedding trip he will come with his bride to occupy an apartment recently fitted up in the family homestead on Central st.

Interest in the proposed new Town hall and the general improvements in the section between the present hall and the railroad and Beach st. is growing as the plans become known. Those who would like to see the architects outline may do so by calling at the Selectmen's room in Town hall. Manchester surely needs a new Town hall -especially now with the great increase in the number of voters. more fitting memorial to our soldiers and sailors (of all wars) could be devised than the development of the land between Town hall and the railroad, filling in a section of the mud flats, dredging out material from the rest to use for filler, and continue Beach st. on from the railroad crossing to Central st. at a point where the police station now stands. Here is a wonderful opportunity—and now is the time to do it, when Manchester benefits from a $10 tax rate and when our share of the income taxes is so large

Work called for and delivered

Two automobiles came together in Central sq. yesterday afternoon, and caused a flurry of excitement for a while. No one was injured, though one of the cars was badly damaged.

The Manchester schools opened Wednesday morning with a full attendance in all the grades in all schools. The teaching force is complete—with new principals at High school and at the grammar school. A new superintendent has not yet been found to take the place of Mr. Mackin, who will go to Manchester, N. H., next month to teach.

Sydney Peters is home for a two weeks' vacation from his service in the navy.

Postmaster Frank A. Foster is taking a week's vacation from his duties at the postoffice.

Mr. and Mrs. Austin B. Eldridge and family have returned to Boston, after spending the summer in Manchester.

Tax Collector Stanley is busy preparing the annual tax bills, and it is expected the bills will be mailed out early next week.

Miss Mary Morley is expected home this week from Edgartown, where she has been employed during the summer in the office of one of the hotels.

The matter of the location of telephone poles on Lincoln st., which was to come up before the Selectmen at their regular Tuesday evening meeting was laid on the table for another week owing to the objection of some of the property owners.

The local Beverly hospital drive campaign committee held a meeting Wednesday evening in Beverly, where, in conjunction with the committees from the other towns, they completed the details of the drive which started yesterday. Wm. W. Hoare is captain of the team here.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Woodbury and children have returned to their home in Worcester after a week's visit with their aunt, Mrs. P. H. Boyle, Summer st. Mr. Woodbury's sister, Mrs. Joseph Cuseneau and husband were also here over the week-end, guests of another aunt, Mrs. Otis M. Stanley, and family, Vine st.

The many friends of Wm. Patterson, who was injured in the serious accident at Lynn this summer, and who, in keeping with the statutes, was de-prived of his license and registration, -will be pleased to know that his licenses have been returned to him, as he was not held responsible for the accident in any way. It is a strange law, unjust in this case to say the least, that frees the city of Lynn from damage when its fire truck runs into an innocent passerby and injures him and his family ,and causes fatal injuries. The municipality should find some way of taking money from an emergency fund in a case of this sort, and at least assist in defraying the expense of nurses for weeks, and losses directly falling upon one through no fault of theirs whatever.

THE PRIMARIES

NEARLY ALL MANCHESTER MEN AND ALL WOMEN WITH REPUBLICAN BANNER

The pronounced feature of the primary election in Manchester Tuesday was the stand of the voters for the Republican banner. "Almost unanimous," as a moderator in town meeting was wont to say, the vote stood: Total, 269; Republican, 262; Democratic, 7. The interesting part of this is that the 104 women who voted must have been unanimous in their choice of Republican candidates, for the old politicians can easily account for the 7 cut-anddried Democrats that will stick by the party through thick and thin always.

The result of the balloting follows:

LIBRARY NOTES

New Books in Manchester Public Library

"THE BOOK OF SUSAN," by Lee Wilson Dodd, is one of the new novels. "Susan" is not an ordinary character. The book is an unusual one and is worth reading.

Readers of "The Rich Mrs. Burgoyne," "Saturday's Child," "Mother," "Sisters" and "The Story of Julia Page" will want to read Kathleen Norris' latest, "Harriet and the Piper." Her books make attractive reading.

Another great bit of fiction is "Leerie," by Ruth Sawyer. It is a war story, but a good one. "Leerie" is a great nurse and a charming character as well.

"The La Chance Mine Mystery" is a thrilling story. Mystery, adventure and love may all be found in it.

and love may all be found in it.

"Mac of Placid," by T. Morris
Longstreth, is a story of the Adirondacks. Robert Louis Stevenson is one of the characters in the book. The novel is full of life and color.

"Tamarisk Town," by Sheila Kaye-Smith' is a good character study. The scene is laid in a town in Sussex, England. It portrays a struggle between love and ambition.

"Wunpost," by Dane Coolidge, is a story of the Arizona deserts well told.

"This Side of Paradise" is a study on the development of character. It is somewhat different from the usual novel.

"Resurrection Rock," by Edwin Balmer, is a story of the great out-of-doors. There is both adventure and mystery in this novel.

"Spiritual Voices in Modern Literature," by Trevor H. Davies, is a book of some delightful studies of the works of some modern authors in their relation to the great problems of life. It

THE LAKE-CROFT FRACAS

CHAUFFEUR KIMBALL GIVEN YEAR'S SENTENCE FOR USING KNIFE

On the charge of assault with knife on the seven young men mixed up in the fracas at Lake-Croft Inn some weeks ago, Amory Kimball, of Cincinnati, chauffeur for a family living on Smith's Point, Manchester, was sentenced to a year in the House of Correction, by Judge Sears, in Salem district court, Thursday of last week. He appealed, and the case will come up for another trial later.

"Deplorable, Indecent Conditions" —Inn Should be Closed or Cleaned Out

A Breeze subscriber, for many years a resident of this section, but who has been away from the North Shore a few years, writing from the west, says of the recent unpleasant episode at Lake-Croft Inn, Hamilton:

"I wish to say that I admire you in the way you have written up the brawl which so recently took place at Lake-Croft Inn. We have been residents of the North Shore for a number of years and have known for the past 20 years of the condition of this place. Influential people have called attention to this Inn, but to no effect. Now that you have written such an impressive article regarding so recent an episode, it would seem a shame if it should be left to continue its deplorable, indecent conditions. I, being a woman, am powerless to do anything in stamping out such a place which has proved itself such a menace to the vicinity for so long a time, but it would seem possible to put this matter before men of authority who could bring pressure enough to bear to either close it up or clean it out. If this country is to become a clean and decent place for our young people to live in, it should begin pretty soon to rid itself of such places as these road-houses - and here is a very good place to begin."

STRAND THEATRE, LYNN

Geraldine Farrar, world celebrated prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera company and equally as much of a popular celebrity in motion pictures, will head a notably interesting program at the Strand theatre, Lynn, the first three days of next week, in her latest production, "The Woman and the Puppet." The picture is replete with emotional and dramatic scenes in which the famous diva attains new heights of artistry. New York critics declare this production is the gratest cinema achievement in Mme. Farrar's whole career.

Other attractions will include a fivereel special feature yet to be selected, a comedy and the Strand Topical Re-

Thursday, Friday and Saturday the management will feature Jack Pickford in "The Double-Eyed Deceiver," and Ethel Clayton and Jack Holt in "Crooked Streets." Miss Clayton's picture is a story of her experiences alone in Shanghai's slums, where narrow eyes gleam at her from dark corners and yellow, wrinkled hands grasp her menacingly, while all around her is the seething terror of the most dangerous gang in China. Buster Keaton will appear in his latest comedy, "One Week," in which he endeavors to set up a portable house the parts of which come nicely boxed but incorrectly numbered. The walls turn in and out and a violent windstorm sets the whole structure to whirling about like a merry-go-round until a passenger train crashes into it.

On Sunday evening the Strand will present several enjoyable film features and special music by orchestra of 12 pieces, organ and soloists, the first show commencing at 5 o'clock.

HIPPODROME SEASON IN NEW YORK

Charles Dillingham's wisdom in beginning the season at the New York Hippodrome the early part of August has been demonstrated by the huge audiences which have crowded the big playhouse to see this year's wonderspectacle, appropriately and happily named "Good Times" by R. H. Burnside, which is being classified as the Hippodrome's most imposing and diversified pageant. Thousands of visitors from out of town, in New York on their vacations, are enjoying the early opening. There is something of interest to all in this year's gigantic production, and its comedy interludes are more engaging and novel than ever before. The spectacular and extravaganza portions of "Good Times" are more lavish than ever before and the water grottos and aquatic surprises which form the grand finale are of surpassing beauty and ingenuity. Everyone will enjoy "Good Times."

FAMILY PRAYERS NEEDED SAYS ROGER BABSON

Roger W. Babson, the eminent statistician, would like to see a revival of the custom of family prayers. Mr. Babson—who, by the way, is a vice-president of the Manchester Trust Co. -is the first economist to come forward with the statement, that human souls constitute America's greatest undeveloped resources.

Too much credit is given both to capital and labor in the discussions of today," says Mr. Babson. "The real credit for most of the things we have is due to some human soul which supplied the faith which was the mainspring of the enterprise.

being successful. "Twenty-five years from today, instead of the pastor being the head of the church and a few good people doing voluntary work, there will be four or five churches of one denomination united under one general manager. The churches will then be self-support-The days of begging will be

"IT MIGHT BE WORSE_"

"There's a hackneyed little saying That is passed around in jest— Just a simple little squib that's crisp and terse

Though it started in our playing There's a mint of truth expressed In that slangy easy phrase, 'It might be worse.

"For, when things are going rotten And you lose your hold on 'luck' Then the gritty phrase is better than a curse.

It proves you've not forgotten That a man can keep his pluck When you lift your chin and say, 'It might be worse.

"When affairs are not so rocky And you ride on Easy Street You can take another maxim from this verse.

When they praise you, don't get cocky— Keep your head and keep your feet While you smilingly admit—'It might be worse.'''

THE JUDGE "DUCKED"

For an example of really bad luck, it is difficult to beat the following:

Bill Sykes was arrested for "loitering with intent," and when brought before the magistrate was sentenced to "three months—hard."

Upon hearing his sentence Bill Sykes leaned over the rail of the dock, and snatching up a metal inkpot from the solicitor's table flung it with all his might at the magistrate.

The magistrate ducked and the inkpot smashed its way through a beautiful stained glass window and out into the street.

The ink here spilled over the new dress of a young lady walking along the pavement, and she shieked so much that her voice frightened a horse drawing a cab containing two persons. The horse bolted down the road and ran straight into a crockery shop, injuring the two passengers, at the same time smashing up about £100 worth of crockery.

And now the point where the hard luck comes in is that the proprietor of the crockery shop, the two injured passengers, the cab driver and the lady whose dress was ruined are all suing the magistrate for dodging the inkpot! -London Answers.

When Miss Esther Carroll left Manchester last Monday to take up her new duties as school teacher at Hyannis, she felt she was going to a strange town where she knew no one, and that she would be at a little disadvantage on her first day there—until she became acquainted anyway. But —to her surprise, and joy, when she stepped off the train she was greeted by two very familiar Manchester friends—Dr. and Mrs. F. A. Willis. They were at Hyannis for a day or two and on learning of Miss Carroll's plans had met her at the train as a sort of surprise.

Union st., Manchester, was again closed to traffic yesterday morning, or practically so, for a period of one hour, from 8.20 until 9.20, so as to permit the heavy truck to unload groceries at the O'Keefe store. This thing is not right, and the public is not willing to stand this sort of thing. The O'Keefe store is located on Union st., at the head of Beach, just across from the postoffice. Once a week a large truck comes over the road from Boston, backs up to the sidewalk, thus cutting off all traffic on the narrow street at this point. Automobiles are forced to seek other means of passing than Union st., and there is great danger of accident to the many school children passing at that hour. There is no reason why the truck could not drive up beside the road, instead of across it. and thus cause as little inconvenience as possible to the general public.

Concluded Successful Season at Manchester Playground

E. Carleton Coffin concluded his engagement as playground instructor, at Manchester, on Aug. 31, and after a few days' rest, left for Port Chester, N. Y., where he has accepted a position as physical instructor in the public schools. Here Mr. Coffin will devote his entire time to instructing and supervising the physical welfare of the pupils, having two assistants to help him in this work.

The past season has been a most successful one at the local play-ground, the attendance varying from 30 to over 100 a day. All the young-sters found Mr. Coffin ever ready to instruct them in any of the playground games, such as baseball, volley ball, tennis or in teaching various new games and forms of amusement, and it was with sincere regret that they and many of the older people with whom he had come in contact and found to be a person of such pleasing personality, learned of his departure from here probably for all time, although all join in wishing him every success in his new position.

SMILIN' TONY'S CASE A TYPICAL ONE

Limbs will be as Straight and Strong as Ever after Skilled Treatment at Beverly Hospital

Tony, recovering at Beverly hospital from being hit by an automobile his gang in every boyish game. Few could run faster, jump higher or throw a baseball farther and with greater accuracy, and no one was more popular with the youngsters along the Danvers rood, near his home. Tony, who is seven years old, has been missing from his usual haunts for several weeks, but before long he will be back again at play just as active and energetic as ever getic as ever.

And Tony will owe his return to the joys of childhood with strong legs and arms—will owe even his life—to the ministrations of the community hospital at Beverly and to a member of the hospital's skilled surgical staff, for he has been a hospital patient ever since one day in July, when a big automobile, dashing along the Danvers road, hit him and tossed his small body high in the air.

Tony was playing in the road. The game was lively, and the players were racing across the road and back again with shouts of glee. Tony's mother, short distance away in her home, watched the youngsters, proud of her

So intent were the youngsters on their play that they did not see the automobile approaching. Their shouts drowned even the warning horn. Just as the machine was passing, Tony darted in front of it. There was a wild honk from the horn, screams from Tony's' mother and his little companions and the grinding of brakes as the big machine was checked abrupt-

But it stopped too late. Tony had been struck, and lay, a huddled figure, in the road. The motorist, alighting quickly, was the first to reach the little body. Tony's mother, Mrs. Malowitz, almost crazed, was not far behind. Tony was unconscious. One leg and one arm hung useless. The motorist thought the boy was dead.

Taking Tony and his mother into the car, the driver dashed to the nearest doctor. The physician ordered Tony taken with all speed to the hospital in Beverly. The machine made a fast run to the institution, and Tony, still unconscious, was taken to the operating room.

Dr. Harry E. Sears, one of the hospital staff, was on duty. Quickly his expert fingers discovered a depressed fracture of the skull, the right leg broken near the hip, and both bones of the right forearm broken. Skillfully the surgeon operated on the broken skull, and when the pressure there had been relieved, he attended to the broken leg and arm.

For a time it seemed that Tony would not survive, but the expert care and attention he received at the hospital, coupled with his own rugged health, pulled him through. The X-ray was used to determine the degree of the fractures and note the progress of healing, and constant skilled care is rapidly restoring his injured limbs.

As Tony recovered, he gained his nickname among the patients in the men's ward. "Smilin' Tony" he became and "Smilin' Tony" he has remained, for his little face wrinkles into a roguish smile at the slightest excuse. He never was a troublesome patient and has recovered rapidly.

Dr. Sears, who has been in daily attendance on the boy, says that when Tony is discharged his leg and arm will be as straight and strong as ever. The skull injury, always the most serious, was the first to heal. Without the prompt attention of the hospital, Dr. Sears says, Tony probably would have died, and almost certainly would have been a cripple.

Tonys case is typical of hundreds on the records of Beverly hospital, and is one of the reasons the hospital's appeal for $100,000 is meeting such general approval among the residents of Beverly, Danvers, Manchester, Hamilton and Wenham.

"WORKING WITH GOD"

Rev. F. W. Manning Preaches on Subject at Manchester Rev. Frederic W. Manning conclud-

Rev. Frederic W. Manning concluded his sermon last Sunday morning at the Congl. church, Manchester, on "Working with God," as follows:

"In closing this sermon you will pardon me, I am sure, if I take occasion to speak a personal word. I wish to thank you, my people, for your great kindness to me. Friends in the church and town, and friends in the church in Swampscott, too, have given me generous help in bearing my burdens. I wish you, my friends, to realize how much I and those for whom I speak appreciate your desire to help us. I want you to know that you have given me something far more precious than material assistance. You have been working together with God to make all my burdens and troubles work together for the good of my soul.

"I realize that I am under a debt of gratitude that I can best repay by rendering every Christ-like service possible in this community. To do this will be not only my duty, but my highest happiness. In bearing one another's burdens we are fulfilling the law of Christ, we are working with God to make all things work together for good to them that love Him. In every good work we work better than we know for God works with us."

LOST LIFE HAULING LOBSTER TRAPS
OFF MANCHESTER

Antone Brown, 69 Friend st., Gloucester, lost his life off the westerly end of Singing Beach, Manchester, Tuesday, when his boat was presumably swamped in a rough sea. He was last seen about 9.30 a. m. pulling traps near the shore and a little later the boat was discovered almost a total wreck. Nothing has since been seen or heard from the missing fisherman.

No one knows how the accident happened, and it is only a guess as to whether the engine balked and he was capsized by the heavy swell, or whether the boat hit a ledge. It is also possible that he was carried overboard while unloading a trap and the unguided craft later piled up a wreck.

Pieces of wreckage were washed

Pieces of wreckage were washed ashore, including the house of the boat and a life preserver. The Dolliver Neck Coast Guard crew under Captain King raised the boat Tuesday afternoon and towed it to Gloucester. There was too much sea Tuesday to grapple for the body.

REFORESTRATION OF NORTH SHORE LANDS NOW POSSIBLE

The North Shore Forestry association is beginning a campaign for the preservation of forests in this locality, for they have been much disturbed by the ruthless cutting of timber, as well as the forest fires, which although not of large proportions, are doing much damage.

In a recent article in the American Forestry magazine is the following comment on an act which went into effect Aug. 5:

"The new Forest Act passed at the last session of the Massachusetts legislature, is in reality a subtitute for the bill presented by the Massachusetts Forestry association which was based upon an initiative petition signed by more than 31,000 citizens of the commonwealth which provided for the purchase and replanting of 250,000 acres of land during a period of 10 years, and was to be financed by a serial bond issue with interest compounded during the period of production, the annual cost of maintenance to be paid out of current revenue.

"The committee of ways and means, after many conferences with the friends of the measure, reported a bill considerably modified, reducing the amount of land to be acquired to 100, 000 acres, also eliminating the bond feature. The cost of land acquired under this act, must not exceed an average price of $5 an acre. If, however, it is found that a sufficient amount of land cannot be acquired at this price the legislature may from time to time increase the rate.

"In this way, possibly, some results may be obtained in combating the wiping out of forestry growths. There are sections on the North Shore which might well come to the attention of the Massachusetts Forestry association for purchase and replanting."

A play and fair will be given in aid of the Boston Children's hospital at Mrs. Maynard Ladd's studio, Preston pl., next Monday, Sept. 13.

Here it is—the dance given by the "Hello" girls for the benefit of the M. J. Cadigan post, A. L. Everybody has been looking forward to it—and now the date is set, Thursday, Sept. 23, and Long's orchestra has been engaged for the dancing. Anything the Beverly Farms operators take hold of is usually a success. They did lots of things during the war, for the Red Cross and allied movements. The American Legion will benefit by their efforts now. Buy a ticket and help the girls—and, incidentally, help the boys.

The captains, lieutenants and corps of workers of Beverly Farms who took part in the drive for funds for the Beverly hospital held a meeting last Tuesday evening in the assembly hall of the local public library for the purpose of perfecting plans for this most worthy cause. The coöperation of all is necessary to make the drive a success

The annual dance of Clan Wallace, No. 127, O. S. C., was held at Neighbors hall Thursday evening and was a big event. The music of the bag pipes, the Scottish dances and the numerous Highland costumes made a most pleasing and interesting novel event—one thoroughly enjoyed by the large attendance.

At the present time 176 women in Ward 6 have registered to vote. Of this number, 47 live in the Centerville section. With the meeting of the Beverly Board of Registrars for the November election this number will be greatly increased, as many other Beverly Farms women have made known their desire to take advantage of this new duty.

Campaign for Funds for Beverly Hospital Now in Full Swing— Do Your Part in This Community Welfare Movement

THE campaign of Beverly hospital to raise $100,000 in the week of Sept. 9-16 in the towns of Beverly, Danvers, Manchester, Hamilton and Wenham was successfully launched yesterday morning (Thursday) when more than 250 volunteer workers began seeking subscriptions to the fund, following a dinner on Wednesday evening, tendered by the campaign executive committee in City hall, Beverly.

This dinner and the enthusiasm engendered among the various teams by several stirring speeches, sent the workers out the next morning determined to make a new record for the five towns in the matter of upholding such deserving public institutions as Beverly hospital.

Chester C. Pope, the energetic and popular chairman of the campaign executive committee, presided and addresses were delivered by John L. Saltonstall, president of the hospital board; Mayor James McPherson, speaking on behalf of the city of Beverly; Lawrence A. Ford, a member of the executive committee, and Cornelius M. Smith, of New York, the campaign director.

In his opening address Mr. Pope outlined briefly what the hospital means to Beverly and vicinity and called upon Mr. Saltonstall for a more definite statement of the hospital's claims upon the community. Mr. Saltonstall said that in asking for public aid to the extent of $100,000 the directors had in mind a deficit of about $28,000 which has accumulated during the last four years, while the hospital's overhead charges have increased steadily without a corresponding increase in income; an item estimated at $25,000 for some necessary repairs to the present plant; and $45,000 needed for the upkeep of the institution and the maintenance of its high reputation for service and efficiency.

Possible improvements, all of them greatly needed, were discussed by the speaker, who declared that a fund of $250,000 at least would be necessary if the hospital was to expand in keeping with the steadily increasing demands made upon it. He mentioned the liberal support always accorded by the summer residents and emphasized the fact that this is the first public appeal for aid ever made on behalf of the institution, notwithstanding its 27 years of service to the community, which has included a heavy percentage of free treatment.

Mayor McPherson, as head of the city government, was the next speaker, and he dwelt on the hospital as a public institution of prime necessity to the community. He declared it was unthinkable that Beverly would fall down on a civic enterprise of this kind, and exhorted the workers to go out and bend every effort to put the campaign over the top with a liberal margin to spare.

Lawrence A. Ford was introduced by Mr. Pope as a man who could speak of the hospital from personal experience, he having been a patient there. Mr. Ford painted a gripping word picture of what the hospital means to Beverly and what it has done for thousands of Beverly citizens and he called for everybody to stand up and give three cheers as an evidence of their enthusiasm for the cause. The assemblage was on its feet in a minute and the cheers fairly rocked the building.

Use Your Toes, Girls

Girls, this is intended for you. Can you pick up a pencil with your toes?

If you can, you walk correctly.

If you walk correctly you wear "sensible shoes."

So speaketh Miss Ruth McCoy, physical director of Cincinnati.

Miss McCoy is advocating a "sensible shoe campaign.'

"Lifting a pencil with the toes—the toes pressing the pencil against the ball of the foot-shows that the owner of those toes walks properly, exercising all the muscles and making them strong," says Miss McCoy.

Test your toes. If they carry the pencil, forget the subject. If they don't, take a look at your shoes—are they "sensible?" They are! Fine! Then it ought to be easy walking correctly. Walking correctly is a stepping-stone to physical beauty, good health, excellence in athletics and housework.—Haverhill Gazette.

A SHIRT TALE

The Scoutmaster was talking to one of his tenderfoot Scouts. "Boy," he said, "you will have to make your own way in the world some day. Do you know the meaning of energy and enterprise?"

"No, sir," replied the tenderfoot, "I don't believe I do."

"Well, I'll tell you. One of the richest men in the world came to this city without a shirt on his back, and now he has millions."

The tenderfoot looked puzzled.

The tenderfoot looked puzzled. "Millions?" he repeated in wonderment, "Why, how many does he wear at a time?"—Boys' Life.

WOMEN ARE EXEMPT

NOT LIABLE TO POLL TAX ASSESSMENT UNDER PRESENT LAWS

Massachusetts women will not have to pay a poll tax before they can vote—neither will they be assessed for such a tax. The poll tax will have no relation whatever to the right of women to vote, if the suffrage amendment is ratified in time for the presidential election. Nor will the poll tax have any bearing on their rights to vote at future elections, unless the Legislature should see fit to change the law.

The law says that every male inhabitant over 20 years of age shall be assessed a poll tax. It was at least a generation ago that the provision that the payment of a poll tax should be one of the requisites to voting was stricken from the State constitution.

The law intends that every male inhabitant of the Commonwealth of voting age shall pay a poll tax, whether he votes or not. When he goes to be registered as a voter he is required to present his poll tax bill, or receipt, or a certificate from the assessors, showing he has been assessed. This is to establish his claim as a resident of the state and city.

Hence the common belief that only a poll tax payer can vote. It is true, in the case of men, simply because every male inhabitant of over 20 years of age is subject to such a tax. But, as stated, Massachusetts years ago drew a line between the poll tax requirement and the qualifications to vote.

Possibly after the women receive full suffrage the state may decide they should pay a poll tax. But until the poll tax law is changed it will continue to apply only to male inhabitants. If the law should be amended to take in women, then women would be obliged to pay a poll tax whether they voted or not

With the approach of woman suffrage and the activities in anticipation of its realization in time to permit women to vote at the November election, doubts have assailed even city officials as to whether the poll tax would not apply to women. In other words, if they would not have to be assessed a poll tax before they could vote.

Meanwhile, the women themselves have taken up the question with considerable talk. They have been wondering whether they should be obliged to pay the full $5 poll tax at present imposed, to help meet the war bonus payments, or if they would have to pay only the regular $2 assessment.

Leaders of the women's organizations in the two parties have entertained the possibility that if the poll tax were applied to women before they could vote it would discourage many from registering.

THE little play and fair given by "The Great Mogul's Company of Comedians" at Mrs. Maynard Ladd's studio, Beverly Farms, Monday, was a great success. The children cleared $425; which enables them to found four beds at the Children's hospital. Of this amount, $100 was made by the individual work of the children, $70 by gifts, and the rest through their entertainment.

Among the hundred present were Mme. Gronitch and the Misses Loring; Mmes. Gordon Abbott, Bernard Weld, Higginson, Wadsworth, Gavit, Coolidge, Cummings, Ellery Sedgwick (whose three children looked most picturesque in Venetian dress); the heroine of "Aucassin" and her sisters, the Misses Hopkinson; Mrs. John A. A history of the "American Field Service," edited by Col. A. Piatt Andrew, of Eastern Point, Gloucester, was issued last week by the Houghton, Mifflin Co., publishers. The publication is a history of a volunteer organization of ambulance drivers who served with the French army from 1915 to the last of 1917, when it was absorbed by the United States army. Col. Andrew was the organizer. The volume is largely composed of letters and diaries of those who comprised the organization, most of whom were university men. The work is in three volumes of 550 pages each and it shows a great deal of difficult, earnest work in its preparation and successful issue.

Special guests of the day were Miss Mary H. Pew, who has but recently returned from the Pacific coast, and Miss Gertrude Lambert, who has returned from ambulance driving in Serbia. Miss Lambert received a Croix de Guerre during the World War, for her service in driving an ambulance in the war zone; she was wounded by bursting shrapnel and invalided home, and is one of the most interesting of the young women visiting on the Shore. An Engagement of special interest to the North Shore is that of Miss Hélène Whitehouse, of Mt. Kisco, N. Y., and Charles Cobb Walker, of West Manchester. Announcement was made last Friday. Miss Whitehouse is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Whitehouse, of Mt. Kisco and New York city. She was introduced to society last winter. The late William Fitzhugh Whitehouse was her grandfather; for many years he was identified with the life in Newport, where he had a villa, "Eastbourne Lodge." Her mother was Miss Ethel Duntze, daughter of Sir George Duntze, Bart. William F., J. Norman and Sheldon Whitehouse are her uncles. Sheldon Whitehouse's engagement to Miss Mary Crocker Alexander was recently announced.

Mr. Walker is the only son of the late William Bentley Walker, and of Mrs. Walker, who lives the year-round at "Highwood," West Manchester, one of the most extensive estates on the whole North Shore. He is a graduate of Harvard and is a member of all the well-known clubs.

It is understood the wedding will take place this fall, probably in early October.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis M. Whitehouse planned to close their house at Manchester next week, and go to their winter residence in New York, but have delayed their departure because of the forthcoming Walker-Whitehouse wedding. Miss Whitehouse is a niece of Mr. Whitehouse and was on the Shore a few weeks ago for the launching of Mr. Armour's houseboat, the "Ava."

SOME of the problems women will have to meet at the approaching national election were freely discussed at a large meeting of North Shore women held Wednesday of last week at Mrs. Edgar R. Champlin's residence, Mingo Beach hill, Pride's Crossing. More than 175 attended the meeting-the first of its kind held on the Shore since suffrage was proclaimed law.

Miss Katharine P. Loring, of Burnside, Pride's Crossing, presided, and the speakers were Senator Augustus P. Loring, of Pride's Crossing, and Mrs. Wm. Lowell Putnam, of Manchester. Although active as an anti-suffragist, Mrs. Putnam told the gathering that now that women had been granted the right to vote, it was their duty to do so and urged registration and participation in the elections. She told of many laws of benefit to the community, state and nation which women could support. Senator Loring gave some practical information as to the ways of voting and discussed the League of Nations and other important issues. He also answered several questions concerning election affairs in a very satisfactory manner.

IPSWICH had a number of social functions the past season that interested North Shore people generally, but none that left such a lasting impression as the entertainment by the children at the Italian garden at "Castle Hill," two weeks ago, put on by Miss Consuelo Bates. It is gratifying to learn that nearly $1200—$1194 to be exact—was realized, for the benefit of the Cable Memorial hospital.

The engagement was announced recently of Miss Barbara Campbell, daughter of Major and Mrs. Jere Campbell (nee Hood), and Dana Trimble, of Toronto. The Campbells have a summer home, "Merryfield," on Fruit st., Ipswich. Mr. Trimble served with the Canadian forces in the war, and was commissioned a lieutenant.

Miss Florence Higginbotham, of Chicago, a niece of Mrs. R. T. Crane, Jr., is at Ipswich for a short visit with Miss Consuelo Bates.

The death of Mrs. Ellen Howard Welch, of Brookline, at her summer place, "Far-a-Field," Labor-in-vain rd., Ipswich, last week, is learned with much regret by her many friends in the North Shore colony. Mrs. Welch formerly lived in Germantown, Pa.

The last meeting of the North Shore Garden club for this season—the most active and interesting in its history—will be held next Wednesday with Mrs. George H. Lyman, Beverly Farms. Officers will be elected, as one of the items of business.

MR. AND MRS. EZRA C. FITCH closed their summer home, "Riverhouse," on Norton's Point, West Manchester, yesterday and returned to Boston. They expect to sail for Europe the first of next week, to visit their daughter and family in England, and to travel on the continent.

Standish Backus and family left Manchester Wednesday for their winter home in Detroit, Mich. They have occupied "Alabama," one of the Harris cottages, on Smith's Point, the past season.

Horticultural hall, Manchester-by-the-Sea, Tuesday evening, Sept. 21, Holman Day's "King Spruce," a story of the great Maine woods.

VERILY, VERILY Mrs. Maynard Ladd, the sculptor, would never recognize her old studio if she were dropped some time at "The Oaks," her former studio remodelled into the charming little cottage occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pelham Curtis, Jr. (Edith Roelker), on Smith's Point, Manchester.

Mrs. Ladd would have to draw much upon her imagination to find where her statues stood in what is now a little hall, a living-room, a dining-room, a guest chamber and a big veranda downstairs, besides the service quarters.

If she were searching for some favorite old nook where a famous fountain piece had stood in the old days she might run up against some of those rare old pieces of furniture that have descended to Mrs. Curtis. These she would find filling the part devoted to the living-room quarters at present.

Upstairs, where the shades of some of her striking bronze figures seem still to linger, Mrs. Ladd would be surprised to find the daintiest of chambers and here, too, an old set of the Empire period that would pass muster with anything in the artistic line.

The house is still being painted and worked upon a little and presents a pleasing sight down among the trees by the roadside.

"Aucassin and Nicolete," the children's play given on Friday and Saturday of last week at Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby's riding ring, West Manchester, proved a most delightful and charming affair, despite the inclement trend of the weather. The play was presented by the children under the direction of Misses Edith King and Dorothy Coit, of New York, by the supervision of Mrs. Charles Hopkinson—and was for the benefit of the American Academy in Rome. The cast of characters included young members of some of the North Shore's best-known families, as follows (in the order of their appearance):

Prologue, Vernon Ladd; minstrels, Peter de Florez and Joan Hopkinson; Count Garin de Biaucaire, John Noble, Jr.; Aucassin, his son, Jane Noble; captain of the city, Betty Bouton; Nicolete, Elinor Hopkinson; pages, Nathan Hayward and Sarah Hayward; knights, Anna Walcott, John Walcott, Richard Walcott and Avery Sawyer; Count Bougars de Valence, Rosamond Forbes; sentinel, Agnes Lake; shepherds, Robert Walcott, Barbara Mayor and Owen Tudor; wife to captain of the city, Lorraine Warner; child, Margot Warner, and lady, Elizabeth Lee Saltonstall.

The scenery, properties and costumes, all specially arranged for this occasion, were designed from miniatures in illuminated French manuscripts of the 13th and 14th centuries, and the music was selected from French songs of the same period.

Mrs. A. Octavia Wilkins has come from Cambridge to her cottage in Magnolia for an autumn visit.

Season of mists and mellow fruitfulness!

A FAMILIAR TYPE

He is a familiar type: The fussy, fretful man who imagines that he is about the busiest fellow in town. He often dumps in the waste basket, unwrapped, copies of business or technical magazines that contain valuable articles bearing directly on his problem. He fondly believes that he is too busy practicing to bother with what others are "preaching."

The trouble with this type of man is that he has not learned that the real executive is the man who so plans his work as to leave a reasonable amount of time for reading and planning.

There are shoals and breakers ahead when accumulation of new ideas ceases.

The man who declares he has not time to read is unconsciously advertising his small calibre, his slavery to detail, his arrested development.—Printers' Ink.

Apprehensions are greater in proportion as things are unknown.—Livy.

Force is all-conquering, but its victories are short-lived.—Abraham Lincoln.

Christmas Gift Buying in September

Many of our patrons are now selecting their gifts for Christmas, saving themselves the rush and bother of last-minute buying. Distinction of the wares and the modesty of the prices make the idea better than a new time-saving device.

ALONG THE CAPE ANN AND GLOUCESTER SHORE

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

CAPE ANN.—The season on Cape Ann all around has been most satisfactory. Every hotel has had its share of patronage and the outlook for the next season appears favorable. The present week finds some of the houses closing, while next week the final number of people will be taking their departure.

The Universalist celebration in August brought people to Gloucester from all directions of the country, north, east, south and west and most complimentary things have been spoken of the charm of the place as a summer resort. Many of these people are planning to come to Cape Ann for another season.

Plans for the new memorial park to Gloucester soldiers and sailors who sacrificed their lives in the great World war are maturing gradually. Already much of the property along the beach side of Western ave. has been secured by the city. It is planned to have all the land on the water side of the avenue cleared and laid out attractively with trees and shrubbery, connecting with the grounds farther up beyond the bridge, thus making a handsome boulevard. Contributions from summer residents are being received from time to time. The pageant held at the Hawthorne Inn the first of the month added to the park fund.

Mrs. Stoughton L. Fletcher and daughter, Miss Laura Fletcher, and servants, are preparing to leave this week for Indianapolis, Ind., after the season spent at the Gillet cottage on Grape Vine rd.

The Ocean View House at Pigeon Cove has closed after a very successful season. Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Chick, who manage the house expect to go to Miami, Fla., this season as they did last year.

EASTERN POINT.—After the present week the hotels in this section will have a small number of guests, while some houses will close for the season. Every hotel manager says "a very good season," and now that the summer has sped kindly the hope quickly turns to the outcome of 1921. It is rather early to predict, but already rooms are being reserved for tourists and cottages along shore are engaged for next season.

The twenty members of the Selznick Film Company, from New York, which will act in East Gloucester for a motion picture play, arrived at the Harbor View hotel, Eastern Point rd., last week-end. The company expects to remain at least three weeks.

The exhibitions of paintings at the local studios have ended for the season. There have been many of them and the number of visitors during the summer has been great. The one-man shows are appreciated and next season the art year promises to be an unusually interesting one.

Recent guests of Miss Caroline Sinkler, of Philadelphia, at her charming Eastern Point summer home, were Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Roosevelt.

One of Eastern Point's most interesting summer residents, returning to New York after a pleasant season, is Arthur Bodansky, conductor of the Metropolitan Opera and the new National Symphony orchestra. Mr. and Mrs. Bodansky have been occupying "Windover," the studio cottage erected many years ago by Parker B. Mann, the artist, and which later became the property of the Curtis family, of New York. Mrs. Bodansky has returned to New York to enter upon a most interesting musical season. Mr. Bodansky is a man of extraordinary character. This young leader of about 35 years of age has conducted in all the big cities of Europe—Paris, London, Rome, Vienna, Berlin, Cologne, Munich, Moscow, Kiev, Odessa, Petrograd. He is an Austrian by birth, his career beginning when he was still a small boy as a first violinist in Vienna. Mr. Bodansky is extremely fond of this section of the North Shore. He has traveled wide, but he has discovered no place so enchanting as this beautiful stretch of land bordered by harbor and BASS ROCKS.—The hotel Moorland closes the coming week after a successful season. The Thorwald will remain open until the 28th, many people remaining for a late season.

Dr. Wm. Jarvie and daughter, Miss Amelia Jarvie, who have been spending the summer in Europe, are expected to spend October at "Craigmoor," the Jarvie estate at Bass Rocks.

The past season at the Bass Rocks golf links has been made interesting with its varied tournaments and already plans are being formulated for the next season's schedule. The tennis courts have been constantly in use and the committee in charge of the tournaments has been efficient and active. Bass Rocks tennis players, especially, are interested in the recent announcement of the capture of the title of women's national singles champion by Mrs. Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, who has played often on the courts of the Bass Rocks club. She spent the summer of 1918 at a cottage on Souther rd., Bass Rocks, and her sister, Mrs. Ralph W. Pope, is a cottage resident of the colony. Mrs. Wightman, as Hazel Hotchkiss, of California, won the national singles twice and she returned to the event last season after a lapse of nine years and again captured the title. She is a thorough sportswoman and is universally popular among the tennis players of the country. She presents a trophy, a handsome Grecian silver cup, to the United States Tennis association for international competition among women and it is expected that it will be at stake for the first time next year, possibly with an Amercan team opposing Canadian girls.

ROCKPORT.—Target practice of the 42d Coast Artillery has been watched with interest during the past week or more by the people along shore. On Thursday of last week the firing was most successful. Eighteen shots were fired in nine salvos from B battery of four-inch guns. Owing to a haze that prevailed the target was ranged to a limit between 14,000 and 15,000 yards. At the finish of the firing all the shots were within four yards from the target.

Mrs. E. R. Mosely has leased a part of the E. T. Kimball house near Phillips ave., Pigeon Cove, for her gift shop.

Edward Shippen Barnes, the well-known organist, of New York, who is spending the season in Rockport, gave an organ recital at the First Congregational church, Rockport, last Sunday afternoon, and his playing was thoroughly enjoyed by the large congregation. His selections included the Fifth Sonata by Mendelssohn; Chorale, Andante con moto and Finale; "The Prayer" — Minuetto by Eugene Gigout and "The Scripture Lesson"—Air, "On the G String," by Bach; "Salut D'Armour," Edward Elgar; "Andantino," A. Chauvet; "Pastorale," Cesar Franck, and "Solem Prelude," composed by Mr. Barnes.

Hotel Edward at Pigeon Cove closed this week after a very successful season.

ANNISQUAM.—Although the hotels in this section are keeping open several days longer to accommodate guests who wish to stay, the Annisquam cottagers are leaving somewhat earlier than usual.

Henry H. White, Jr., and family, who have been occupying the Cunningham cottage on River rd., Annisquam, this season, have left for their home in Jackson, Tenn.

T. Grafton Abbott and family have returned to their home in Winchester after spending the summer in Annisquam. The Abbotts occupied the upper Graves cottage in June and July and "The Pines," the Lingard estate, through August.

Mr. and Mrs. Nathaniel Sample and family have taken their departure for Philadelphia. Mrs. Sample and children have been spending the summer at Spruce cottage, River rd., Annisquam, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George I. Aldrich.

Stillman E. Williams and family have left Annisquam for Winchester after a season spent at Rockledge cottage, Norwood Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Adams, of Ann Arbor, Mich., are occupying Rocknest cottage, on Adams Hill, Annisquam. J. Devereaux Winslow and family, who occupied the cottage, returned to Boston last week.

The Jewett house on Bridgewater st., Annisquam, is being occupied by Frank Carpenter and family, of New Jersey.

Dr. Ellice McDonald and family, who have been the occupants of Stantial cottage on Cambridge ave., Annisquam, during the summer, have left for their Philadelphia home.

Rev. and Mrs. C. W. Harvey have closed their cottage on Annisquam Heights and returned to Philadelphia.

Mr. and Mrs. David Wyman and little son have been the guests of the former's mother, Mrs. Wm. H. Wyman, at Annisquam, returning the first of the week to Milwaukee, Wis.

Ernest J. Steer, of Montclair, N. J., spent last weekend with his family in the Annisquam colony.

The Ralph T. Hales, of Winchester, have taken their departure from Overlook cottage, Cambridge. They expect to occupy the same cottage next summer.

Franklin D. L. Stowe and family have returned to their home in Buffalo, N. Y., after spending August and a portion of September in Birge cottage, Annisquam.

An important change in the summer guest house business at Pigeon Cove is the leasing by Mrs. D. C. Babson of her Clifford House and several of her cottages for a term of three years, to Mrs. Williams Rodgers, of Boston.

MARBLEHEAD.—Miss Alice Brown, of Sewickley, Pa., who spent most of the summer months at the Hotel Rockmere, Marblehead, has returned to her home in the Pennsylvania state. Miss Brown is an accomplished tennis player and met all comers during her stay at the Shore.

The yachting season at Marblehead is fast on the wane, for with the coming of cooler weather, Marblehead people are going home and their boats are being hauled out of the water. Yachting interest this week has been centering about Greenwich, Conn., where a three-day race has been on for the Manhasset cup.

The Wasaka II owned by John J. HERE and THERE with NORTH SHORE FOLK

THEIR VARIED INTERESTS AND ACTIVITIES

MISS RUTH WIGGLESWORTH'S name on a little pamphlet caught our attention recently. "A new profession in the service of humanity" headed the pamphlet, which dealt with the work of the Boston School of Occupational Therapy. Miss Wigglesworth, of Manchester and Boston, or Miss Marjorie Belle Greene are the ones to whom application in person or writing may be made at 7 Harcourt st.,

Women are trained to become reconstruction aides in occupational therapy for military and civil hospitals. Established in 1918 for the purpose of training aides in military and naval hospitals it is still continuing its work as there is much need along this line. The last year of the war firmly settled the "ward occupation" work as an essential part of hospital routine. Wounded and gassed men needed something to make their convalescence rapid and endurable. The medical profession saw what occupation work did for these patients and have come to appreciate the therapeutic, educational, vocational and recreational value and importance of rightly directed occupational work, the pamphlet states.

So here is a new profession open to women. civilian hospitals now want trained workers, "hospital teachers." It is said that the demand is greater than the supply all over the country. In time every institution, no doubt, will employ at least one aide.

Applicants for this Boston school must be between 20 and 40 years of age; must possess suitable personality (an important requirement); must demonstrate some artistic or mechanical skill or training that will especially prepare them to excel in one or more of the major subjects of the course; and are expected to enter the course with the intention of becoming professionals, accepting positions, it is hoped, for full or part time work at the end of the term. A personal interview is necessary before one can be taken into the school. The tuition fee is $200, with materials extra, and the course includes twelve months, hours, 9 to 4, five days in the week.

Among the subjects in the course are the following: Applied design, basketry, block printing, bookbinding and leather work, chair seating, jewelry, modeling, weaving, wood carving, wood work and whittling, minor crafts and practice teaching. The latter includes three months of actual experience work. Students learn hospital ethics, manner of approaching patients, kind of work best adapted to the patients needs and the buying, distributing and care of supplies. Lectures along medical lines are also a part of

The school during the war and since has made a national reputation for the excellence of its work. Its graduates again and again have been selected for responsible po-

Mrs. S. Parker Bremer, also of Manchester, is a member of the advisory committee. Miss Wigglesworth was one of the tireless and energetic workers during war days. Miss Wigglesworth spent nearly every day of the past season in Boston at "work." We did not know the great scope of her work until this pamphlet accidentally came to our notice. Thinking that Breeze readers are found all over our United States and elsewhere who might be interested in this "new profession in the service of humanity" we have made this little summary of the work carried on at the Sloyd Training school, 7 Harcourt st., Boston. Readers may be interested in knowing that the full-time intensive day courses enable this school to furnish in the shortest possible time the necessary training to young women who wish to become qualified in this line of work. Post graduate courses are also arranged upon special application.

If you do not want to be a nurse perhaps your line lies with convalescent children, men and women patients recovering from ordinary diseases, or from casualities in industry, or other accidents.

"If by more certain and rapid reclaimation, even a small percentage of these patients are saved to society, not only is society itself largely recompensed, but the individuals personally will be ever more benefitted."

SEPTEMBER CLOUDS

By ALEX. G. TUPPER

SKIES are now appearing grayer In the cool September days, And the clouds curl like the dust From chariots in the arena race. The hills around, all flecked with red Are like the cloaks of gathered throng Watching Time speed overhead, While the woods and fields in song, Make the world glad in its pace.

Such is summer's haloed glory Paling in September's gray; Borne on chariots of hours, Chimed by winds that cooler grow. Older, sweeter is the story, Sadder droop the fading flowers, While the brilliant throng is shouting On the hopeful world below.

DADDY'S BIRTHDAY GIFT

By Rebecca T. Hodges

Mr. Andrews took a small flat package from his pocket and handed it across the table to his daughter.

"Here, Sue, Girlie," he said, "see what your old Dad has brought you. It isn't every day in the week that girl is just eighteen, and I hunted all over New York to find something that I thought you would like and that I felt was worthy of you-and yet have it anyway near what I could afford to pay."

He smiled at her proudly as she breathlessly opened the package.

Mrs. Andrews looked questioningly at her husband and then back at the excited girl.

"And to do all those things and fulfill every condition and yet get back here to Ohio in time for your birthday was some job, let me tell you that," he added, laughing.

Susan lifted the soft velvet cover of the box bearing the name of one of the biggest and most famous of New York jewelry houses.

She gasped with astonishment and clasped her hands in ecstasy.

"Like them?" asked her father in pleased delight.

"Like them!" she repeated, as she gazed unbelievingly. "Like them! Why, Daddy, I never saw anything so beautiful! Just look, mother! I can't believe they can really be for me!"

Mrs. Andrews rose from her chair and leaned over her daughter's shoulder. She reached out her hand and drew forth the string of pearls.

Faintly pink, yet creamily iridescent, wonderfully matched, just long enough to fall in a graceful line, they lay in her hands catching in a dim translucent manner the softened glow from the lamp.

"Pretty good for an artificial job, isn't it, Helen?" Mr.

Andrews asked, proudly.

"They never in the world are artificial, John," she declared, still gazing at them intently.

"They certainly are," he reiterated. "Goodness, Helen, you don't suppose for one minute I could touch real ones, do you?"

"Well, Daddy, no real pearls could be any lovelier, I know that!" Susan exclaimed.

"But, John, I never saw such exquisite things," Mrs.

Andrews insisted. "They are wonderful."

"Yes, I know they are," he assented. "Let me see them a minute. I must say, though, they are even more beautiful than they seemed at the jeweler's. I thought they were mighty good looking there, but when you get them away from all the others they seem to be bigger and creamier than before. I would have loved to have brought you real ones, girlie," he said, clasping the string around Susan's neck, "but I couldn't touch the price. But, believe me, I don't think they would be any prettier than these.

Susan flung her arms around her father's neck.

"You dear, sweet daddy!" she cried, kissing him impulsively, "You are the darlingest father!"

Then she flew to the mirror, her eyes bright with delight as she smiled back at the enchanting picture. creamy globules encircled her neck and fell down in a deep oval curve, each pearl a perfect replica of its neighbor.

"I never saw anything so lovely," she repeated, emphatically. "They are the most beautiful things I ever hope to see. I'm going over to the Howard's to show them my adorable birthday present."

She blew an enraptured kiss from her finger tips to her father and mother and then danced out of the door.

Mrs. Andrews turned inquiringly to her husband. "John Andrews," she exclaimed, "how much did those

"I don't suppose you will believe it, Helen," he answered, "but I only paid twenty-five dollars for them. They surely are the finest, cleverest imitation I ever saw, and, as I told you before, they are so much more striking here since they are away from all the others than they were in the store surrounded by dozens more. I couldn't afford to get Sue anything more expensive and yet I wanted something that I would be proud to have my daughter wear. I wanted it to be suitable, too. So, as I said, I found these and bought them. I'm glad you like them, dear."

"Like them, John!" Mrs. Andrews smiled. "I think they are beautiful and they are the sort of things a young girl Sue's age can wear and yet not be overdressed. I hate the ultra elaborateness so many girls assume nowadays.'

"Well, Helen, we don't have to worry much about that," he retorted, laughing. "Platinum and diamonds are not in our class-but imitation pearls, yes.'

The weeks and months sped by and Susan's delight in her father's gift remained as keen as ever. She had the joyous feminine satisfaction of knowing that all her friends envied her the strand of softly glowing pearls. She wore the necklace constantly. Each separate sphere was no creamier than her own smooth skin and one seemed to enhance the beauty of the other. But the family never ceased to marvel at the astounding likeness between the lustre of the imitation and the sheen of the "Real Thing.

"I think, mother," Susan announced suddenly, one night, "that a part of this string is getting rather thin, and I'm afraid it will break. I couldn't bear to lose one single pearl."

She unclasped it and handed it to her father.

"Yes, see there, John," Mrs. Andrews pointed out, "there is a weak place."

"I believe you are right," he nodded, "I don't want to take them to any jeweler around here. I'm afraid they wouldn't be restrung properly. And even if they are synthetic they are too pretty to spoil. I tell you what I'll do,' he added, suddenly. "I have to go to New York next week again on business. All three of us will go and take in the theatre and shops, and incidentally we can see the jewelers where I purchased this and we'll have them fix it for us. How is that for a good idea!"
"O, glorious, daddy!" exclaimed Susan. "What fun!

New York! Won't that be nice, mother!"

Mrs. Andrews agreed delightedly.

"John Andrews-how sweet of you to think of it. Sue and I will shop to our heart's content-gowns and hats and gloves—O, dear me!"

She put her arm around Susan's waist and hugged her joyfully

Mr. Andrews chuckled.

"Don't forget, though," he warned, "my pocketbook has its limitations. If I only had a thousand dollars extra you could splurge without any restrictions.'

The morning after their arrival in New York, Mr. Andrews said, at breakfast: "Come on, girls, don't you want to take the pearls to the store the first thing? We will get it off our mind and then, if they can restring them at once, Sue will have them in a day or two. Then," he laughed, "if there is any money left, you two can shop and we will meet for lunch."

They agreed and started forth. It was Susan's first visit to New York and the vastness and immensity of everything thrilled her exhilaratingly.

The walk up the crowded avenue, with the lumbering busses and endless procession of sleek long motors in the streets, and the trim smartness of the hundreds of women whom they passed, set her nerves tingling.

The air was crisp with late fall. The shop windows were exquisite in their aesthetic bareness. In solitary grandeur, behind silk or lace hung plate glass, reposed a narrow satin slipper or a chaste, severe hat.

"O, if I were only rich and could buy and buy," she sighed, and pinched her father's arm.

"Daddy, isn't this all wonderful?" she breathed.

He nodded and ushered them into the big and well known jeweler's shop.

Quiet deferential clerks waited attentively behind the myriads of glass counters, displaying priceless gems to possible purchasers. An air of cold elegance pervaded the place. Apparently no one seemed to pay the least attention to them and Sue's eyes roamed eagerly about the room as she leaned idly against the wall. Mr. Andrews turned to the formally polite clerk who finally approached them.

"I wish to have my daughter's pearls restrung," he "I bought them here about six months ago and while they are only imitation, yet we think they are too nice to have them carelessly handled."

The man murmured a courteous assent and they turned toward Susan. She had raised her arms and was unclasping the strand. As his eyes caught the faint translucence of the necklace, he started, and grasped the edge of the counter and leaned far over, his mouth opening in amazement and a look of utter incredulity on his face.

Suddenly recovering himself he stretched out his hand for the pearls and muttering incoherently ran towards the back of the store and disappeared behind one of the closed doors.

GLIMPSES HERE AND THERE OF

NORTH SHORE ESTATES

Hunderbolt Hill," Masconomo st., Manchester, has a literary history which, alone, would fill several Breezes.

Mr. and Mrs. William Dunlop Disston, of Philadelphia, have had this noted old house for two or three seasons.

In former days the hill was a mecca for friends of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Fields. Concisely stated Mr. Fields, "as publisher, lecturer, editor and critic, had both ability and bonhomie, and as a littérateur was of no little importance. His literary friendships were close and unusual." Mrs. Fields (Annie Adams) wrote interesting verse and reminiscences of her many literary friends and acquaintances.

Sarah Orne Jewett, the most intimate friend of Mrs. Fields, spent much time with her both in the Charles st.

house in Boston and at the Manchester home.

Miss Jewett, born in 1849, in South Berwick, Me., in "a colonial house built a hundred and fifty years before and untouched by modern hands. The old hip-roofed mansion, whose panelled hall with its wide arch and ample staircase and huge door opening into greenery of lofty trees beyond, gives one the very picture of hospitable welcome, was always her home." And from this old home every summer comes Miss Mary Jewett to visit Mrs. George Dudley Howe at "The Cliffs," Smith's Point, Manchester. Sarah Orne Jewett has frequently mentioned her sister, Mary, in her writings, one place saying, "Mary was dear and lovely; and the great day was hers as much as mine," referring to the day she had received a degree from Bowdoin college.

Many pretty things have been written about the Fields home in Manchester.

After the death of Mr. Fields, Mrs. Fields and Miss Jewett often went abroad; however, "usually in the summer they were to be found in the seaside house, built by Mr. Fields, on Thunderbolt Hill, at Manchester-by-the-Sea,which he used to be pleased to say was built with the proceeds of his lectures,—where the steep avenue leads up to a wonderful outlook of beauty set in the midst of flaming flowers, three sides overlooking the wide shield of the sea, but the fourth side so precipitous that the broad piazza there is only a turret chamber above the tops of the deep woods and orchards below, with the birds flying under it, and looking far over winding river, ripening meadow, and stretching sea again.

"There at night one by one the lights of the great Bay twinkle out in the pearly twilight, fluttering, yet fixed, as if strange, bright-winged things were impaled on the stone The summer sea, the soft dark, the cool and salty breath, were all a part of the peace that surrounded her (Mrs. Fields), in that ideal home of an ideal woman." So wrote Harriet Prescott Spofford in that delightful book of hers called "A Little Book of Friends."

Again she speaks of her sharing where "the eagle's eyrie of Thunderbolt Hill has been transformed into a place of flowers in Manchester-by-the-Sea.'

An old friend once said to Miss Jewett, "I want you to thank your mother for bringing you into the world."

Mrs. Spofford says that "the secret of Sarah Orne Jewett's great success in her work, outside of its artistic perfection, is the spirit of loving kindness and tender mercy that pervades it. And that is because the same spirit also pervaded herself. She loved her kind, and had the warmest interest in the actions and thoughts and feelings of those about her."

The following little poem by Sarah Orne Jewett has a tender local significance and we close our rambling bit of reminiscences about this estate in Manchester by quoting

THE GLOUCESTER MOTHER

When Autumn winds are high They wake and trouble me, With thoughts of people lost A-coming on the coast, And all the ships at sea.

How dark, how dark and cold, And fearful in the waves, Are tired folk who lie not still And quiet in their graves;-In moving waters deep, That will not let men sleep As they may sleep on any hill;
May sleep ashore till time is old,
And all the earth is frosty cold.—
Under the flowers a thousand springs They sleep and dream of many things.

God bless them all who die at sea! If they must sleep in restless waves, God make them dream they are ashore, With grass above their graves.

Bruce Barton, when asked what books young advertising men should read, replied, "The Bible." He pointed out that the basic principle of modern advertising-servicewas anticipated thousands of years ago in this book, which says: "If any man be great among you, let him be the servant of all." A library without the Bible is incomplete.

RIBLE CLASSES, where children loved togoand listen and study, were held every Thursday afternoon in St. John's church, Beverly Farms. Rev. Neilson Poe Carey is the teacher and children's friend. At a recent meeting their home work was handed in as usual, consisting of questions given in class to which they had supplied answers. Cynthia Means gave Mr. Carey a paper which she had written on a typewriter in excellent style. It contained only two minor mistakes in answers.

The senior class includes the following: Helen Mason, Ruth Swift, Frances and Natalie Hutchinson, Henry L. Mason, Edward S. Mrs. Sedgwick suggests that these things be a part of the life of our "Juniors." Another season when we open this department the birds will have returned from the southland and the pageant of the flowers will, indeed, be upon us. If Opal Whiteley's nature class enthusiasm has spread over the Shore then we may hope to have some of it "caught" for this page.

ALICE BOLAM PRESTON (Mrs. Frank Preston), of Beverly Farms, displayed some of the books for children she has illustrated, at the recent fair for St. John's church at Beverly Farms. Mrs. Preston hopes that children who read about her books will own them and enjoy the pictures as much as she does in making them.

GOVERNOR COOLIDGE SHOWS his usual good sense and sound judgment in his critical attack upon the form of the League of Nations suggested by Wilson and espoused by Cox and the Democratic party. He makes ten direct criticisms, every one of which is supportable:—The United States should be the sole judge of its own international responsibilities, and no use of the military or naval forces of the nation should be available without consent of Congress. Is there any reason why the mandates of an international board supported by the United States should not be subject to the approval or rejection of the Congress of the United States government? In developing our internal policies relative to internal and political affairs the nation must assert its independence. The interpretation of the Munroe Doctrine is not open for debate. America closed that subject years ago. It is the essence of the doctrine that America should determine its interpretation. The nation must object to anything that suggests injustice in the Shantung affair. To expect the nation to reverse its policy concerning the raising and appropriation of revenues would be disastrous and all payments to the league should and must be made by a vote of Congress in whose hands the Constitution has placed the authority to raise and appropriate government money. The menace of war is still before the world and as willing as America is to encourage peace and discourage armament it cannot afford, in the very interests of peace, to allow the league to tie its hands. The citizenship rights of Americans are primary and paramount. The injustice of any nation having more than one vote can easily be remedied and should not embarrass the relations of the nation in insisting upon a change in this clause.

Mr. Coolidge frankly favors any honorable effort to establish international comity and an arbitration of great international problems, but does object to a super-nation to which America must bow in respect to authority. The Republican party will save the League of Nations from failure. The Democratic party will drive it upon the rocks. As America is maintained upon the principle that the government obtains its power and authority by the consent of the governed, so the Association of the Nations must be based upon a similar authority, — that obtains its power from the consent of the duly constituted authorities of the nations. This is what the Republican party justly and honorably demands. It will eventually mean a stronger league.

IT SHOULD NOT BE overlooked that the new President undoubtedly will have the responsibility of appointing four if not five new members of the Supreme Court of the United States. Shall they be appointed by the opposition party with their well-established and well-known policies? Or, shall a Republican president select these men who are to serve in the highest judicial court in the nation.

THE NEWSPAPERS prophesied a reduction in the price of coal which was followed the next morning by an announcement of the increase in the price of that commodity. ROGER W. BABSON of our North Shore and of Wellesley, who is at the head of one of the best financial bureaus in the country, has made an observation concerning the value of the churches to the community. What he says is particularly true on the North Shore where the advent of the summer colony has embarrassed nearly every church for funds to maintain its work. The only way that these important influences for good can be maintained is by the generous support of their finances by the summer sojourners. Mr. Babson says, "The security of everybody and everything worth while—whether a house or a bank book, whether a pig or a kit of tools-depends on the churches. The security of your family depends on the priests rather than on the policemen, and the security of your property depends on the preachers rather than on the bankers. We become extravagant, careless, and selfish during good times. We forget God and feel confident in our own strength; we seek profits rather than service and are interested in consuming rather than producing. Only a revival of religion can make our good times continue. A subconscious knowledge of this fact is the basis of the fear abroad today. churches are to civilization what a compass is to a ship, or a steering wheel to an automobile. As a business man I urge my associates to get behind the churches. They alone provide the solution to the great problems facing us. Legislation, labor unions, employers' associations, and all these other things are mere shells of the egg. So I say, the need of the hour is not more houses or freight cars, not more factories or ships, not more legislation, education or banking facilities, but more religion. The need of the hour is reli-

Mr. Babson knows New England well. He knows the financial situation as well as any business man in New England can. His judgment is good. The churches on the North Shore face serious problems. The advent of the summer colonies along the Shore have inevitably resulted in the removal of attendants and the consequent lessening of the financial and moral support of the institutions. Every summer resident should endeavor to understand the church problem of the community in which he lives and support by his personal influence and by his financial aid the churches of that community. The life of the North Shore churches is dependent upon such interest being taken by the people who come to the Shore for the long season. Unless the churches are aided they will have to be discontinued, a consideration not to be tolerated even in thought. Only those who are intimately connected with the churches understand or realize the seriousness of their financial embarrassments. This is true of nearly every church from Rockport to Nahant that has felt the influence of the increasing summer population and the decreasing permanent population.

THE following excerpts in regard to library work may be of interest:

"The recent nation-wide study made by the United States Bureau of Education indicates that a very small proportion of the people who live in the open country and in villages and small towns have access to any adequate collection of books. Only 794 or 27 percent of the 2964 counties in the country have within their borders any library of 5000 volumes or more.

"The existence of this condition is almost incomprehensible to the average American. There is little wonder, then, that thousands of young people are abandoning the farms and that farmers find it almost impossible to obtain help, when even the entertainment and instruction provided by good books has been denied the rural sections of the country. 'Books for Everybody' is intensely interested in the establishment of good libraries in county seats, these central libraries to have branches throughout the county and to use public schools and other centers as distributing points. The plan is heartily endorsed by the Bureau of Education.

"Book wagons should be operated in farming districts and branch libraries should be established in villages and towns. The American Library association is a professional organization made up of four thousand active librarians in the United States. The association was established forty-

the league. There is a demand for the leadership of the Republican party in order that peace-time conditions may be resumed at the earliest possible moment. The control of Congress with a Republican president will place the party in a position to meet the new duties with authority and opportunity for action. Great tasks are before the nation, and the Republican organization is certain to change chaos into order. A Republican victory means a prompt attack upon the problems of the hour with progress and the resumption of peace-time programs for the development of the internal policies of the nation.

chant vessels satisfied and contented. Many of the books are instructive. This direct service was put into practice several months ago by the A. L. A. A report made public March 1, 1920, shows that a total of 174,642 books and 58,696 magazines have been placed in these libraries of the high seas. In addition, books have been served to coast-guard stations and lighthouses.

"Library service to the Merchant Marine means not only the placing of books and magazines regularly on all American merchant ships, but the providing of library agencies at all principal American and foreign ports, so that these books may be frequently exchanged and any man anywhere in the American Merchant Marine may borrow the particular book he wishes to read and study. Self-education is the present need and the libraries of the country have come forward to meet this need."

My Father is painting the landscape,
In colors beyond compare;
The valleys, the hills and the mountains,
Are beautiful everywhere;
He touches the trees of the forest,

His color He takes from the sunshine,
And His brush is the frost of the night.

Vacation's through, once more I'm home, No more I smell the country loam, Nor see at dusk the gentle cows As in the lane they stop to browse, Nor hear the clear stream laugh and sing, Or dip my glass in the moss-grown spring.

Vacation's great, but still I find It's good to have it off your mind. -Wabco News.

TELEPHONE SITUATION

North Shore, Like Other Sections, Affected by Industrial Conditions—Service Here as Good, if not Better, than Elsewhere

(The following article was prepared for the Breeze by Manager Irving W Rolfe, of the Gloucester-Manchester district of the N. E. T. & T. Co., at the solicitation of the editor, as an answer to the proverbial "kicks" about the telephone service.— Ed.)

THE general telephone situation is similar on the North Shore to that in other sections of Massachusetts or the country at large. Whereas it has not yet been necessary to place an embargo on the service, with the exception of one or two exchanges, yet many of the exchanges are fast reaching the time when such may be necessary. The scarcity of telephone material and the increased demand for telephone service has of course caused a very serious situation and all of these things have their direct and indirect effect upon all branches of telephone business.

The condition of affairs is such that the State Public Utilities board saw fit to issue a public statement to telephone users on the economical use of the telephone in order to aid the telephone company as much as possible in their present difficult situation.

The North Shore exchanges have just gone through one of the busiest seasons the telephone company has ever known. For instance, during July, 1919, there were 71,433 toll calls originating from the Salem toll center. In July, 1920, there were 78,906 toll calls. In August, 1919, there were 76,044 toll calls and in August, 1920, there were 80,132. Of these the number of calls passed on the so-called "two number" basis exceeded those passed on the straight "toll" basis as shown in the following table:

									N	Γι	u	m	ber only	- 1	Toll
July,	1919		۰	٠	٠		٠		,0				38,499	3	2,934
July,	1920	٠	٠	۰	٠		۰		۰		0		43,014	3	5,892
Aug.,													39,889	3	6,155
Aug.,	1920					٠							44,240	3	5,892

A few months ago, on account of the increased business on calls to New York, an additional direct circuit to New York was added.

The operators assigned to handling the toll traffic have been ample in number and although, on account of industrial conditions, it became necessary to make some changes, these changes came at a time of year when the traffic was lightest and it is felt that the traffic has been handled in a very equitable and efficient manner, all things considered. There have been but few instances where it was necessary to handle toll calls on a so-called "delayed basis," these instances occurring on Saturday mornings or days before and after a holiday.

The following figures might be interesting as to the daily number of local calls of some of the more important exchanges:

	191	9	1920
Exchange	July &	Aug.	July &	Aug.
Lynn	92,710	89,582	103,772	103,387
Salem	36,447	30,056	37,370	35,790
Marblehead	9,277	10,577	13,030	13,378
Beverly	18,415	19,121	24,414	23,004
Manchester	5,921	6,947	6,673	6,837
Gloucester	18,383	18,598	20,345	21,041

It is a fact that telephone service depends largely upon the human element and the correct operation of its delicate apparatus and therefore can never be continuously perfect, but the company's great desire is to reduce its errors to a minimum, including wrong number calls, false don't answer and busy reports and cut offs, all of which is bound to happen to most of us at some time or other during the year. The company has been in the past and is at the present doing all that it can through advertising, circulars mailed with the monthly bills and invitations to visit local exchanges to instruct its subscribers the details of local and toll operating methods and the inside workings of a telephone exchange so that when trouble is experienced the subscriber himself, through his own knowledge, will be able to help himself and at the same time aid the company to straighten out what at first might seem a complicated and irritating matter. Perseverance sometimes wins the day in this respect. For instance, supposing that a call was passed to Fort Hill 975 and supposing, too, that the subscriber at Fort Hill 975 was, a large banking house equipped with a private branch exchange switchboard. If the calling subscriber received a "don't answer" report on this call he would immediately understand that such could not possibly be, unless the toll operator or the Fort Hill exchange operator had misunderstood the number desired, or the bells were not functioning properly at the distant end of the line. He would then take it upon himself to seek the assistance of the toll supervisor who would immediately see to it that the call went through correctly and without further delay.

FOR SALE

If you've a house or farm for sale,
Some one has got to tell the tale;
How many chickens, ducks and pigs,
And wagons, sleighs and other rigs.
How many horses, steers and cows—
Binders, mowers, drills and plows,
And other things about the place,
Omitted here for want of space.
We tell them where your farm's located
And at what price it's valuated.
We advertise your shop and benches,
Your grindstone, tools and monkey—wrenches—

The acreage your farm contains,
And how it carries off the rains,
Preventing any chance of floods
That rust the beans and rot the spuds.
We state what's under cultivation—
And if you're near a shipping station.
How much in orchard—age of trees—
And prove your fruit can never freeze.
How many acres in fall wheat—
And if you're near the county seat.
The moral of this little tale
Is, when you've anything for sale,
You shouldn't hesitate to tell it—
A little ad will often sell it!

-Orchard and Farm.

"Can you carry a tune?"

"Certainly I can carry a tune, pop."

THE NEW FORCE IN POLITICS

THE women of the United States have at last been granted the vote, the object of a long battle, fiercely fought, and won almost in a stride during the past few years. Many, no doubt, believe, hope or fear that a considerable political change will be brought about by the new voters.

Suffrage for women, however, comes into the United States as no untried thing. It has been tested again and again in the states which have granted women the vote and the change has been found to be slight. It has been seen that with a possible single exception, women have been politically actuated exactly as men, and that the proposition of votes runs approximately the same.

It has been claimed that on issues involving moral questions, such as liquor, vice elimination and so on, women vote more strongly on the side of reform than men, but there are no figures to substantiate this. Liquor has been fighting a losing battle many years, and was beaten finally on the economic features rather than the moral features.

On the whole, the women's vote is a conservative and well considered one, perhaps a trifle more conservative than that of the male voters. In the states where women have voted, it has been a suggestive rather than a driving force, and there is no reason to believe that in the national field it will be different.—Dearborn (Mich.) Independent.

Books have been illustrated in many ways, but none so novel as a volume done in Italy about 1618. The pictures—there are between one hundred and two hundred—were all made of feathers of various shapes and colors. The volume is valued at one thousand dollars.

It is the practice of the multitude to bark at eminent men, as little dogs do at strangers.—Seneca.

Manchester Odd Fellows will.

March in Parade

Manchester Odd Fellows are looking forward to the 96th annual communication of the Soverign Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., which is to be held in Boston during the week of Sept. 26. It is estimated that from 75 to 100 members of Magnolia lodge, of Manchester, will attend. Committees have been working on plans for some weeks and now announce that a band has been engaged to accompany the local lodge on its march in the parade.

The parade will be the big feature of the convention. It is expected that nearly 50,000 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs will be in line. Sixty automobiles containing 227 delegates and other dignitaries will head the procession. Each state and territory of continental United States and the provinces of the Dominion of Canada will send four distinguished men to represent them as delegates from their grand lodges.

The parade will be held on Wednesday, Sept. 29, starting at 1 o'clock from the corner of Arlington and Newbury sts. All bodies to participate will report in their assigned positions at 12.30 o'clock, although it is expected that the last divisions in the line will not move until 5 o'clock or later. The route is Arlington, Beacon, School, Washington, Temple pl., Tremont and Boylston sts. to Park sq. A longer route was planned at first, but it was found to completely encircle and threaten to tie up business.

Many hands will be in line, also drum corps, fife and bugle corps. In all, the parade will comprise 26 divisions, about three-fourths of them Massachusetts Odd Fellows and Rebekahs. Considerable competition has arisen among the lodges for the honor of making the best appearance. The subordinate lodges will be accompanied by 75 handsome floats.

For the past month or more the Manchester Odd Fellows, in common with other 3-linkers, have been wearing an attractive celluloid button bearing the words: "On to Boston." The convention, and particularly the parade, have been the principal topics of conversation in lodge circles for some time. The 100th anniversary of Odd Fellowship in Massachusetts will be celebrated the same week in which the Sovereign Grand Lodge holds its sessions in Boston.

Manchester's Heavy Taxpayers— 27 Paying over $1000

Manchester can boast of the lowest tax-rate in the state—$10 per $1000 of valuation. The tax bills have been sent out the last week and on other pages we print this week the full list of individuals and firms assessed a tax of over $50. It is of interest to note that there are 27 taxed in excess of $1000, six of that number exceeding the $2000 mark.

Manchester's heaviest taxpayer, as usual, is Mrs. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Jr. She is assessed $2875.02. The next heaviest is the heirs of Mary Hemenway, $2809.50, and George R. White is third on the list with $2742.00

LIBRARY NOTES

New Books in Manchester Public Library

Saml. Richardson (1689-1761) has been called the father of the modern novel. He was asked by some of his book-selling friends to write a series of letters that might be used as a guide in the affairs of life. He agreed to do so and when he started to write the letters he conceived the idea of making a connected story of the letters and as a result he gave to the world "Pamela, or Virtue Rewarded." It was popular from the first, five editions being sold the first year.

This novel was followed by two others, "The History of Clarissa Harlowe" and "Sir Charles Grandison." I am sorry to say that the Manchester public library does not possess a copy of any of the three novels of Richardson. They are very scarce now except in expensive editions.

Henry Fielding (1707-1754) was the second of the great masters of English fiction. He was educated at Eton and the University of Leyden. He began his literary career as a writer of plays. He wrote many, none of which had a very long life. He was called to the bar in 1740, but did not make a success of the law. Richardson's "Pamela" had just been published and in 1742 Fielding brought out a parody on this novel—"Joseph Andrews." It was a great success. In 1749 he published his masterpiece, "Tom Jones, a Foundling"—a work of genius. This novel gives a faithful picture of the times in which Fielding lived. One of the characters in this novel, "Sophia Western," has been called "a miracle of loveliest womanhood." The famous Dr. Johnson, who did not like "Tom Jones," gave great praise to his next novel, "Amelia." No student of English literature can afford to neglect Fielding.

Tobias George Smollett (1721-1771) came third in the list of great novel writers of the 18th century. His father died very young, leaving him dependent on the charity of relatives, which was apparently bestowed very grudgingly. He studied at the University of Glasgow. Later he was apprenticed to a surgeon. When only 19 years of age he went to London to make his living as a writer. He came near starving and at last accepted a position as surgeon's mate on board ship. His knowledge of sea-faring life acquired during his short experience as surgeon's mate enabled him to portray sailors with great skill. His first novel, "Roderick Random," was published in 1748, the same year in which Fielding's "Tom Jones" saw the light. "Peregrine Pickle" was his next novel, which was followed by "The Adventures of Ferdinand Count Fathom," which came out in 1753. For the next few years he wrote no novels, but wrote a history of England. His health broke down and he went to live at Monte Novo, near Leghorn, in Italy. Here he brought out "The Expedition of Humphrey Clinker," which is considered by many his best novel. The novels of Smollett are coarse, but he presents many amusing characters. No one wishing to know something of the beginning of the English novel should fail to read the novels of this versatile writer. If you are going to read only one of his five novels you should read "The Expedition of Humphrey Clinker."

Laurence Sterne (1713-1768) was one of the greatest of the English humorists. His two great works are "Tristam Shandy" and his "Sentimental Journey Through France and Italy." Everybody should become acquainted with "Uncle Toby," "Corporal Trim," "Dr. Slop," "Yorrick, the parson," and the "widow Wadmon." Sterne had the faculty of seeing the amusing and humorous side of life and the ability to describe it in beautiful language.

Next week there will be a note on some best sellers of many years ago.

Laziness Is Fatal to Success— Acts Like Drug

A man may be a born genius, but if he will not exert himself he can achieve little Laziness is fatal to success.

History contains few instances where sluggards have risen to the top.

All worthwhile results are achieved by effort, usually by painstaking, persistent, unsparing effort.

The lazy person lets things slide. And when things are left to slide, they slide downhill.

Ignorance usually is a consequence of laziness.

And ignorance leads, not to success, but to failure.

Mental laziness is more common, perhaps, than physical laziness.

It is not hard to go on doing things which require no mental exertion and little bodily effort.

But hard, earnest, sustained mental comfort is beyond the sluggard.

Laziness is a quality inherent in human nature.

Laziness acts on one as a drug.

It tightens its grip upon one silently, steadily, but, in course of time, fatally. It can always find excuses for itself.

Poverty is one of the commonest fruits of laziness.

The path of laziness is the straightest of all paths to want and woe.

To combat it, cultivate a healthy body and a sound mind, and once you doggedly try you will be surprised how much more fun there is in doing things than in doing nothing.—Forbes Magazine.

HARD TO SATISFY

A little packet had come by registered post to Peggy Pouting, and with its contents on the third finger of her left hand she awaited the sender.

"Faithful to the last," he murmured soulfully. Peggy pouted.

"The last! How horrid!" she said.
"And you've always told me before that I was the very first!"—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

NEW LIGHT ON OUR FOREST QUESTION

N response to a resolution of the United States Senate, the Forest Service has re-studied the forest situation of the country. It was found that recent high prices of lumber, newsprint, turpentine, and other forest products have seriously affected many industries and in various ways have imposed formidable burdens on the public.

House building has been checked, farm development and upkeep hampered, and the cost of furniture, vehicles, tool handles, agricultural implements, and other articles heavily increased. Lumber prices have risen out of proportion to increased costs of The production and distribution. pulpwood and paper industry is in straits for raw material from the for-

Depletion of the timber supplies in the eastern part of the United States has reached the point at which eastern and even southern markets are being invaded by West Coast lumber, hitherto barred by the high cost of transportation. The timber of the country as a whole is being used and destroyed four times as fast as new timber is growing, and the saw timber, the most valuable and most needed part of the stand, is being cut five and one-half times as fast as it is produced. More than 80,000,000 acres of land that should be growing timber is unproductive waste, much more is only partially productive, and fires are steadily causing further deterioration.

The new study of the situation made by the Forest Service contains many facts never before brought out, regarding both individual industries and conditions in individual states and regions. It discusses also the relation between forest depletion and the lumber prices, depletion and exports, and concentration in timber ownership, manufacture, and marketing. Fresh light is thrown on the question of timber monopoly.

Finally, a program is outlined for bringing about a fundamental and permanent change in the situation. Timber in large quantities will always be an economic necessity, and we must prepare to grow it. The measures required for this are outlined in full in two Forest Service publications just issued.

One of these is the complete text of the report on Senate resolution 311, and is entitled "Timber Depletion, Lumber Prices, Lumber Exports, and Concentration of Timber Ownership." It is sold, price 25 cents per copy (stamps not accepted), by the Superintendent of Public Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C.

The second publication is United States Department of Agriculture Circular 112, 16 pages, "Timber Depletion and the Answer." This is a summary of the report, and will be sent free, on request, by the United States Department of Agriculture.

LOOK AHEAD AND PLAN FOR THE FUTURE

There is a certain man in our employ who is not in a very responsible position at present.

Some day he will be and the "gang" will ask, "Where did he get his pull?"

He's putting pressure on the rope right now and every day the pressure is getting stronger.

He's here early and he goes home late, in fact we do not think he knows anything about working hours.

He's doing more than his present position requires and has already worked out of two jobs that have been given him. You can't keep him down.

He studies at night, reads, and best of all, uses his head at all times.

He makes many mistakes, but only makes the same mistake once.

But he goes ahead and does things. Doesn't wait until he is told, but looks ahead. Wonderful thing this looking ahead, and more wonderful still, you don't have to look very far ahead to make yourself different from the rest of the

He smiles easily and is cheerful.

We've never heard him even suggest that any one was "trying to get him."
He is too busy to think about it and the crowd who might be trying to do it are not going fast enough to even bother him.

He isn't a hundred percent yet, but he's coming along fast, and some day you are going to say "Why did he get that job?"—Fore River Log.

IN JAPAN No. 4 TAKES PLACE OF UN-LUCKY 13

We are pleased to term 13 an unlucky number, but in Japan the unlucky number is four, and in Burmah even numbers are all considered less lucky than odd ones.

Our lucky numbers, or what are generally considered so by superstitious folk, are three and seven. If you ask the reason, you are told that God is Three in One, and that God made holy the seventh day.

As for seven, this number is supposed to be lucky either by itself or in its multiples.

The figure three is extraordinarily prominent in the Bible. Noah had three sons and Job three friends. There were three patriarchs. Daniel's three companions were thrown into the fiery furnace, and he himself was three days in the lions' den.-Stray Stories.

COMMUNICATION

Salem, Sept. 10, 1920

Editor North Shore Breeze,

Dear Sir: The supervisors and children, of the Salem public playgrounds, wish to thank you for your hearty support of their agricultural fair recently held on Salem common. Each year the Breeze shows its loyal support of this fine work for children in allowing generous and valuable space in its columns. This kindness is deeply appreciated, not only by the participants, but by the visiting "kiddies" from far and near, who read the Breeze and took advantage of the big day. Over 25,000 visited the common and voted the fair the best ever.

The interested gardeners of the North Shore, and likewise the interested summer residents, sent generous displays of fruit, flowers and vegetables for exhibition. The North Shore Horticultural society (Eric Wetterlow, chairman of the exhibition committee) did a big share to make the day successful.

We hope that all who can will visit us at our work next summer.

THE SUPERVISORS AND "KIDDIES."

Considerable notoriety was given to the so-called "raids made upon four North Shore residences a week ago and the "recovery" of a barrel of bonded whiskey at each place. If the Federal agents were as ambitious in looking after the roadhouses hereabouts, and other places where anyone can freely buy whiskey of the "moonshine" variety, and other rotten liquors that tend to ruin health, they would be doing a real service for the community.

One reason why the country is in such a ferment is the amount of homebrewing that's going on.

Someone has gone to considerable trouble to find out that on April 3, 1917, new records for cigar sales were established in all parts of the country. The reason? The night before, the President of the United States asked Congress to declare war against Germany. April 3 was a day of tenseness. If you are a smoker you know you smoke more when you are under a nervous strain. All other smokers do the same thing.

SUGGESTIONS FOR TEACHERS AS TO IN-VESTMENTS - BUDGETS

In connection with its plan for greatly extending the teaching of thrift in the public, parochial and private schools all over New England, the savings division of the First Federal Reserve District has undertaken to advise teachers in regard to their personal finances. Miss S. Agnes Donham, associate director of the division, and Schuyler F. Herron, educational director, have prepared and will send free to teachers suggestions for budgets, varying according to the amount of in-

The division proposes to extend the thrift work in the schools along new lines this year, and as more than $1,-000,000 was put into Thrift Stamps and War Savings Stamps by the pupils of New England during the past school year, and as much more into savings banks, the broadening of the movement gives great promise. In New England there is a sentiment in regard to thrift and it is recognized as a permanent feature of school work.

In connection with its budget work the division also is prepared to make suggestions for sound investments for teachers. The whole idea now being followed out is twofold: To help the teachers handle their own finances and to incorporate thrift instruction in the schools. A revised outline for teaching thrift has been prepared this summer and now is ready for distribution.

Mission of Smiles in Life What's in a smile? Not much perhaps, sometimes, but again a great

There is the smile of love, and the cynical smile of hate, the smile of ridicule, and the smile of approval. The language the smiles speak is of the profoundest depths.

The smile is the poetry of conduct, sometimes the master of destiny. The fatal smile may unite two lives with ties as lasting as eternity or break them asunder and forever mar the holiest relationship.

Then there is the joyful message of the friendly smile. It brightens the face of the one in sorrow. It brings light and gladness to friend and stranger who are groping in the dark for sympathy and sunshine. It brings blessings to the ordinary lives about us, and makes all our little world happier.—Thrift Magazine.

The oldest joke, says an exchange, and we almost agree, is the one about the man who went to the ladies' hosiery counter in a department store and said that he wanted to buy a pair of stockings. The saleslady looked at him and said: "Do you want them for your wife, or would you like something expensive?"

Some excitement was occasioned Thursday morning when an army auto truck loaded with gasoline caught fire on Summer st., near Stockton's ave. Patrick Boyle telephoned the fire department and Chief Morgan and men promptly responded with the chemical engine and extinguishers. The truck was from Rockport en route to Provincetown. The blaze probably started from the engine back-firing and caused quite a bit of damage before being extinguished. Lieut. Spencer was in charge.

To Attract Americans

The great universities of Europe are planning their courses to attract thousands of American boys in the near future. Before the war it was thought that one must go to Germany to get the best training in science. Today we realize that our own schools are in many ways as good or better than those abroad. We must still go to Europe for many things, however, and the European schools are preparing for us. The universities in England, for instance, are changing their courses so that an American boy can complete his education without loss of time. In France, especially in the colleges in the provinces, special courses

Delightful and intimate insights into London's famous artist colony are given, along with an unusually appealing story in "The Prince Chap," in which Thomas Meighan will be starred at the Strand theatre, Lynn, next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, supported by Lila Lee, Myrtle Stedman and other notable screen favorites. This is Edward Peple's well-known play which Cyril Scott used on the stage for several seasons with singular success. The role of the sentimental hero has found a worthy successor in Meighan. Through the death of a model he becomes the guardian of a baby girl which causes his fiancée to become estranged. Grown to beautiful womanhood the orphan loves and finally weds Meighan.

Other early week attractions will include Mack Sennett's new comedy, "Great Scott," Burton Holmes' latest travels, Strand Topical Review and musical features of real merit.

"The Hope," a big success as a Drury Lane melodrama will be presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday, together with Will Rogers of "Follies" fame in "Cupid, the Cowpuncher," which is in class A for screen entertainment. Rogers does some wild roping and riding stunts against backgrounds of exceptional natural and photographic beauty. A comedy and new Strand Topical Review of current events will be added attractions.

Among coming attractions at the Strand are Sessue Hayakawa in "An Arabian Knight" and Blanche Sweet in "The Girl in the Web."

Interesting film subjects and highclass music will combine to make the Sunday evening concert one of 'genuine merit.

FEDERAL THEATRE, SALEM "Dangerous Days," the story by Mary Roberts Rinehart, and produced by Rex Beach, will be the feature at the Federal theatre, Salem, next Monday and Tuesday. On Wednesday, matinee and night, the Boston English Opera Co. will present "Ruddigore." The Rinehart story contains an all-star cast. The novel from which it is taken is said to be Mrs. Rinehart's best seller. It is her first contribution to the Eminent Authors' series by Goldwyn. There will be the usual good surrounding show.

Next Thursday for three days comes the Paramount special which ran for 12 solid weeks in New York, "Humoresque." This is admittedly some run, even for Gotham, and the interest value of the picture is said to justify this long engagement in New York.

HUGE OCEAN STEAMERS

PROVISION MADE TO OFFSET THE STRAIN WHILE IN MOTION

The ship that found herself, as described by Rulyard Kipling, suffered none of the agonies endured by the Atlantic liners of 500 to 700 feet length which immediately preceded the Mauretania and Olympic. These shorter ships were built before naval architects responsible for them realized that continuous steel cabins rising some four decks above the main deck were of necessity subjected to a strain far above their finding themselves, which for these ships, must have seemed a perilous adventure, as can readily be imagined when one sees the cracks in the steel plates forming the upper decks and the side walls of the cabins.

When these stately vessels leave New York, the cracks are carefully puttied and painted to present a smooth white surface, but as soon as they reach the waves of the Atlantic the paint is soon peeled off, and the breathing of the ship breaks open the cracks, which are most common at the square window corners of the upper staterooms. Joints and rivet heads soon show rust as the salt spray seeps through, and the observing passenger is not long in noting these signs and speculating on their cause.

These cracks must have developed on the maiden voyage across the Atlantic, when the ship first met a rough seaway, and the noise of the rending plates and rivets must have been alarming as one after the other they gave way with a loud report; but these occurrences need really have caused no alarm, for they were to be expected, and the ship could not be at ease until they took place. As a matter of fact, the cracks should have been artificially created in designing the ship, by putting the cabins and upper decks from port to starboard in one or two places and covering the cut with sliding plates to form an expansion joint.

It is only necessary to understand a little about the structure of a large oceangoing steamer to grasp the need for these expansion joints. A ship is primarily a floating beam or girder, when in still water it is supported equally along its length. In rough seas, however, the bow and stern may be supported by waves while the part amidships is partially unsupported in the trough of the wave. In this case the ship sags or bends down in the center; while, when a large wave supports the ship amidships, the bow and stern sag downward. It will be seen from this that the ship is constantly being bent up and down.

In designing the vessel to give it strength to resist this bending, the naval architect looks upon the ship as a box girder—the main deck forming the upper flange of this girder, and the keel and the ship's bottom the lower flange, while the sides of the ship are the side webs. When the girder bends upward it does so on a certain curve, the approximate center of which is some distance below the bottom; and it is clear that the deck houses, extending some 30 feet above the main deck, are on a longer curve than the main deck-that is to say, they are stretched beyond their original length to a much greater extent than the main deck, and, being made of light plating, they must tear; and, as we have seen, they actually do so. In the same way, when the ship bends downward the deck houses are in a shorter curve than the maindeck and consequently are crum-

In some vessels this defect in design has been taken care of by dividing the deck houses into two or more lengths and providing cross passages between them on the upper decks, while in the Mauretania and the Olympic extension joints have been provided. When these ships are riding the waves it is easily possible to observe these joints moving as much as one inch, which provides for the breathing of the ship and permits it to find itself very comfortably without any breakage and thus to be at ease without so much of the groaning and grunting which some of the earlier ships indulged in.—Baltimore Sun.

Smoking vs. Athletics

Some interesting experiments have been made recently to prove the bad effects even of moderate smoking on athletes. It was found that a baseball pitcher after smoking one cigar lost 12 percent in accuracy and fourteen percent after smoking two cigars. In shooting at a target riflemen lost four percent in their score from smoking one cigar and six percent after smoking two cigars. Bicycle riders after smoking one cigar or three cigarettes lost nine percent endurance and increased their heart-beats ten per minute. Similar tests with fencers showed a serious loss in precision in lunging with a fencing foil at a target after smoking two cigars. All these athletes gained in accuracy and endurance when they did not smoke.—Boys' Life.

THE VANISHING NURSE

An Appeal

(Reprinted from Boston Transcript, Sept. 18, 1920)

IF YOU asked your readers to make a list of ten women whose names were famous, whose lives had left a distinct impression upon the times in which they lived, and whose memories were revered by posterity, it is quite certain that the name of Florence Nightingale would appear on every list. Again, if one were asked to mention a woman who made a great contribution to the World war, almost instantly the name of Edith Cavell would come to one's mind. Is it only a coincidence that these two women were nurses? I think not, but prefer rather to feel that their lives of unselfish service and their well-deserved although unsought fame were inevitably a part of the great profession of which they were only two of its many illustrious members.

Today, when almost any position is open to women, it is rather disappointing to notice that the selection of a career is turning aside from the greatest of all professions for woman — nursing. There are so many obvious reasons why nursing is woman's field of service, par excellence, that it is not necessary to enumerate them. The aim of this article is merely to point out two important phases in the present nursing situation:

First — The universal shortage of nurses; how it came about; its dangers, and what we can do to remedy it.

Second—A challenge to the young womanhood of America; the advantages and ever-increasing opportunities offered by the present training schools.

1. It is apparent to the average person who reads the newspapers and current magazines that there is an increasing activity everywhere with regard to health. In all its phases this means a greater demand for trained nurses, and our training schools are unable to meet this demand. The 8hour day for nurses recently enforced in many states has obliged the hospitals to increase their nursing staffs. The war took a large number of nurses from hospital and private nursing and gave them a taste for broader experience, so that on their return they sought occupation in the ever-widening circle of industrial or public health

Their places, however, had to be filled. We must have graduate nurses in our hospitals, not only to care for the sick, but also to teach and supervise the pupil nurses. Our hospitals cannot increase in size and efficiency as they must to keep pace with the growing population, our public school chil-

MISS ROSAMOND BRADLEY, who makes the accompanying appeal, has herself an enviable rec ord at nursing and research work. To recapitulate briefly: She began as a volunteer-the first volunteerof the Boston Instructive District Nursing association in 1908. Beyond her association with local organizations she spent several months at Dr. Grenfell's Mission in Labrador in 1914, working under Dr. John Mason Little. Her overseas war service began in December, 1916. She served first at Poissy, France, as a nurse under the French Red Cross, and later under the American Red Cross at Toul, where she was often under fire. After the war she took up bacteriological work at Technology and at the Harvard Medical school, and more recently she has been engaged in work with the Emmanuel tuberculosis class, which is conducted at the Massachusetts General hopital by Dr. Joseph Pratt. Within a fortnight she has been appointed a member of the women's welfare committee of the Children's hospital, and she finds time also to help in the excellent work of the Children's Island Sanitarium in Marblehead harbor.

Miss Bradley calls attention to the many lines which such a training offers: I. Institutional work. 2. Industrial nursing. 3. Public health nursing. 4. Private nursing. 5. Government service, army and navy. 6. The mission fields. Anyone desiring further information may communicate with Miss Bradley at Box 66, Pride's Crossing, Mass.

dren cannot obtain the necessary physical supervision, and we ourselves cannot secure the skilled attention we demand when ill, if there is not a continuous stream of young people pouring into our training schools to replace those graduating and going forth into the community. The dangers of this shortage are fairly obvious; we have only to recall the influenza epidemic of two years ago to realize the seriousness of the situation. We are the public. We need nurses. The hospitals are ready and anxious to give them to us in constantly increasing numbers. How can we help them to do it?

2. No one has forgotten the splendid response the women made to the country's call for aid in time of war. It was glorious and our men had a right to be proud of their women for whom they willingly fought and died. Was it only because of the war, or was it not because there was a great human need to be met and they rushed to meet it. We have heard a great deal about the hysteria of war, of the impetuous response to the patriotic motive with which untrained women of all ages rose with one accord. But would they remain deaf to a similar appeal made in time of peace? Is the cry of little sick children, hundreds of whom in our own city must die if the proper medical care is not given them, less appealing than that of the wounded soldier? I cannot believe it. I think we have only to make the need known in all its seriousness, only to show these women the sick children waiting for admission to our hospitals who cannot take them in because they cannot enlarge their bed capacity without more nurses, we have only to call loudly enough, saying, "Young women of America, we need you; nursing is woman's highest form of service; will you not join the ranks now?" and there will rise and flow like a mighty river a steady stream of young women from our schools and colleges, from our towns and cities, to answer this call with the same wonderful spirit of service that they showed in 1917.

Think of some of the advantages a nursing training brings into a woman's life, and of the innumerable opportunities this profession offers today. Most women, if not all, are born with the mothering instinct; the longing to care for the weak and unprotected in the primitive woman is natural. In the civilized woman of today this instinct is satisfied either in caring for her own children, or in nursing. Character is formed, not given, and the three years of disciplined regular life in the hospital develops obedience, patience, selfcontrol, tact and cheerfulness, among many other traits, which are certainly essential characteristics of the highest type of woman, whether she be a nurse, a wife or a mother. Women today long for and are constantly seeking a life that shall be an expression of their own individuality. In what other profession can such expression be so complete as in that of a nurse, where training and skill are not enough, but where personality and character play the highest possible tole.

Many a young girl on leaving high or private school with no definite idea of what she wishes to do with her newly acquired freedom, takes a year or two of college in order to broaden her horizon. Is it not possible that many of these girls would make good nurses? Would find in the multiple fields which nursing offers the answer to their question of what I can do in order that my life shall make its contribution to the world?

We need nurses; will you become one?

"Moonshine," a movie in three reels, produced by members of the North Shore summer colony, will be shown in the Horticultural hall, Manchester, Saturday, Oct. 2, at 9 p. m., for charitable purposes. Mrs. Richard R. Peabody, of Boston and Beverly Farms is the author of the scenario, and she was assisted in the directing by Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee, Jr., of Boston and Marblehead. The scenes were filmed in several of the homes along the North Shore, at the Essex County club, in Manchester, Manchester's famous "Singing Beach," and various points of interest in Magnolia. The cast includes several of Boston's most socially prominent people, as follows:

Phyllis Valiant Miss Elizabeth Caswell
Mrs. Valiant Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw
Kenneth Sheldon Louis Agassiz Shaw
Suzanne Sheldon Miss Jessie Means
Mrs. Sheldon Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield
Alan Anderson Alexander V. Campbell
Mr. Buntley Amos A. Lawrence
Mrs. Buntley Mrs. Frederick J. Bradlee, Jr.
Count Spinelli Isidore Braggiotti
Claude Clovelli John Potter
Alva de Villiers Mrs. John S. Lawrence

The plot centers around some home brew which is said to be especially good. Miss Caswell is the heroine and Louis Shaw, the hero. Mrs. Lawrence is the vampire who is responsible for many amusing situations. Mr. Potter, Mr. Shaw and Mrs. Lawrence are the "villians" who capture the home brew and after sampling it discover that they are poisoned. The plot rapidly leads to a climax, the three reels of the movie containing many thrills. A feature dance by the Misses Progreciati is included in the play.

by the Misses Braggiotti is included in the play.

The proceeds of the Manchester showing will be for the benefit of the Sunnyside Day Nursery, 16 Hancock st., Boston. This nursery is a charitable institution where women who are forced to work out during the day are permitted to leave their children under expert care. During the summer months an average of 35 or 40 children per day have been cared for in this nursery, and in the winter months the number is even larger. Every morning the children are given a medical inspection in order to protect all against contagion. In case any child has been absent for several days he is required to bring a doctor's certificate of health. Some of the children have been well-nigh brought up in the care of this day nursery, their mothers having brought them there daily for many years.

Children of school age are given a cup of milk at 8.30

A COMPLIMENTARY golf tournament and luncheon was given at the Essex County club, Manchester, Tuesday, by his friends—most of those who have participated in the tournament-luncheon given by Dr. Lancashire every summer. The occasion on Tuesday was a most delightful one. It was arranged by Horace H. Stevens, W. W. Holbrook and George A. Dobyne. The last players in a bogey handicap golf competition had come in by 1.30, when the luncheon was served. A field of 23 players competed in the tournament, which was won by M. G. Haughton, 1 up. Carl P. Dennett and George E. Warren tied for second honors, each being outplayed by Col. Bogey, by three holes.

Gen. Edgar R. Champlin was toastmaster for the merty hour following the lunch. A few informal speeches were made, incident to the presentation to Dr. Lancashire of two very beautiful mementos of the occasion—a silver cigarette box and a silver cigar box, the latter being inscribed with the names of most of those participating, as follows: Edmund K. Arnold, Harry L. Ayer, George E. Barnard, Albert J. Beveridge, Robert S. Bradley, S. Parker Bremer, H. K. Caner, Samuel Carr, Edgar R. Champlin, E. B. Cole, Costello C. Converse, Carl P. Williams. Nearly all of these were present, and in addition, the two sons-in-law of Dr. Lancashire, Umberto Colletti and E. Laurence White.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Henry Lancashire, of Manchester, will spend the winter in Europe. They will sail early in November for England and will go later to France and Begium, ultimately reaching Italy in time to spend the holidays with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Umberto Colletti, at their new villa, outside Rome.

A large field, members of the Myopia Hunt club, including a number of women, enjoyed a run with the hounds last Saturday afternoon, the start being made at 4.45 o'clock from the Topsfield Fair grounds. The regular Casses Corner run was enjoyed, going in the direction of Ferncroft and finishing at 5.30 on the turnpike. The afternoon proved an ideal one for the party.

ALONG THE CAPE ANN AND GLOUCESTER SHORE

By Alex. G. Tupper

CAPE ANN. — All the big hotels on Cape Ann closed their doors for the season of 1919 this week and only a few of the smaller houses remain open a short time to accommodate the number of guests wishing to remain. The cottagers, too, are leaving gradually, though reluctantly, for the past few days have been ideal and there is prospect for some delightful autumn weather, which we usually experience in this section of the North Shore.

At Eastern Point there is a decided change in the stir of people in this big colony. Hawthorne Inn closed on Saturday. Others closing this week are the Beachcroft, Merrill Hall and the Fairview. The Mailman House, Delphine and Harbor View remain open indefinitely.

The new Leonard mansion situated at Brace's Cove is nearing completion and in a few more weeks interior work will be much advanced.

Work on the foundation for the spacious new Prentiss mansion at Brace's Cove is being rushed along and within a few weeks the house will show proportions. This house, like the new Leonard mansion, will be erected of stone.

The U. S. 42d Coast Artillery, which has been stationed at Rockport the past two weeks for target practice, has moved on for further manoeuvres at Provincetown.

The Eastern Point golf clubhouse has been a center of sociability, during the past two weeks especially. Among members of the younger set entertaining were Miss Louise Stovall, of Stovall, Miss., a party for 21 guests; Miss Blanche Butler, of Washington, D. C., who entertained 24 people; Mrs. Coburn Smith (nee Miss Margaret Montgomery), of New Orleans, La., who entertained 12 friends; Miss Fox, who had three tables for bridge and tea for 20 people; Miss Rogers, who entertained 15 friends at tea; Mrs. St. John Butler entertained 25 people at clock golf and tea; Miss Dennison entertained 20 people at tea; Mrs. Erben gave a tea for 20 people; Mrs. Merriam, of New York, gave a party for 10 people; Mrs. Slessenger and Miss Barber, of New York, gave the largest tea party of the season, for 55 people. All these mentioned as entertaining at the club were guests at the Hawthorne Inn.

Others entertaining at the Eastern Point Golf club were Mrs. Lewis, of the Fairview hotel, tea for 12 people; Mrs. Wallace, of Bar Harbor, eight guests at luncheon; Miss Phoebe Thompson, of Hawthorne Inn, a dinner party with covers being laid for 10 guests; Miss Naomi Wood, of Hawthorne Inn, two tea parties, one for 15 friends, the other for 18; Mrs. Reamer, of Merrill Hall, a party for 12 people on the porch; Mrs. Haines of Merrill Hall, party of 15 at tea; Mrs. Warder, of the Mailman House, had 15 guests at tea; Mrs. Stewart, of the Moorland hotel, had 15 friends at tea and Miss MacDonald, also of the Moorland, had two tea parties, one for 20, the other for 15 guests.

THE committee of the "Merry Whirl" entertainment given at the casino of the Moorland hotel, Bass Rocks, for several seasons, under the direction of Miss Lila Stewart, wish to present a statement of the distribution of the proceeds. Last year the total receipts were $2662.35; expenses, including Miss Stewart's commission, $1418.32; balance, $1270.15. The beneficiaries were the Gloucester Fishermen's Institute, $440.05; Braewood hospital, $440.05, and the sum of $431.20 to an old employee of the Moorland who was dying of cancer in a Boston hospital, and his dependent mother.

This year the receipts were $2552.32; expenses, $1518.02; balance, $1034.30. The committee decided, in view of the especial effort being made to help the Addison Gilbert Maternity ward, to give the sum of $684.30, to it, and $350.00 to the Braewood hospital.

Mrs. Benjamin F. Guild and her daughters, Miss Mary and Miss Helen Guild, have closed their summer home on Manton rd., Beach Bluff, and have gone to Commonwealth ave., Boston, for the winter.

A very fine photograph of Miss Doris Hamlin, who has been spending the summer at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, was displayed in the Boston papers on Sunday.

Miss Mary Grabow, of the New Ocean House, will soon return to her studies at Miss Lee's school, Boston.

Dr. and Mrs. Loring Grimes have gone from the Swampscott shore and are now at Albany, N. Y., having gone over the road in their automobile.

This has been a busy week at the New Ocean House, Swampscott, and since the large Rotary club convention there has been something doing every minute in the convention line.

Representatives of the John Hancock Life Insurance Co. have been holding a two days' session at the New Ocean House, many of the members arriving on Sunday. The session lasted through Tuesday.

The street lighting experts of the General Electric Co. opened a three-day conference on Tuesday, which was largely attended.

Thursday, the New England Mutual Life Insurance Co. representatives, with their guests, held a meeting, buffet lunch and dance at the New Ocean House, about 1000 persons being in attendance.

DADDY'S BIRTHDAY GIFT

By Rebecca T. Hodges

(CONCLUDED FROM LAST WEEK)

MR. AND MRS. Andrews looked at each other in astonishment.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrews looked at each other in astonishment.

"What is the matter with the man." Susan laughed, "Is he crazy—or is it just New York?"

'Something surely ails him," her father decided. "Perhaps it's just a matter of temperament.

The door flew open and two men came hurriedly out toward them.

"Will you kindly step this way, sir," one of them said, turning to Mr. Andrews.

Toward the rear of the store and on into the inner office they went, followed closely by the men. Susan's eyes fell on the heavy Oriental rugs on the floors, the massive mahogany furniture that filled the room and on the velvet hung walls. The two men who were waiting expectantly by the long table rose to their feet.

"This is Mr. Simon, one of the managers, and my name is Rawlings," the older of the men said turning to Mr. Andrews. "Close the door, Smith. Now sit down, please," he urged, indicating chairs by the table.

Mrs. Andrews glanced questioningly at her husband, but he looked as frankly puzzled as she. Their erstwhile clerk laid Susan's pearls down on the table before them and Mr. Rawlings picked up the necklace and after examining it carefully handed it to Simon. Then he scrutinized the Andrews trio intently.

"This may seem a bit strange to you," Mr. Simon spoke for the first time, "but I felt we could talk better and more fully in here."

"Yes?" Mr. Andrews spoke with a rising inflection and an upward tilt to his eyebrows.

No one said anything for a moment. The Andrewses felt uncomfortably conscious of the steady glances of the occupants of the room. Then Mr. Simon picked up the pearls and turned toward Mr. Andrews.

"And what did you say was your errand?" he asked, suavely, continuing his scrutiny of the puzzled trio.

"I told your man," Mr. Andrews felt his temper rising as he indicated the clerk who stood behind Simon's chair. "I brought my daughter's strand of pearls in to you to have them restrung. I purchased them here some time ago and felt you would give them more careful attention perhaps, than anyone else. Of course, I know they are only imitation, but they are so cunningly made that they easily pass for the real thing."

Mr. Simon glanced meaningly at Rawlings. "When did you say you bought them?"

"Six months ago."

"Here?"

"Why, yes, here. I can't see what you are driving at. I bought them right here in this store, from one of your

"Impossible," Mr. Simon denied, laconically

"What do you mean by impossible," Mr. Andrews demanded, hotly. "I didn't come here to be insulted. This is the most outrageous behavior. It is bad enough for me but to subject two ladies to such inexplainable discourteouses is unbelievable. Give me my beads and we won't bother you any longer," he demanded, his eyes blazing with anger.

Mrs. Andrews laid her hand on his arm. "Just why is all this trouble?" she asked.

"I'm sure I don't know," he answered, wrathfully. Susan leaned forward in her chair, her eyes dilated Suddenly she expostulated: - "Why, Mr. Simon, what do you mean? Surely there must be some kind of a mistake somewhere. My father bought those pearls for me for my birthday. He carried them home to me in Ohio. He got me the very nicest ones he could find for the price-they were only twenty-five dollars—they are not real, you know.

She paused breathlessly and watched Mr. Simon as he let the pearls drop slowly from one hand into the other.

Mr. Andrews drew himself up proudly and looked scornfully at the men before him. "My name is Andrews— John Andrews of Marietta, Ohio. I have always lived there and have been in business there for years—I and my father before me. Here is my card. I can give you any number of references regarding me and my standing in the community. And as for this transaction—" and he laughed witheringly. "I can tell you the exact date I bought those beads, if you want to know. It was the day before my daughter Susan's birthday-the fourteenth of May. I know this because I reached my home the following day on her anniversary. I paid cash—no check—therefore you had no tally of that kind. It isn't my fault if you have no record of the sale. And now I will ask for an explanation—if you have any—of this insulting proceeding."

Mr. Simon glanced keenly at him and then nodded to Rawlings, who settled back in his chair.

"Mr. Andrews," Mr. Simon began, with a swift, deprecating gesture, "I have a strange tale to tell you. It is only rightfully due you to have it told you from beginning We owe you a most complete abject apology and we beg the ladies' humble forgiveness. But I think you will understand and appreciate our position, when I have fin-

"On the twelfth of May a very wealthy patron of our store came to consult us. She is the wife of an enormously rich Pittsburgh manufacturer and one of our most lucrative clients. Naturally her patronage means much to the firm. She brought in to us her string of priceless gems—as perfectly matched pearls as I've ever seen. She wanted a few more added to the strand, but of course she insisted that they should be as perfectly suited in size and color and quality as the originals.

"We invited her in here—in this very room—and trays of unmounted pearls were brought in for comparison and for her approval. Finally six were found that both she and the store considered satisfactory and the strand was put aside in a box with the extra pearls which were to be added. We told her the necklace would be ready for her in a few days, and she left highly pleased with the selection.

"On the fifteenth of May, when we opened the box to make the proposed change, only the few loose pearls were there—the necklace itself was gone.

"I doubt if you can understand our feelings and our predicament. At first we couldn't believe our senses—the pearls must be there. No one, we were sure, had opened the box, but where in the world they had disappeared to, no one could figure out. Every employee of the store was most carefully questioned, yet each one, trusted and above suspicion, told a straight-forward story. Their daily lives and transactions were closely watched so as to ascertain if suddenly they had an unusual amount of money. Private detectives scoured the pawnshops and delved into every conceivable nook. They followed any clue that offered, no matter how slight.

"When our Pittsburgh lady finally returned, her wrath and anger knew no bounds."

Mr. Simon paused a moment, and shrugged his shoulders impressively. Then he continued grimly

"She was furious with us and naturally accused us of the grossest carelessness. We paid her many thousands of dollars, but she declared she would remove all her patronage unless we restored her pearl necklace.

'Every one of us, owners, employees, and detectives alike have had that necklace uppermost in our thoughtswatching and waiting for its possible reappearance at some unlikely place or moment. We have searched continuously, and now-" he smiled contemplatively as he held Susan's pearls up before him-"here they are as good as ever!"

"Mine!" ejaculated Susan in astonishment.

"Susan's!" echoed her father and mother.

"Yes, my dear Miss Andrews," Mr. Simon smiled, "these twenty-five-dollar pearls of yours are the famous long-lost Pittsburgh necklace.'

"I always knew they were remarkably beautiful, John,"

Mrs. Andrews spoke in awed tones.
"They ought to be," Mr. Simon assured her wryly.

"They are worth a fortune."

"What do you know about that, Rawlings!"—he turned toward the grinning man beside him—"after a constant nerve-racking search everywhere this girl appears in our own shop in broad daylight with the things hanging around her neck!"

"And to think that I have been walking the streets of Marietta every day with all that on me!" Susan exclaimed horrified.

Everyone laughed.

Mr. Simon spoke briskly. "Now the thing to do, it seems to me, Mr. Andrews, is to make you some recompense for your unwilling part in the affair. I am very sorry, indeed, that you have been put to any inconvenience whatever.

"Well, since it is turning out all right, it doesn't really make any difference," Mr. Andrews conceded. "But it is very apparent that somehow or other one of your men tied up the wrong string of pearls for me in my little velvet box."

"There is no question of a doubt about that-somebody blundered, we don't know who or how. And now, Miss Susan," continued Mr. Simon, turning toward her, "I fear you are the one to suffer. Of course, these will be returned as soon as possible to their rightful owner. How about a string of the real twenty-five dollar pearls and a little check besides?"

Susan smiled. "I guess there is nothing else to do,"

she replied.

"That is the least we can do." Mr. Simon got up and led the way to the outer store again. He opened the case and took out the trays.

"Here, Miss Susan, choose your own."

Susan sighed. "There is a little difference," she acknowledged, reluctantly, as she selected one of the strands. "They are all pretty, but I'm spoiled; I'll always compare them in my mind with those others.

Mr. Simon nodded understandingly. "But here is something else to help take the edge off your disappointment," and he handed her a check.

She gasped with astonishment and leaned weakly against the counter as she held it up before her unbelieving

"One thousand dollars!" she cried.

Mr. Andrews started to expostulate, but Mr. Simon dismissed it with a decided wave of his hand.

"It means far more than that to us and is a very small recompense to you. It is little enough for your trouble and our relief," he assured them, as he smilingly bowed them out of the door. "Come to see us again."

Susan gave the check to her father. "Take care of it, dear daddy—I feel positively faint. Think of our shopping!"

Mr. Andrews grinned as he tucked a protecting hand under his wife's and daughter's arms and piloted them

"You didn't realize that your old Daddy was doing quite so much for you, did you Sue, dear!" He chuckled gleefully. "Some birthday present, after all!"

AMERICA HAS NOT ONLY HAD as hard a time to get out of the war as to get into it, but the hardships of peace have been as exacting in their claims as the demands of war.

THE PRESENT MONTH, along the North Shore, is one of the best of the year. The residents who keep their summer homes open for a long season know the delights of the autumn months. Nature has her moods, smiling and frowning as the seasons go. There is no time when Mother nature is in a better mood than in the quiet days of the autumn. Happy is the family that can postpone until early winter the grey life of a city home or an apartment. The short rail route and the convenient road to Boston have contributed to the popularity of our coast for permanent residents. Year by year there are distinct indications of an increase in the number of people who have extended their stay on the Shore. Every advantage of the summer months for recreation and pleasure is as available in the early days of September as in mid-summer. The roads are less congested and automobile trips are more easily made. The asters and goldenrod have bloomed and add a touch of beauty to the roadside and marshes. What is more cheerful than a long row of goldenrod along the edge of the ditch which marks the boundary of the brown marsh, especially if there is a background of beautiful trees and native shrubs? The opening of schools sends many families back to the cities and suburban residential districts, but there are many people who know the charms of a North Shore autumn and tarry to enjoy all that the season can yield.

Boston has Succeeded in keeping its tax rate down to an increase of only fifty cents on a thousand, but Manchester residents have the pleasure of paying a much lower tax rate and obtaining the most for their expenditures.

THE WALL STREET BOMB TRAGEDY cannot be dismissed as a passing incident in the annals of criminal history of New York city. This anarchistic act is an indication of the existence of an organized group of men who are determined to show their antagonism to the American institutions. It was perpetrated by ignorant men. The purpose in placing the mob in Wall Street was to make an attack upon organized business. By that bomb, placed in America's financial center, an anarchistic group expressed in murder and destruction their enmity to the financial interests of the nation. The incident is more than a crime in the after-thewar period, for it indicates that the tendencies which have wrought such terror and ruin in the old world are being expressed here. The spirit back of that act means much to America. The offenders must be apprehended and punished. Drastic laws must be used to lay the penalties upon the offenders. Force has rarely been able to meet such problems. The bomb shows a hatred against society that can only be broken down by more searching work of a new spirit and education. America must, during the coming decade, meet its internal problem as it met effectually the menace of German aggression. It is a problem that will tax the best minds. It is a task of colossal proportions to avoid the persecutions which prosecutions entail. The very difficulty of the task challenges the best that there is in American principles. The unrest of such social anarchy must be undone by skilful and energetic education. The punishment of the offenders is a minor responsibility.

THE WAR TAUGHT the lessons of economy, but it took only one day after the armistice to show how lightly they were esteemed.

THE POPULAR DRIVE for funds for the Beverly hospital corporation has been a success in every way. workers rallied to the call of the directors and the work which was accomplished was largely due to the efforts of these men and women. The large number of gifts by people of moderate means assures not only an income for the hospital for the coming two years and a half, but a list of givers who will continue their contributions through many years. The directors of the institution have been faithfully bearing the responsibilities of their task with rare judgment and painstaking service. The committees which had charge of this special campaign planned carefully, and are entitled to the rewards which good work always yields. The managers gave hours of concentrated attention to their campaign and the pledges made showed the results of their endeavors. Every one appreciates the faithful efforts of all these interested workers. In such an effort to raise funds it is inevitable that some people should be overlooked. The organization can use large funds for reconstruction and new building. The opportunities are available for gifts that could be made as memorials. Anyone who could make such a gift should communicate with the president of the corporation, John L. Saltonstall. Gifts may be sent to Augustus Peabody Loring, treasurer. The success of the popular campaign warrants the contributions which large givers can make to this most important institution.

THE CRASH HAS COME in Democratic ranks. While unwilling to publicly concede that there is no hope, the spirit with which the campaign is conducted reveals the accepted defeat.

THE BUILDING INDUSTRY appears to be at a standstill. Practically no houses are being constructed for dwellings. Many garages and some manufacturing plant construction work is being done. New tenants are seeking apartments, houses or rooms in vain. Those who seek to make changes discover that none can be made advantageously. What are the reasons? They are not hard to find. The renting and building of homes for rental is a financial problem, pure and simple. Money thus used must yield a fair return. Money, like water, seeks its own level; there are laws which it obeys. Money will always be available for any enterprise which can yield a return with a maximum of safety for the principal, a minimum of risk from deterioration and the largest interest for money invested. The amount of money considered adequate in the past for a good dwelling would not pay for the plans and the framing of the building now. Prices for labor have advanced, and repairs are expensive. Tenants are exacting, jobbing workmen are irresponsible and the worries of the landlord cannot be minimized. With the many forms of investments available with large returns from good securities, is it to be expected that individuals will, as a financial proposition, take the more troublesome way? The scarcity of money for building operations is only an indication of results of the present inflation of prices and the competition that must be met before money can be obtained. The situation is to be regretted as it works great hardship upon the poor and the middle classes.

One of the Strange Events in political history in America is the turn of a thousand Irish-American voters from the Democratic party to the Republican party. The shift of these votes should give the managers of the Democratic organization cause for anxiety.

THE BILLBOARD NUISANCE is to be abated at last. The state of Massachusetts is preparing to restrict the privileges of billboard advertisers. Unscrupulous advertisers have done much harm, epecially in residential districts. Gaudy signs have marred beautiful vistas. A billboard is a nuisance at every stage of its public life: Fresh from the hands of the mop brush painters and when dilapitated and in ruins. The time is past for the toleration of such a nuisance. The power of restricting this evil has been vested in the Department of Public Works. The advertisers have formed an association and are maintaining a group of skilful men to safeguard their interests. The public is interested, and a committee has been formed to represent the various municipalities of the state. The billboard advertisers are not the only culpable individuals. The responsibility must be shared by the folk who, for a consideration, permit their land to be cluttered with board framed advertising forms. The Public Works department will soon issue new rulings and these will be awaited with interest. Drastic action relative to standing signs is not expected, but prohibitive rulings will outlaw the building of objectionable signs in the future and provide for the removal of any in need of re-The first step has been taken to meet the situation. Now that this matter has been considered officially, Massachusetts will soon begin an intelligent and official campaign to meet the evils of this pernicious outdoor advertising scheme.

Senator Henry Cabot Lodge must have taken pleasure in the endorsement which he received, after the carping criticism he has borne for his attitude.

THE WOOL MERCHANTS are losing money on wool which they purchased and are now selling at today's prices, but the house mother pays just as much for the school clothes of her young hopefuls despite the lowering prices of wool. What's the trouble?

IN THE DEATH of James B. Dow, Beverly Farms has lost a valuable citizen. He was successful in business, devoted to his church, untiring in his public duties and showed at all times an interest in public affairs. He served the city of Beverly in important positions of trust and responsibili-He had been assessor, alderman and more recently a member of the school committee. On this committee he was a loyal and efficient worker. He was elected representative to the General Court and served on many important committees of that branch of our state government. To the end he was interested in the affairs of the town in which he lived. His last public service was on the school committee and also on the local committee which raised the funds for the memorial tablet placed in the public library building at Beverly Farms in honor of the soldiers and sailors who served in the World war. He was at one time the superintendent of the Bible school and taught a men's class. His death means much to Beverly Farms and his name will be remembered and honored for his public service.

THERE WILL BE no defection within the ranks of the Republican party this year. It is year of success. It will not be marred by internal strife.

The War has Come to America. With thirty dead and over two hundred wounded, more are said to be dead than in many a reported "battle" in the early campaigns of the Revolutionary war. There is a war now being waged. America must face the issue with courage and determination.

While America Tarries to make up her mind, Mr. Root, the next Secretary of State, has been abroad working on the provisions for the great international court.

THE MARVELS of the wireless telegraph have not yet been exhausted. Advances in science are adapting this effective means of communication. From a station in France built in the war period by American engineers in 1918 a radio message has been sent around the world in one-seventh of a second, in about the time a man can turn squarely around. The accomplishment of this scientific feat means that the message traveled at the rate of 175,000 miles per second. This annihilates space. In one minute a message of fifty words has been accurately transmitted; this is at the rate of three thousand words per hour. It is an accomplishment which baffles the imagination. Such an apparatus makes it possible to send a message around the world, and within an incredibly short time the message can be read in the transmission station. The wireless systems of telephone and telegraph are still undeveloped. However, the progress already made promises much. When the secret of directing a message has been discovered, wireless telegraphy and wireless telephony will have become efficient. In the present stage of the development of these two branches of electrical science the impossibility of maintaining secrecy, save by the use of a code, is a serious defect. The time must come when a wireless telephone message can be sent directly to a designated station and to no other. This problem is being considered and some day it will be possible to direct a message as effectively as one can now deflect, by a mirror, a beam of light. The wonders of science have been amazing in the past, but the future holds greater mysteries.

What Would the Pilgrims think if they could journey today in a modern high-power car along the great Pilgrim Way?

THE REMOVAL OF Rev. Walter S. Eaton from the Magnolia section of the North Shore will be a distinct loss to that town. He has rendered public service of a high character, and he carries with him the esteem and good wishes of all who knew him.

The Season's Harvest is lowering the costs of many food products, but the H. C. of L. has not yet struck the toboggan.

WITH THE DEFECTION in the Democratic party and the opposition in the Republican party there ought to be sufficient division in the ranks of both to take the League of Nations out of party politics when the time comes for its reconsideration.

The Manchester Team did unexcelled work in its campaign for funds for the Beverly hospital. Manchester made a good showing compared with the results of other districts.

GOOD-WILL

Nothing in this world is of greater importance than "good-will." And "good-will" means nothing more nor less than "the will to do good."

Recently the president of a $55,000,000 corporation said he would sell the machinery, buildings and equipment of his corporation for less than what they cost, but he wouldn't sell the "good-will" which has accrued to his company for less than $55,000,000.

This is the most practical example of the value of character that has ever come to the writer's notice.

Good-will is contagious, constructive, healing, irresistible. It is an expression of the noblest spirit in every man or woman. Among all the powers which men possess, the power of "good-will" or the "will to do good" is supreme.

The most valuable asset in any business should be the spirit of co-operation and good-will.—Curtainology.

HOSPITAL CAMPAIGN MOST SUCCESSFUL

Over 6000 Individuals Contribute More than $200,000 to Worthy Cause

REVISED REPORTS of the work of the teams in the successful hospital campaign, which already has resulted in the obtaining of more than $200,000 from the residents and summer residents of Beverly, Manchester, Hamilton, Wenham and Danvers, have been announced by J. B. Gilbert, auditor.

What is regarded as one of the most striking features of the civic enterprise that engaged the energies of 300 men and women workers for more than a week is the large number of subscribers to the fund obtained among the allyear residents of the towns served by the hospital.

With the subscriptions which continued to be received after the formal closing of the drive Monday night, the total number of individual givers to the fund has now passed 6,000. Cornelius M. Smith, of New York, who was the director of the campaign, said today that the teams had unquestionably set a record for the number of subscriptions obtained in a campaign among 40,000 persons for a hospital.

The leading team for the whole campaign was that led by Charles R. Prichard, who with his co-workers obtained a final total of $7,829. Contributing largely to the success of this aggressive group was the work of S Howard Chase, lieutenant, who worked in close cooperation with Mr. Prichard. the captain. The other members of the banner team were A. W. Cripps, Harry Pearson, Chester Standley, G. L. Young, Albert Clare, Joseph L. Simon, A. C. Catheron, J. E. Gillette. L. H. Baker and Forrest E. Tarr worked during part of the drive on this team.

In the woman's division, the team led by Mrs. Dwight Foster, whose lieutenant was Mrs. H. O. Woodbury, won top honors with a total of $3,909. The members of this team were Mrs. Peter Greene, Miss Evelyn Teague, Mrs. Charles Walton, Mrs. Rodney Larcom, Mrs. Roland Choate, Mrs. George Scoville, Miss Marion O. Foster, Miss Anna Moulton and Mrs. John Roulo.

Wm. W. Hoare, captain, and Geo. W. Sinnicks, lieutenant, are the leaders of the Manchester team, which almost won the high honors for the entire campaign corps. This group, representing the progressive town of Manchester, reported subscriptions amounting to $6,333.

Beverly Farms, under the leader-ship of Frank I. Lamasney, whose group leaders were Mrs. Henry L. Mason, Gregory Connolly, 2d, Alfred Moffitt, Howard A. Doane, Miss Rebecca Appleton, and Arthur A. Woodbury, finished with the splendid total of $4,306.

The totals raised by the other teams in the local division were as follows:

Men's Division

Team No. 2-Frank A. Scales, captain, $1,520.

Unlisted teams of one person each reported almost $1,000. Roy P. Hatch, chairman of the men's division, who was called out of town during part of the campaign, when the Rev. Clarence Strong Pond, who was away another part of the drive, took his place, reported at the closing meeting subscriptions he personally obtained amounting to $714. Miss Mary E. Bell; chairman of the woman's division, reported for the Bell team of one member $244.

Breeze Receives the Hearty THANKS OF HOSPITAL FUND Workers

Friends of the Breeze will be pleased to read the letter from Cornelius M. Smith, of New York, who directed the Beverly hospital campaign. He writes:

"We cannot celebrate the triumph and close of our campaign to raise $100,000 for the Beverly hospital more appropriately than by extending to the North Shore Breeze an expression of our deep gratitude for the excellent cooperation which your paper has given to this big community undertaking. It is due in no small part to the effective assistance of the North Shore Breeze that we have been able in the face of severe weather prevailing for the greater part of the campaign to report a grand total in excess of $100,000.

"The power of the press is shown most emphatically when an up-to-date weekly opens its columns to the promotion of such a worthy cause as that of the community hospital at Beverly. "CORNELIUS M. SMITH."

John L. Saltonstall voiced the thanks of the hospital directors in the following letter:

"On behalf of the board of directors of the community hospital at Beverly, I wish to express the warm appreciation we all feel for the cordial and effective support you have given in your paper to the successfully ended campaign to raise $100,000 from the residents of Beverly, Manchester, Hamilton, Wenham and Danvers for the community hospital at Beverly.

"The publicity which you give to the efforts of the large organization of volunteer workers who have raised this needed fund was one of the most important factors in the success of the enterprise.

"John L. Saltonstall."

"MORMONISM — A MENACE"

LECTURE NEXT SUNDAY EVENING IN MANCHESTER BAPTIST CHURCH

The National Reform association, of Pittsburgh, Pa., has arranged for a great community mass meeting which is to be held in the Baptist church, Manchester, Sunday, Sept. 26, at 8 p. m. Mrs. Lulu Loveland Shepard, of Salt Lake City, Utah, known as "the silver-tongued orator of the Rockies," will speak upon "Mormonism—A National Menace."

Mrs. Shepard is regarded as one of the most eloquent orators upon the world platform. For twenty-seven years she has lived in Salt Lake City and for twelve years she was president of the State W. C. T. U., during which time she spoke in nearly every Mormon church in Utah, and many times to ten thousand people in the great Morman tabernacle for the cause of temperance. Being a prominent leader in state and national affairs she came into close contact with Mormon leaders and became convinced of the intigue and deceptiveness of Mormonism.

The National Reform association, under whose auspices Mrs. Shepard is speaking, is conducting an intensive campaign throughout the nation in favor of a constitutional amendment making polygamy a Federal crime anywhere under the stars and stripes. Every man and woman in Manchester should hear this startling and illuminating address. Admission free. Everybody welcome regardless of church or creed.

The World's Bible

Christ has no hands but our hands, to do his work today; He has no feet but our feet, to lead men in his way; He has no tongues but our tongues, to tell men how he died; He has no help but our help, to bring them to his side.

We are the only Bible the careless world will read; We are the sinner's gospel, we are the scoffer's creed; We are the Lord's last message, given in deed and word; What if the type is crooked? what if the print is blurred?

What if our hands are busy with other work than his? What if our feet are walking where sin's allurement is? What if our tongues are speaking of things his lips would spurn? How can we hope to help him and hasten his return?

-Annie Johnson Flint.

LIBRARY NOTES

New Books in Manchester Public Library

THE readers of sixty or seventy years ago did not lack for good literature. There was the best of fiction in abundance, and more solid reading was supplied by the reviews such as "The Edinburgh," "The Quarterly," "Cornhill," "Blackwood" and "Maçmillan" and in this country "The Atlantic," "The North American" and "Harper's."

The novels of Richardson, Fielding and Smollett were still very popular. Goldsmith's "Vicar of Wakefield" was another favorite. Smollett, who had pictured sailor life with great skill, had a worthy successor in Capt. Frederick Marryat, whose "Frank Mildmay," "Newton Forster," "Peter Simple,"
"Jacob Faithful" and "Midshipman Easy" delighted the reading public during the latter part of the first half of the nineteenth century. The novels of Edward Bulwer Lytton were much read. His "Last Days of Pompeii," "Rienzi," "The Last of the Barons,"
"The Coxtons," "What will He Do with It" and "My Novel" are all worth reading.

The people of those times spent many pleasant hours reading the novels of Charles Lever. They describe military life in Ireland. His "Confes-sions of Harry Lorrequer," "Charles O'Malley" and "Jack Hinton" are full of fun and there is a laugh on almost every page. "Hypatia" and "Westward Ho!" by Charles Kingsley, were much liked.

"Jane Eyre," by Charlotte Bronte;
"John Halifax, Gentleman," by Dinah
Mulock; "The Woman in White," by Wilkie Collins; "Lorna Doone," by Richard Blackmoore, and "East Lynne," by Mrs. Henry Wood, all had a big circulation when they ap-

The novels of Augusta J. Evans Wilson enjoyed great popularity. They are not much read now. "Beulah" and "St. Elmo" may be found at the library.

Many of the novels of Dickens, Thackeray and Scott came out in instalments and each instalment was received with much enthusiasm.

An American writer, Maria Susanna Cummins (1827-1866) born in Salem, Mass., wrote "The Lamplighter," a novel that had a remarkable circulation for those times. It was published in 1854; forty thousand copies were sold in the first eight weeks and over seventy thousand during the first year. The works of Washington Irving and the novels of J. Fenimore Cooper were in great demand and they provided good entertainment.

"The Scarlet Letter," "Uncle Tom's Cabin," "Green Mountain Boys" and "Seven Oaks" are other well-known works of fiction. Many more could be mentioned if space permitted. The above list will compare very favorably with the fiction of today. Next week we hope to have some new books.

Cornelius M. Smith, a member of the firm of Will, Folsom & Smith, 512 5th ave., New York, who has been directing the Beverly hospital campaign for funds, leaves this week for New York. Commencing the first of next week Miss Ann Coughlin is taking a two weeks' vacation from her office duties in Boston.

A new timetable will go into effect on the Boston & Maine railroad next Sunday. Practically the only change on the Gloucester branch will be that the train from Boston which arrives in Manchester at 10.33 a. m. will be discontinued.

The Bingham block on Central sq. is undergoing extensive alterations and repairs this week, the work being in charge of Roberts & Hoare. The unused portion of the building is being altered for the accommodation of the Manchester Electric Co., who will have an office there as soon as arrangements can be completed. The rooms occupied by J. Harris will also be enlarged, giving Mr. Harris addi-tional space for his tailoring business. It is understood R. C. Allen will move his civil engineering offices into the upper portion of the building.

Morris Weisman of Peabody pleaded guilty in the superior criminal court at Lawrence Monday to three counts of larceny in Peabody and three in Manchester. He was placed on probation. The defendant admitted thefts of auto parts to the value of about $600. Among the thefts was the larceny of an automobile tire from Manchester's ambulance. On Tuesday Clarence O'Leary, who was associated with Weisman in the larceny at Manchester, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to serve one year in the House of Correction.

Things to Remember if You Think the Country is Going Downhill

Don't forget that every household in this country, to say nothing of other countries, must have food, must have clothes, must have underwear, must have shoes, must have hats and a hundred other things. The need will continue for houses, for coal, for transportation, for amusement, for newspapers and periodicals, for light, for telephones, and in many cases for automobiles. Our agricultural population are likely to receive upwards of $25,000,000,000 this year for their products and they are not niggardly spenders. We are still selling to other countries more than we buy from them, and gold is now coming into the country faster than it is leaving. The crippling of domestic trade through seriously inadequate railroad facilities will shortly be modified. One could enumerate a dozen—twenty—encouraging features of the present situation and the outlook. Therefore, the business man who allows himself to sink into the doldrums and to proceed on the theory that everything is going to come to a standstill is likely to find himself awkwardly situated by and by.—Forbes' Magazine.

Manchester was distinctly honored last Saturday at the Massachusetts Republican State convention, held in Boston, when Mrs. William Lowell Putnam, of Manchester, was selected by the convention delegates as one of the two electors-at-large. This is the first time in the history of the Commonwealth that a woman has been selected for this position, and it was made possible this year by the right of equal suffrage.

Among the electors from Congressional districts were Marion Cowan Burrows, Lynn, 7th district, and Elihu Thompson, Swampscott, 6th district.

There's a new kind of a girl coming to Boston. She is "The Girl in the Spotlight," Victor Herbert's latest musical comedy success, which comes to the Tremont, Sept. 27. "The Girl in the Spotlight" was acclaimed by all the New York critics as the best musical show that has been in New York in many years. In selecting the cast for the play Mr. Lederer has grouped a company that has seldom been equalled in a musical play. Among them may be mentioned Hal Skelly, undoubtedly one of the best light comedians and eccentric dancers in this country; Eddie Dowling, Nat Carr, the well-known character comedian, Mary Milburn, a new prima donna to Boston, and Juliette Lange, one of the most beautiful women on the stage.

"The Girl in the Spotlight" is one of the most gorgeously costumed and most brilliant productions ever brought to Boston and will be presented with the entire New York cast and production. The piece fairly glistens with musical gems and it's safe to predict that "The Girl in the Spotlight" won't be here but a few days before "I Can't Sleep, Dear, Without Dreaming of You" and many others will be heard being whistled and sung.

CAPT. R. C. ALLEN, OF MANCHESTER, SOON TO RETIRE FROM ARMY

Capt. Raymond C. Allen, Vine st., Manchester, is soon to retire from service in the U. S. army, his discharge to take effect next Thursday, Sept. 30.

Capt. Allen has been in the service since Aug. 24, 1918, being stationed most of the time at the army base in South Boston, where he was in charge of construction work. For one month he was at New Orleans, La., engaged in similar work and on his return to Boston in Dec., 1918, was made utilities officer at the base, which position he has since held.

The utilities officer has general charge of everything at the base, all plumbing, electrical equipment, paving, telephones, etc., etc., including fifteen miles of railroad. This is a most highly important office, carrying with it many and varied responsibilities, and the fact that Capt. Allen has held this position so long speaks most flatteringly for his efficiency and capability.

It is understood that Capt. Allen will have an office in the Bingham block, Central st., and continue his civil engineering business in Manchester.

Mrs. Myra A. Calden, of Hudson, has been visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Harry W. Purington, School st.

Albert Cunningham was on a trip over the week-end to Albany, N. Y., and down the Hudson to New York city, going by way of the Mohawk Trail. He made the trip with Frank Silva in the latter's Ford. Mr. Cunningham is having a short vacation from his duties at the New England Trust Co., Boston.

"Just out of luck" was never more truly applicable than in the case of Lawyer George E. Willmonton, of Manchester, who gave his order some time ago for a new Ford coupé, with demountable rims, self-starter and all the other improvements. The car sells at about $1000. After waiting all summer the machine finally arrived on Tuesday and was delivered to Mr. Willmonton. A few hours after its delivery Mr. Willmonton learned of the announcement by Mr. Ford of a reduction in price to pre-war days, which meant that said coupé would cost something around $725 if the delivery had been made Wednesday instead of Tuesday. "Out of luck" for fair! Anyway, Mr. Willmonton has the distinction of owning the last Ford delivered in Manchester at war prices, if that is any satisfaction.

What's become of the cyclists that used to be arrested for "scorching?"

Old HCL is in for a jolt next week that will make the recent cut in Fords look like the proverbial "flivver." The gist of the matter is, two of Manchester's favored sons are leaving Sunday on a fishing trip to Maine, and, like all good fishermen, they have contracted to supply their friends with enough salmon and bass for many a day. Their equipment will be most elaborate and extensive, ranging all the way from rubber boots to the latest style in spoon hooks and flies, and some bait, with which they hope to lure the wily bass from its favored haunts. Doubtless the coming week will be an anxious one for those friends who will watch and wait for the fish.

Don't blame a successful man for bragging a bit—no one with a good catch of fish goes home by way of the back alley.

In ripping out an old partition the first of the week the men came upon a quart bottle of genuine old Medford rum. A near riot ensued and traffic through the village came near being held up because of the excitement incident to such a valuable find. Yesterday, in a secluded nook behind the old chimney, another quart of rum was discovered.

After working hard last Monday to prosecute a case against a young man who had a record of several breaks, Chief Sullivan, of the Manchester police, and District-Attorney were somewhat chagrined when the judges placed the chap on probation. But the court took the responsibility of the probationary measure on his own shoulders, saying that he wanted to give the chap a chance to make good if he would. The officials regarded the fellow as undesirable to have at large, but the judge took a different viewpoint. Let's hope he makes good —he has his opportunity. — Man ABOUT TOWN, in Salem News.

Mrs. Hooper is undecided as to her plans for the winter, but she will probably divide her time between her sister, in Salem, and her daughter, Miss Ethel Hooper, who teaches in Winthrop.

He then fired several shots into the air from his Colt automatic, but that did not bring the motorist to terms. They will spend long seasons in this artistic spot. A very beautiful view is to be had from their veranda.

Miss Abbott is a very successful teacher and those who study with her will enjoy the work. She will give a dance at the Women's club on Saturday evening, Sept. 25. Movie Company Takes Pictures in Magnolia

Lobster lane has been experiencing some "thrills" these past days. Moving pictures are the cause.

The unique little house occupied by the Durants is the center of attraction. This is one of the oldest buildings in Magnolia. It was used by John C. Knowlton eighty or ninety years ago as a place in which to store and salt fish, to store fishing gear and to mend nets and lobster pots. The present owner is John B. Knowlton, a son of the original builder. About ten years ago, Miss Harriet Strafer, now Mrs. Talbot Mundy, the miniature artist, conceived the idea of turning a part of this building into a studio. She used it for one season and it is due to her that the little side door, with its rustic arbor, was built. The past few years it has been occupied by Edw. Durant and his family.

Now comes Eugene O'Brien and Virginia Fair with their company and they are using this building as part of the new movie play they are preparing, entitled "Body and Soul."

Many of the village children have participated in the production. Some day we may see Arthur Abbott, Ellen Wilkinson, Ernest Howe, Mary Durant and several others, together with "Rover," in the pictures.

JAMES B. DOW

PROMINENT BEVERLY FARMS CITIZEN PASSES TO THE GREAT BEYOND

James B. Dow, 71; one of Beverly Farms' best-known and most highly respected citizens, passed away Wednesday night of last week at his home, 705 Hale st., after a long illness.

Mr. Dow, who had been a resident of Beverly Farms for forty years, was a native of Aberdeen, Scotland. Shortly after coming here he established a landscape gardening and florist business, and later founded the James B. Dow Coal and Wood Co., carrying on both enterprises until his retirement from active business life several years ago.

The deceased was a public spirited citizen who devoted much of his time and energy to the betterment of the town. He was one of the members of the committee which arranged an agreement with the town of Danvers whereby that town secured personal representation in the legislature. Mr. Dow served a term in the state legislature, representing the Manchester-Beverly Farms district. For many years he was on the Republican City committee.

In school matters Mr. Dow always displayed an active interest and for a number of years served as a member of the school board, which position he held at the time of his death. As assessor from Ward 6 on the Beverly Board of Assessors he rendered efficient public service.

Having been chosen director and later elected president of the West Beach corporation, an organization of Beverly Farms citizens which owns West Beach, Mr. Dow was instrumental in having the present adequate bathing pavilion constructed and opened to the public. He was president of the corporation at the time of his death.

Interested in educational problems, he was made a member of the board of trustees of the Beverly Industrial school. When the Beverly Y. M. C. A. was organized Mr. Dow was chosen to represent Ward 6. In church affairs he was prominently identified with the Beverly Farms Baptist church, although a Presbyterian himself. He held membership in Magnolia lodge, I. O. O. F., of Manchester.

The late Mrs. Dow, who was Miss Mary L. Ober, of Beverly Farms, passed away four months ago. One sister, Mrs. Helen D. Stewart, of Brooklyn, N. Y., survives him.

Funeral services were held Saturday from his late home. Rev. Clarence S. Pond officiated. The bearers were John L. Chapman, Howard A. Doane, Wm. H. Gerrish, Fred W. Trowt, Frank I. Lamasney, Willis A. Pride, George W. Larcom and Sidney Larcom. A delegation of Odd Fellows from Manchester attended in a body. Many floral tributes were sent by friends, who held Mr. Dow in high esteem and who deeply mourned their loss in his death. Burial was in Beverly Farms cemetery.

CUTTING HIM SHORT

"Senator Shortsworthy makes a good speech at a corner stone laying, but he lacks terminal facilities."

"I've provided 'em," said the master of ceremonies.

"How's that?"

"When I give a signal previously agreed upon the band will strike up 'The Star Spangled Banner.'"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

POLITICAL POT SHOWS SIGNS OF BOILING

It is rather early to make any predictions regarding the city election which will be held in December, but present indications are that this election will be one of the most interesting in many years. Four prominent citizens have already announced their candidacies for mayor. The present Mayor, James McPherson, will be a candidate for reelection. Paul S. Eaton, president of the city council, will try for the mayoralty, as will also Edward Thompson, who has been alderman-at-large for several years, and Frank D. Tuttle. Mr. Tuttle is a successful business man who has built up an industry under the name of the Tuttle Tanning Co. With these candidates in the field it is reasonably certain that the campaign will be a most interesting one.

There are probably many women who have not yet registered who desire to vote at the coming election in November, also the city election in December. They should, therefore, take advantage of the above dates.

Ex-Mayor Herman A. Macdonald went through the form of naturalization at a session of court in Lynn last week to remove any shadow of doubt as to his citizenship. The question was solely whether he became naturalized through the naturalization of his parent under the recent amendment of equal suffrage. No one raised the question except Mr. Macdonald, and while he did not believe the action necessary he went through the form in a day—as he was entitled to do as a discharged soldier—to remove any technical doubt, which he personally does not believe existed.

HERE IT IS AGAIN

Cynic Expresses Views as to Man's Place in Life

Man comes into this world without his consent and leaves against his will. During his stay on earth his time is spent in one continuous round of contraries and misunderstandings by the balance of our species. In his infancy he is an angel; in his boyhood he is a devil; in his manhood he is everything from a lizard up; in his duties he is a fool; if he raises a family he is a chump; if he raises a small check he is a thief, and then the law raises the deuce with him; if he is a poor man, he is a poor manager and has no sense; if he is rich, he is dishonest, but considered smart; if he is in politics, he is a grafter and a crook; if he is out of politics, you can't please him, as he is an undesirable citizen; if he goes to church he is a hypocrite; if he stays away from church he is a sinner and damned; if he donates to foreign missions, he does it for show; if he doesn't, he is stingy and a tightwad.

When he first comes into the world, everybody wants to kiss him—before he goes out they all want to kick him. If he dies young, there was a great future before him; if he lives to a ripe old age, he is simply in the way in living to save funeral expenses. Life is a funny road, but we all like to travel it just the same. — Rehoboth Sunday

HOW THE STATE WILL HELP RE-FORESTATION—INFORMATION SENT THROUGH THE NORTH SHORE FORESTRY ASSOCIATION

THERE are many people along the North Shore who are very much interested in the matter of preserving the timber and wood-lands along the Shore, also the matter of reforesting tracts which have been cut, burned or otherwise deprived of their natural beauty and picturesqueness.

The North Shore Forestry association is doing a splendid work toward preserving the forests which are a source of so much attraction to the many summer visitors and residents.

The fact that the state is ready to help anyone to plant wood-land in a practical manner should be explained far and wide. A man who has had his own woods cut down, or come into possession of land cut over by a former owner and wishes to start new trees, need have no difficulty if ignorant and inexperienced himself in such matters.

The state stands ready to help with advice as to the choice of trees, and goes still farther in undertaking the entire planting under the following conditions: "Under the terms of the reforestation law, an owner of land needing planting may deed such land to the Commonwealth. The forestry department will set it out, and the owner can then have the land back at any time within 10 years by paying the Commonwealth the exact cost of the work. At the present time the planting of forest land costs, on the average, $20 per acre. If the land is not redeemed within the 10-year period, it becomes the permanent property of the Commonwealth."

that built about 1638-40 by the immigrant, John Balch, on land which is now on the corner of Cabot and Richmond sts., Beverly. The house is now owned by a group of persons who bought before the war, when the continued existence of the building was in great danger. They now offer to sell the house and lot, for preservation and restoration, at the exact price they paid for it, $3,025, towards which they themselves agree to contribute $1,000 if the balance of $2,025 is raised.

This is probably the last opportunity to secure the Balch homestead for preservation. If it is not saved now the chances are that it never will be. The general public, more especially those people living along the North Shore and in nearby towns, are urged to contribute to the purchase of the Balch house, which is one of the very oldest residences in America. Charles K. Bolton, president of the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, will receive contributions.

Among the members of the North Shore summer colony who are interested in this project are Wm. T. Aldrich, Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Appleton, Wm. Sumner Appleton, Mrs. Albert J. Beveridge, Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, Miss Frances G. Curtis, Mrs. G. S. Curtis, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Endicott, Mrs. Randolph Frothingham, Mrs. Thomas B. WHAT LIFE IS Life has nothing to say. Life is but a span. It is the thing we make op-portunities of. It has nothing to say about results or rewards. It is a set of calendars of time. The distance between birth and death is life. Barring accidents, we lengthen or shorten this distance by our own acts. Life is generally regarded as our greatest gift, and yet men willingly die for some ideal. Life is not the greatest gift, but the things that we put into life are what make it worth living. We can only take out what we put in.-F. V. VAN AMBURGH.

The Breeze $2 year, $1 six months.

WORLD USES 3,000,000,000 LBS. COFFEE EACH YEAR

The people of the world annually consumed more than 2,500,000,000 lbs. of coffee in prewar days—enough to load a train of cars reaching from Philadelphia to Pittsburgh, says the National Geographic society.

This consumption now perhaps is nearer 3,000,000,000 lbs., and in the United States alone 42 percent more coffee was drunk during the fiscal year 1919-20 than in the preceding 12 months.

Three-fourths of the world's coffee is grown in Brazil. Europe and North America use nearly four-fifths of all the coffee the world produces.

Holland is the greatest coffee-drinking nation on the globe. It uses $15\frac{1}{8}$ lbs. per capita annually, while we use 13 lbs., Germany $5\frac{1}{8}$ lbs., Austria-Hungary 2 2-5 lbs. and the United Kingdom two-thirds of a pound.

On the other hand, we use less than one pound of tea per capita, where the United Kingdom uses nearly seven pounds. Canada shows a decided preference for tea, but drinks less of it than the mother country, making up the difference with coffee. The Germans and the Austro-Hungarians use only a negligible quantity of tea.

The coffee plant is a shrub which, under cultivation, grows from four to six feet high. In its wild state it grows three or four times as high as in its cultivated state. The dwarfing of the plant increases the crop and facilitates picking.

The green coffee berry of commerce is nothing more nor less than the seed of the coffee "cherry." These are picked, the pulp taken off by machinery, and the two husks which lie between the pulp and the seeds themselves removed. The coffee has to be thoroughly dried before the husks can be taken off, and on many plantations there are whole acres of concrete floors for this drying process.

No Waist, This Way

Two youths were spending a holiday at the seaside.

"I say," said one, "how do you teach a girl to swim?"

"That's easy," was his friend's reply. "You take her gently down to the water; then you put your arm around her waist, and whisper, 'Darlin', don't be frightened.'"
"Come off your perch," said the other, sorrowfully, "she's only my sister!"

"Oh, your sister! If that's the case, just push her in.'

"So you broke five panes of glass in the greenhouse?"

"Yes, father, I did it. I cannot lie." "And when I'm finished with you, you won't be able to sit, either."

NEW WOMAN VOTER SAYS FEW THINGS ABOUT MERE MAN

"It is no wonder men have made a mess of government," said Hazel Knutt. "They know nothing whatsoever about it and won't take the trouble to learn. After we read the news that women were to have full suffrage, Chester, my little-known husband, remarked in a grand, superior manner that if there was anything about politics or government I wanted to know, to ask him. So I asked him what congressional district we lived in and what is the name of our representative. He blushed and stammered and said that he had forgotten for the moment. He had also forgotten what state legislative district we live in and the names of our state senator and representatives. But he knew the name of our alderman and hobnobs with a precinct committeeman.

"'Anyway,' he said, 'it isn't details you need to know — you can learn names and districts any time by looking them up, but what you've got to learn is the principles involved.' So I asked him what principles were involved, and found out that he didn't know the difference between a principle and a prejudice. Most men don't, I take it. He said the main issue was the League of Nations, and when I

BATHING IN THE SEA AND SOME OF ITS BENEFITS

Sea bathing is of great value as well as pleasure to many people, but it is a source of danger to the health of others. In sea bathing, physicians have to consider not only the effect of cold water, but also that of the warmer air and the sunlight and the action of the salt dissolved in the water.

The cool water acting upon the skin contracts the blood vessels and drives the blood into the interior of the body; but soon, in a healthy person, a reaction sets in, the blood vessels of the skin dilate and a sense of well-being and exhilaration ensues. That lasts for a longer or shorter time, and then the blood once more begins to recede from the surface, the bather feels chilly, the extremities become blue and the teeth chatter.

Physicians explain that the difference between bathing in the sea and bathing in fresh water is that the salts in sea water hasten and heighten the reaction, so that the first chilliness is of shorter duration and the sense of well-being lasts longer. This effect is more noticeable in surf bathing than in still water, and it is increased if the bather is active in the water, jumping up and down and splashing in the water breast-deep rather than swimming out into deeper water. If the bather stays in the water only a brief time and gets out on the sand and into the warm sunshine as soon as the water begins to feel cold again after the reaction, he can repeat the dip two or three times with benefit.

Sea bathing is tonic in its effects, for it increases the respiration and the action of the heart. No one should bathe when overheated or greatly fatigued, and convalescents, the weak and the anæmic, should avoid surf bathing and should make their dip very brief-not over five minutesand follow it with a brisk rub.-Louisville Courier-Journal.

SAVE WASTE PAPER

Few of us realize the importance of saving waste paper. Today, when the country is threatened with a wood and paper famine and our forests are disappearing so rapidly, every effort should be made to save every scrap of paper. It is estimated that the saving of paper would make it possible to save over 1,000,000,000 feet of lumber each year. Waste paper such as old magazines, books, all kinds of printed matter and paper books takes the place of wood pulp and saves millions of trees. Such material is used for paper, making paper boxes, roofing and building boards and paper shipping containers of all kinds, which carry as much as 100 pounds. If every one would save the waste paper in his home it would not be necessary to use a single tree for such material. It would require more than 500,000,000 feet of 1 mber each year to make the paper shipping cases used throughout the country.—Boys' Life.
